UNDUE INFLUENCE CHARGED

Breach Between Rival Counsel Widens on Eve of Fight Over Evidence Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 12.—The feeling of bitterness, which has been growing under the placid surface of Dayton life, forced its way into the open today and not only caused the resignation of the only preacher in town who believes in evolution but brought an open breach in the hitherto friendly relations between counsel for John T. Scopes and the State.

This was caused by Attorney General Stewart repudiating the agreement made in court on Friday to permit, out of the usual order, the argument on the competency of scientific witnesses.

East Tennesseans are naturally a taciturn people, despite their courtesy and hospitality, and they have carefully concealed from their out-of-town guests the tense emotional conflict which has been going on.

The first indication of the depth to which they have been stirred by the attack upon their simple faith came today when the Rev. Howard G. Byrd, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church North, admitted that he would resign his ministry rather than split his Church because of his invitation to the Rev. Charles Francis Potter of New York to occupy his pulpit.

Built Church He Gives Up.

"People who say they know the Bible from cover to cover but don't act upon it cause the trouble in churches," said Mr. Byrd sadly, as he stood on the lawn in front of his little parsonage which he built with his own hands.

He is generally acknowledged the best preacher in town, and is extremely popular, because of his personality and industry. He is known as "the working parson." When he came here three years ago his church was dilapidated, and, with the help of his congregation, he rebuilt it, painted it, repaired it, and then built himself a home beside it. He is a carpenter of sorts, and constructed most of the furniture which his family uses.

He is soft spoken and modest, a slightly built man of about 35, with brown hair and gentle eyes. His wife is a slender little woman, and, as he talked, she sat beside him on the lawn, surrounded by their three children. The lawn is flecked with color where he has planted flowers, and behind the house is a little garden from which he ekes out the modest $800 a year he is paid. He has another church up in the hills, and travels between his two congregations on many days besides Sunday.

Invited Potter to Offset Bryan.

When George W. Rappelyea, who persuaded Scopes to stand trial in order to test the anti-evolution law, was expelled from the Methodist Episcopal Church South, he went to Mr. Byrd's church and was made welcome. There was much talk then about the "infidel" preacher by some of the townspeople and Mr. Byrd was criticized severely for his charity to Rappelyea. That blew over, and although there were occasional mutterings when it became known that the minister also believed in evolution, there was no direct attack upon him because he never preached it.

When Mr. Potter came here, however, Rappelyea asked Mr. Byrd if he would permit the New York Unitarian to preach today. Mr. Byrd said he was very willing to do so. Mr. Bryan was to speak at the other Methodist Episcopal Church, and it seemed very fair to him that a Modernist minister should speak at the same time.

Rappelyea had the announcement put on the window of F. E. Robinson's drug store, where all the town news finds its place during the day, but it had not been there long before somebody rubbed it out.

Issue Over "New York Infidel."

Mr. Byrd went up to his mountain church on Saturday and when he came back a woman of his congregation called on him and told him that if he permitted a "New York infidel" to speak in his pulpit the church would break up on Monday.

"All right," said Mr. Byrd, "I'll withdraw the invitation and get out myself."

There was no strenuous objection on her part to that, he said, and it meant the termination of his ministry.

"I'm an electrician of sorts, not a very good one, and I can go back to that," he said. "I'll get a job on a

WILBUR TAKES HAND IN EVOLUTION ROW

WANTS NO GOD IN VACUUM

But on the Other Hand He Dissents From Literal Interpretation of Bible.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, tried today to reconcile the controversy between proponents of the biblical story of creation and the theory of evolution in an address before the Bible class he formerly taught in the First Congregational Church here. The class is still known as "The Judge Wilbur Public Welfare Class."

The Secretary did not quarrel with the evolutionists, nor with those who believe in the Bible story of creation, declaring "one is no better and no worse than the other." But he did quarrel with evolutionists "who try" to "dissipate God into a vacuum," and with religionists who insist upon literal interpretation of the Bible as a standard of "Fundamentalism."

The announcement that the Secretary would speak drew a large audience and many were unable to obtain admittance to the lecture room. Several hundred stood in the corridors, among them many midshipment who are here on their annual practice cruise.

"It is perfectly obvious," he said, "that there is a vital and irreconcilable difference between teaching that the processes of creation were going on for millions of years before man was created and that the whole process of creation was completed in six days. Both accounts, taken literally, cannot be true.

$3,000,000 BUILDING PLANNED BY N. Y. U.

University to Purchase Remaining East Side Frontage of Washington Square.

Move Is Part of Program to Develop Great University Centre in the Neighborhood.

Contracts have been signed by New York University for the purchase of the entire remaining frontage on the east side of Washington Square, according to an announcement yesterday by Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown. The property has a frontage of 200 feet and an average depth of more than 100 feet. This places the frontage of the entire east side of Washington Square under the control of New York University. The property includes the Lies Building, the Benedick Apartments, and the Celluloid Building.

A fifteen-story building for the New York University School of Education is planned for the new site, according to the announcement. The purchase of this ground and the construction of the new building are part of the plan recently adopted by the University Council to provide for the rapidly developing needs of this division of the university.

The building program for the School of Education would involve the expenditure of $3,000,000, Chancellor Brown said. The school has become national in scope, he pointed out, attracting both graduate and undergraduate students from every State. Under the four-year administration of Dean John W. Withers the enrollment has increased 800 per cent. The Summer school, also under the direction of Dean Withers, has 1,000 more students than were enrolled in 1924.

The new building will contain, in ad-

Caillaux Is Elected to the French Senate As His Wife Is Hurt in Automobile Accident

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, July 12.—Finance Minister Caillaux completed his sensational comeback into the French political arena by being elected today a member of the Senate from the Department of the Sarthe.

His triumph, however, was clouded by the fact that his wife was severely injured in an automobile accident while motoring to Mamers to get the first news of the result of the election.

M. Caillaux's election to the Senate, which was practically unanimous, was rendered possible through the resignation of Dr. Gigon, who expressly withdrew with his party's consent in order that the Finance Minister might succeed him. The fall of the Ministry, therefore, would not, as his enemies hoped, retire M. Caillaux again from the field of political activity.

The accident to Mme. Caillaux occurred near Angers, while she was on her way to Mamers with a woman friend. The car skidded while going at high speed and crashed into a tree. Mme. Caillaux was thrown out on the road and suffered severe bruises on the head and chest, and the fracture of several ribs, which necessitated an immediate surgical operation as soon as she could be taken to the hospital at Angers. She is now declared to be out of immediate danger.

Her first words, when she recovered consciousness, were to ask the result of the election, and she uttered a cry of joy when informed of her husband's success.

Broken Main in 5th Av. Floods I. R. T. Shuttle And Queensboro Tube; Ties Up Street Traffic

The bursting of a twenty-inch water main under Fifth Avenue near Forty-second Street last night flooded the Interborough shuttle tracks and curtailed service, stopped traffic over the Queensborough route, caused delay and confusion to thousands coming home from the beaches and forced police to stop street traffic in the danger area for fear of a cave-in.

After a three-hour search by engineers of the Department of Water Supply, wading knee deep through the torrent in the subways, the leaking main was located and the water shut off. Early this morning traffic on Forty-second Street, between Madison and Sixth Avenues, and on Fifth Avenue, between Fortieth and Forty-fourth Streets, was still stopped, but it was expected that its resumption would be permitted by daybreak.

The water was first discovered flowing onto the shuttle tracks about 350 yards wast of the Grand Central platform of the shuttle service at 10:40 o'clock last night. Shuttle trains were stopped altogether for fifteen minutes, and crowds piled up in the Grand Central and Times Square stations. Traffic then was resumed on the centre track. At midnight the water was fourteen inches deep at the end of the Grand Central platform and extended to Sixth Avenue. Seventy workmen were sent wading into the subway with brooms. They worked for hours sweeping the water along the centre track, to keep it from reaching the third rail and causing a complete stoppage of service.

The Interborough also put five pumps into action, and water was poured out of the subway into the sewer at Lexington Avenue at the rate of 950 gallons a minute. In spite of this the water continued to rise and at midnight it had seeped into the Queensborough subway, flowing down the grade leading under the East River. The flow was far beyond the capacity of five emergency pumps kept at that point. Early this morning the Interborough dispatched a pump car to the scene to clear out this basin in time to permit resumption of service this morning.

After the leaking main had been cut off, the flow of water continued for some time, but the level of the flood on the shuttle tracks at last began to subside and they were expected to be clear by morning.

Several basements in the vicinity of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street were flooded, according to reports to the police.

John F. Meade, Manhattan Superintendent of the Department of Water Supply, said the subway had acted as a great conduit and had saved the city from vast damage. Had the subway not been there, he said, the pressure would have blown up the street, penetrated to gas mains and electric cables and created havoc.

ARMY SENDS A PLANE AND 2 FLIERS NORTH TO SEARCH FOR KNAPP

Will Scout From Plattsburg Toward Thousand Islands for Alleged Slayer.

SUSPECTS HELD AT ALBANY

Robber of Chauffeurs in Utica Sought—Taxi Men to Get Pistol Permits.

A swift army airplane from Mitchel Field, Mineola, L. I., was sent out yesterday afternoon to join the pursuers of Philip K. Knapp, former Cornell student and member of a prominent Syracuse (N. Y.) family, who is charged with the murder of Louis Panella, Hempstead (N. Y.) taxicab driver, and desertion from the army. Lieutenant Marion L. Elliott, Chief Operations Officer at Mitchel Field, and Lieutenant Walter H. Sargent hopped off at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and arrived in Plattsgurg, N. Y., at 7 o'clock last night.

Although reports telling of the arrest of two suspects in Albany and of the hold-up of two taxicab drivers in Utica by a man answering Knapp's description were received at Mitchel Field yesterday afternoon, the police of Nassau County and the army authorities at Mitchel Field went ahead with their plans to search for Knapp all through Northern New York and along the Canadian border. Complete identification of the suspects has not been made and the search for the Utica hold-up suspect is still on. He robbed one of his victims of $35 in cash and a silver watch and then tied him to a barn on a lonely road.

The army fliers will make their base at the National Guard Barracks at Plattsburg. Working from there they will aid Police Sergeant Harold King and Detective Gordon Hurley of Nassau County, and Private James B. Doulin of the First Observation Squadron at Mitchel Field, of which Knapp was a member, who are trailing the deserter toward the Canadian border. The police and army authorities believe Knapp is headed for the Thousand Islands.

He confessed before taking leave of Mitchel Field that he had been a bootlegger on Alexandria Bay. One of his military associates has told District Attorney Charles R. Weeks of Nassau County that Knapp tried to persuade him to desert and go to the Thousand Islands, where he said big money was to be made bootlegging.

To Scout by Air.

Lieutenants Elliott and Sargent will scout over the Thousand Islands region. They will hold themselves and their plane ready to intercept Knapp if he is reported headed for some spot near where they can make a landing.

Major William N. Hensley Jr., Commandant at Mitchel Field, dispatched the De Haviland pursuit plane on his own initiative. But before sending the fliers north Major Hensley warned Lieutenant Elliott, who is his aid, not to try to bring Knapp back by airplane if he is captured. He explained that an eccentric like Knapp, who confessed he was in search of the superthrill, might try to experience the thrill of an airplane spill.

Lieutenant Elliott provided himself with handcuffs before he hopped off from Mitchel Field. If Knapp is caught, Lieutenant Elliott's instructions are to handcuff him to a non-commissioned officer. A squad of soldiers at Plattsburg Barracks would be detailed to bring the prisoner back to Mitchel Field.

Lieutenants Elliott and Sargent took with them several photographs and other data to be used in checking the identity of suspects who are picked up in the search. The two army flyers were due at Plattsburg between 6 and 7 o'clock last evening.

They have been instructed to keep that

BRITISH SCIENTISTS REPORT ISOLATION OF CANCER ORGANISM

National Institute of Medical Research to Make Important Announcement.

LONDON PRESS REJOICES

Discovery Is Held Greatest Stride Yet Made Toward Treatment of Scourge.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, July 12.—The British National Institute of Medical Research has, it is stated, discovered and isolated the organism which causes cancer. It is expected that this notable achievement, which comes as the result of four years' work, will be followed by an exhaustive effort to use the new discovery in perfecting treatment for the dread disease, which ranks as one of the great scourges of mankind.

I understand that an important announcement in regard to its work will be made in the next few days by the institute.

The Medical Research Council, of which the Institute of Medical Research is a branch, was created in 1920 and is supported by a Government appropriation. It numbers among its members the leaders of British medical science. The work which promises such brilliant achievement has been carried out at Mount Vernon, Hampstead. The men who have been chiefly responsible for cancer research work are J. E. Barnard, Secretary of the Royal Microscopical Society; Dr. W. E. Gye and Dr. G. Russell.

No Claim to Cure Yet Made.

Preliminary reports say that while, of course, no claim to have found a cure is made, yet the new step is considered to represent the biggest stride yet made toward successful treatment of the cancer affliction, which has baffled medical science for centuries.

Many thousands of scientists who have been working at the cancer problem long entertained the theory that the disease was caused by a minute organism, and the work of the Medical Institute indicates that the reason it has not been found is due to imperfection of the microscopes used. In New York special use has been made of a new apparatus. Only by extremely technical methods have the British scientists been able to observe the organism, which it is said one can see only as disturbances in rays of light.

The three British scientists made use of knowledge gained from research work in several other countries, including the United States. Experiments have been made with birds and mammals, especially mice, it being found possible to induce cancerous growths by new methods much more quickly than had been done previously by irritation

AMERICA, BRITAIN AND JAPAN ARE AGREED ON POLICY TO CALM CHINA, BALK THE REDS; COOLIDGE TO HOLD STRICTLY TO TREATIES

Three Power Conference at Tokio Settles Policy Toward China After Some Concessions Are Made

Special Cable to The New York Times.

TOKIO, July 12.—An agreement has been reached by America, Japan and England, after a week's negotiations here, to continue their united stand in China, thus avoiding a break which, it is learned now, seemed imminent several days ago.

It is stated on good authority that the agreement followed concessions by Great Britain and the United States, the former consenting to accept an impartial verdict regarding the culpability for the Shanghai shootings and stand by it, even if it involved the censure and dismissal of British officials, and the latter agreeing not to insist on immediate consideration of the question of abandoning extraterritoriality.

The agreement seems to be a victory for the Japanese, who have adhered to a middle course favoring abolition of extraterritoriality in due time, according to the Washington agreements, and the placation of the Chinese by limited concessions in the Shanghai affair.

The Bolshevist spectre in China was a factor in the situation which induced the British to make concessions when the impossibility of agreeing on a joint attitude threatened to disrupt the Anglo-American-Japanse front and give the Chinese an opportunity to drive a wedge between them, weakening the position first of one and then of another, while Russia would be strengthening her hold on the Far East, possibly ultimately to menace Korea and India.

It is expected here that the British will follow the Japanese suggestion that the officials responsible for the Shanghai shooting shall resign, thereby meeting part of the Chinese demands without loss of face.

The agreement was reached late last night and kept secret, the persons taking part in the negotiations announcing merely that "the conversations were amicable and full cooperation is assured."

Military Prisoners Act as Salvage Corps—Sergeant Burned Pulling Down Electric Wires.

Twelve soldiers, including Captain John E. Gillfillan, officer of the day, and Lieutenant George L. Forster, aide-de-camp to General Charles P. Summerall, were injured yesterday afternoon in a fire that destroyed four barracks and wrecked the post laundry at Governors Island. The barracks were occupied by ten non-commissioned officers and their families.

Captain Gillfillan was scorched on the face and hands. Lieutenant Forster was knocked down by a falling beam while he was aiding other volunteers in manning a hose.

The fire started, it is believed, in one of the kitchens in the non-commissioned officers' quarters about 1:30 o'clock. In a few minutes it had enveloped the whole barracks. Sergeant Henry Stickler saw the flames, turned in an alarm, warned the other families and carried out his invalid mother.

The alarm brought Lieutenant Francis McKeon, post fire marshal, and the fire company of ten men. He ordered a bugler to sound a general fire call, and within five minutes a hundred soldiers had responded. Provost Sergeant James F. Kenna led his thirty-four prisoners across from the disciplinary barracks in Castle Williams and put them to work as a salvage corps.

Other Buildings in Danger.

The barracks, long narrow flimsy structures built of wood as temporary billets during the war, are on the east side of the island near the shore and just south of a row of cottages and South Battery, occupied by the officers' club.

A brisk wind drove sparks and flames toward them. Water pressure was low, and recognizing the danger of the flames spreading, Lieutenant McKeon sent a hurry call to Manhattan for more apparatus. Deputy Chief O'Donohue with four companies hurried to South Ferry, commandeered the big municipal ferry boat Bronx, which was unloading passengers from State Island, and arrived at the fire twenty minutes after the call. He found the fire boat John Purroy Mitchel alongside in Buttermilk Channel and soon had a dozen lines on the

CHINESE SOLDIERS WOUND 3 IN MISSION

Two Women and a Man at British Station Near Swatow Are Beaten and Knifed.

Supplies Cut Off From British and Japanese—Foreigners Leaving Interior Points.

PEKING, July 12 (AP).—Cantonese soldiers on Thursday forced their way into the English Presbyterian mission at Wukingfu, fifty miles in the interior of Kwangtung Province, where they beat one missionary and injured him with knives. They also beat two of the women missionaries, cutting them slightly with knives.

The British Consul at Swatow has demanded an official apology, punishment of the guilty persons and reparation in the form of compensation.

The missionaries, after hiding for several hours, left Wukingfu, arriving in Swatow in an exhausted condition. Foreigners were ordered to leave and departed the same day for Swatow.

Reports reaching here say that the situation in Swatow is growing more critical daily. Chinese employed by British and Japanese have gone on strike, and an embargo has been placed on food supplies to the British and Japanese.

The fact that the city is under two rival military commanders complicates the situation, as there is no proper authority or a sufficient force to cope with the disorder.

PEKING, July 12.—The anti-foreign agitation in China is as strong as ever, despite the fact that on the surface the situation seems quieter.

Following the publication of the news of the attacks on missionaries of the English Presbyterian Mission in Wukingfu, missionaries in Western Szechuan Province have been advised by the British Consul at Chengtu to leave and to go down the river, owing to doubt as to whether Governor Yang Sen will be able to protect them.

Foreigners living in other parts of the interior have left for the coast and several parties have passed through Pe-

All of them report that student agitators, some with money at their disposal, are inciting the people against foreigners, fomenting strikes and boycotts.

For this state of affairs the Peking Government is considered partly responsible, as students from the Capital get free railway passes to the provinces, where their sole object, it is charged, is to promote agitation.

Chang Tso-lin, Governor of Manchuria, and believed to be the strongest military commander in China, is still in Tientsin, where it was thought that he left for Mukden on Tuesday. His continued presence bewilders local political analysts, but he seems to be testing the ice by proposing Liang Shih-yi for Prime Minister. This appointment would modify the dictatorship of Tuan Chi-fui and give Chang himself a greater voice in the councils of the Cabinet.

Feng Yu-hsiang, Chang's great rival, and Liang Shihyi are pronounced opposites, and if the latter is gazetted it will be evidence that Feng is not strong enough to keep him out.

PRESIDENT WANTS ACTION

He Insists That China Must Fully Protect All Foreigners

AND STAND BY COMPACTS

Will Oppose Moves by Any Power Not in Accord With "Open Door" Policy.

KELLOGG TELLS DECISION

Secretary Ends Two-Day Conference With Coolidge and Starts for Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass, July 12.—The United States Government's policy toward China will follow the terms of the Washington treaties and an insistence that the Government of China take adequate measures for the protection of foreigners and the carrying out of her obligations under the treaties.

This was the decision of the conference Secretary Kellogg and Under-Secretary Grew held last night and today with President Coolidge, as announced in a statement issued this afternoon by Secretary Kellogg, before the two State Department officials left White Court for Washington, which said:

> We have been engaged in a conference with President Coolidge with regard to the situation in China, the Foreign Department question and some other departmental matters.
> The conference in relation to China had reference to matters of policy. The cornerstone of that policy, so far as this Government is concerned, may be said to be a scrupulous observance of the obligations to China entered into at the Washington conference, and the insistence that the Government of China take adequate measures for the protection of foreigners and to carry out her responsibilities under the treaties.
> There is nothing new in the debt question. We were discussing the general situation. The settlement is progressing satisfactorily.

While no official information could be obtained tonight of the agreement between the United States, Japan and Great Britain, as reported in a cable dispatch from Tokio, it is believed that Secretary Kellogg laid these facts before the President. The fact that the Secretary, when he informed all foreign Governments of this Government's desire to abolish extraterritoriality, made it clear that the United States would be in no hurry to insist upon a conference on this subject, would seem to indicate that an agreement had been reached between Japan, England and the United States. This is expected to further the conference to consider tariff duties as provided in the Washington Treaty.

President for Prompt Action.

The attitude of the Administration is that the policies as enunciated in the Washington treaties should be carried into effect without delay, and that no new policies for dealing with China should be adopted by other countries contrary to the agreements in the Nine-Power Treaty. This Government is against delaying the conferences on customs beyond the three months' period, but if present conditions in China forbid such a conference it would not object to a short postponement.

President Coolidge believes the commissions authorized to consider extraterritoriality should meet without delay. The American Government's view is that these rights should be abolished.

Secretary Kellogg's note is regarded as an answer to the suggestion that Great Britain may enter upon an independent policy respecting her attitude to China.

Important developments in China and in Great Britain are expected as the result of the United States Government's restatement of its position and its insistence on the carrying out of the Washington treaties, and China's adherence to her obligations as well as the adoption of measures to protect foreigners.

The American Government is hopeful that the conferences to carry out the Washington treaties will be convened within scheduled time, to the end that China can compose her difficulties and obtain revenues from increased tariffs to assure a more stable Government.

Secretary Kellogg believes that France's ratification of the Washington treaties will be deposited at Washington in the next week or ten days. This action will conclude the acceptance by all the nine powers of the treaties negotiated in Washington.

Customs Conference Next.

The next formality will be the calling of the customs conference by China within three months after the ratification. The present uprising in China may make it inadvisable to hold such a conference within the next three months, and it is probable that this Government may sound the other Governments as to whether the conference should not be delayed beyond the three months' period provided for in the Nine-Power Treaty.

This Government also will exert its influence to prevent any signatories to the compact entering upon a separate policy for the treatment of China in contradiction to the Washington treaty. It is believed that the fact that the Administration intends to insist, as the most friendly nation to China, that the Chinese Government shall adequately protect foreigners will dissuade Great Britain from attempting to define a separate policy. This Government will look with disfavor on any other nation adopting a program that breaks down the Washington treaties. The course of the Administration, no matter what the developments may be in China in the uprising against foreigners now centred chiefly against the British, will be acceptance of the Washington treaties and an "open door" policy.

President Coolidge believes that all of the controversial subjects are dealt with in the Nine-Power Treaty and that if any country having signed this treaty should attempt to define its own policy the uprising in China would assume a serious aspect. He does not believe that Great Britain seriously intends to follow an independent course. To do so, it is argued, would require the support of some other nation, and that nation, because of its geographical position, would be Japan.

Great Britain did not renew its compact with Japan and agreed to abide by the Nine-Power Treaty, which, at the time it was negotiated in Washington, appeared to afford Great Britain and all the other nations equal rights in China, and aimed to solve, by unity of action that would prevent a war, questions of the customs duties, mixed court and extraterritorial rights in China.

Will Sound Other Powers.

It was decided by President Coolidge in conference with the State Department officials that this Government should proceed logically and sound the sentiments of the other powers as to the time for the meeting of the customs conference provided for in the Nine-Power Treaty.

It is felt here that continuance of the trouble in China might make it inadvisable to have this meeting this Fall, as originally planned.

The United States intends to insist upon its traditional "open-door" policy, laid down by John Hay. It will not look with favor upon any country adopting a policy which interferes with this or sets aside the treatment proposed by all the countries for China as defined in the Nine-Power Treaty. It is believed that Secretary Kellogg will instruct the ambassadors abroad to acquaint the powers with the American attitude when he seeks information as to the proper time for calling the customs conference.

The customs conference will have before it the proposal to permit China to increase her duties to 5 per cent., with provision for a surtax of from 2½ to 5 per cent. Under the treaty the conference shall be called by China within three months after the treaties are ratified.

Unless the situation becomes more intense it is believed there will be no objections by the signatory powers to calling the conference. British interests in China are opposed to the conference, but this Government fails to see how anything can be gained by delaying it. American officials believe that if all the powers should act promptly and permit China to increase her custom duties it might have the effect of stabilizing her Government and removing the present feeling in China against foreigners. However, this Government would agree to a delay if the other powers desired it and China counseled postponement until her internal conditions were improved.

The Nine-Power Treaty does not affect the extraterritoriality privileges held in China by foreign Governments. This subject is dealt with in a resolution adopted by the Washington conference, which provided for the calling of a conference for the gradual abolishment of extraterritoriality in China within a year after the adoption of the resolution. China asked to have this conference postponed. Nothing has been done by the other Governments in the meantime to revive the resolution, but the United States recently suggested in a note that the customs conference should be held as provided, and that the conference should meet to consider extraterritoriality. In this note the American Government declared in favor of abolishment of extraterritoriality.

American officials are confident that the attitude of this Government will have a good effect not only in China but among the other Governments affected by the present uprising. It is expected by State Department officials that the customs conference will be convened, and that the conference on mixed courts and extraterritoriality will come in due time. The thing this Government wants to impress on China is that America is friendly, but at the same time will insist upon China doing her part to protect foreigners if she is to expect the American Government's sympathy and aid.

Heat Wave Visits Swampscott.

Today was the hottest period of President Coolidge's vacation. The thermometer at noon registered 90 degrees along the streets, although it was probably several degrees cooler on the ocean-swept piazza of White Court.

Despite the heat, which was felt early in the day, driving most of the Summer residents to bathing beaches, President and Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary Kellogg and Frank W. Stearns drove to the Tabernacle Congregational Church at Salem and heard a sermon preached by the Rev. William H. Spence.

The President wore flannels and a blue coat and carried a cane. Mrs. Coolidge wore a beige georgette ensemble dress, trimmed with brown marabou. Her hat was a big beige straw trimmed with an orange and yellow rose. Mrs. Coolidge joined in the congregational singing. Her voice rising high above the others. President Coolidge followed the hymns, but did not sing. Secretary Kellogg sang, but in a lowered tone.

The Rev. Mr. Spence founded his sermon on the first verse of Second Timothy. He avoided any reference to public questions and gave the worshipers an old-fashioned sermon, the theme of which was that the divine power of God could be trusted and that truth was imperishable.

FARMERS GET MORE LOANS.

Intermediate Credit Banks Lent Record Amount in May.

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—Farmers drew more heavily on the Federal intermediate credit banks for loans in May than in any previous month in the system's history. Direct loans in May, as announced today, aggregated $9,415,270, or almost 65 per cent. more than in the previous month.

While the direct loans were increasing, as they have for several months, loans by the credit banks in the form of rediscounts were materially reduced, the total for May being $4,514,258, just half of the April total. Commissioner Cooper of the Farm Loan Board, explained that the direct loans represented preparations for marketing, while the rediscounts, for the most part, supplied funds for production.

Federal land banks increased their mortgage loans during May by $6,051,729, making the total of these outstanding loans $968,713,291. Joint stock land banks loaned an additional $7,918,678 in May, and they had outstanding June 1 a total of $494,165,230.

MEXICANS DELAY CLAIMS.

$25,000,000 Bond Issue Too Small to Pay for Lands Seized.

MEXICO CITY, July 12 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Leon declared today that it was impossible to fix the exact amount of the Agrarian debt of Mexico because of the reluctance of the landowners to file claims for land seizures. He could say, however, that the 50,000,000 pesos ($25,000,000) in bonds to be issued in accordance with the recent Presidential decree was insufficient to pay the indemnities for seizures.

The reluctance of landowners to make their claims known is due to the fact that acceptance of the bonds implies agreement with all the agrarian legislation.

GREEN URGES ACTION IN BEHALF OF CHINA

Labor Chief Asks Coolidge to Induce Powers to Give Up Special Privileges.

WANTS EARLY CONFERENCE

He Holds Each Nation Taking Part Should Have Wage Earners in Its Delegation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—In a letter sent today to the Summer capital at Swampscott, William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, urges President Coolidge to call an international conference to formulate plans to abolish extraterritorial rights in China.

Mr. Green says that in the Washington conference of 1921 the United States pledged itself to a policy that would permit China to exercise full sovereign rights in that country. He expresses the opinion that the present disturbances in China are due to the special privileges enjoyed by foreign nations on Chinese soil. Mr. Green suggests that if the President calls such a conference organized labor be given representation in the gathering. His letter reads:

Washington, D. C., July 10, 1925.

Sir: On behalf of the American labor movement I wish to urge for your favorable consideration and speedy action that the United States take the initiative in calling an international conference to make plans to abolish extraterritorial rights in China.

Since the Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armaments and Political Questions in the Pacific and Far East, convened at our invitation in 1921, provided for the appointment of a commission to study this subject, and that action was not carried out, there devolves upon us a responsibility for keeping the faith with China and the friends of international justice to see to it that the intent of that pledge is redeemed. For the declaration was in fact a pledge of help to China, then struggling with the problems of reorganization, as well as to countries participating in the conference, which wished to assure China opportunities for self-development and reorganization.

There is every reason to believe that the fundamental cause for present disturbances in China is due to special privileges given foreign nations in treaty pacts, and that the abolition of extraterritorial rights of foreigners is necessary to China's administrative integrity and sovereignty. The Chinese are an ancient and honorable people who have developed a distinctive culture of rare qualities and they have a right to demand the respect and deference accorded to national sovereignty.

Because of the fact that present political provocations have paralleled the coming of trade unions in Chinese industrial development, and the struggle of Chinese wage earners for industrial justice and civil rights is projected into the international problem, it is most important and necessary for fully balanced consideration of the whole question that representatives of wage earners participate in this inquiry. We urge that the initiative be taken by the Government of the United States in calling an economic conference to consider the Chinese situation, and that this provision for labor representation be incorporated in the conference invitation extended to the countries. Ratification of the Washington treaties by France makes a strategical opportunity for such action.

Our American trade union movement believes firmly that our Republic stands for ideals of human justice and equality of opportunity for all, and that these ideals must direct not only national policies but our relations with other countries. The Chinese situation is an opportunity for further application of these ideals, and labor earnestly desires that our country act in conformity to the highest ideals of humanism and constructive progress.

Respectfully yours,
WILLIAM GREEN,
President, American Federation of Labor.

PREDICTS GREAT RACE WAR.

F. Britten Austen Fears Red-Inspired Rise of Asia Against Whites.

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, July 12.—The events in China, Morocco and India are apparently the preliminary stages of an unparalleled war to the death between the white and colored races, with the Pacific as the central battleground, says F. Britten Austen in The Sunday Pictorial. He believes the world is rushing toward a struggle directed by a Bolshevist campaign, which will make the fall of the Roman Empire look like a small local affair in the destinies of the white nations.

"The shadow of a war cloud in the East is falling darkly upon the hitherto sunny world supremacy of the white race," says Mr. Austen. "It is unpleasantly possible that the cloud may be cloven tomorrow or the day after, but inevitably by the lightning flashes of war. The white man's prestige will disappear when the savage, barbaric millions from Africa and Asia can defy the white man.

"The white man has forcibly fed the ancient populations with the newest theories of education, politics and social custom. He has fatuously presented them with thousands and thousands of cinemas showing the white races in a contemptible light. He has committed the crowning folly of leading the colored races into battle against white men. In Africa, India, Indo-China and China tens of thousands of demobilized war auxiliaries have returned to spread the wondrous tale that the white man is not invincible.

"The colored races hate the white man with a hate whereof we have no conception. Moscow's one great reiterated hope is that the innumerable millions of colored races rise and massacre the white man. They have used feverish propaganda to accomplish this.

"They count cunningly on Japan. Although Japan is equal with the Western nations in the war of commerce, the white man insultingly treats her nationals as an inferior race. Her populations are desperately overcrowded, but the white man denies them an outlet. Japan could fight a war against America or Great Britain, or both, with a reasonable prospect of at least temporary success. If she should, the whole world's colored race would seeth in fanatic excitement.

"The Bolshevist agitation is calculated to be carried out against Great Britain and Japan. If Great Britain acts alone to protect her nationals, Japan, as a protagonist of Asia, must protest. If Great Britain takes joint action with Japan as a wedge to drive into the Anglo-American friendship, the work of the Washington Conference will be undone and the yellow war on the Pacific will see the two great white peoples disunited. If Japan takes separate action in China, the United States will assuredly intervene.

"Moscow is making the most of the material for a complete set of trouble in the Far East. The French entanglements in Morocco are at the best that the Bolsheviki could pray for. A spectacular success by Abd-el-Krim might easily bring a Moslem holy war throughout Northern Africa."

FLEEING RATS SCARE WOMEN IN JERSEY FIRE

Hundreds of motorists en route from New Jersey points to New York by ferry were held up more than an hour yesterday afternoon by a fire in the Newark Stock Yards, at Kearny, N. J. Many women who alighted from machines to watch the fire were frightened by large rats which fled the burning buildings and scampered along the Harrison Turnpike, bordering the Kearny meadows.

The fire is believed to have been started by a lighted cigarette stub thrown into a pile of hay inside the stock yards by some boys. On two occasions when a watchman routed boys from the premises he noticed they were smoking cigarettes. The hay blazed up swiftly and soon the flames spread to wooden buildings that extended more than half a mile, the length of the yards.

No cattle were in the enclosures, but four carloads of beasts arrived at the yards while the fire was burning and were removed to a siding. The damage was about $10,000.

THREE BOYS BITTEN BY DOGS

One of Animals Put Under Observation for Rabies.

Three boys were bitten by dogs in the city yesterday and one of the animals was taken by the police and put under observation to determine whether it had rabies. The dog under suspicion bit Lester Mondell, 7 years old, of 626 West 165th Street, in the abdomen at 3,139 Broadway. The dog belonged to Dr. Dingler, of 894 Riverside Drive. The boy was attended at his home.

A stray dog bit Thomas Gallagher, 9 years old, of 112 East Ninety-eighth Street, in the left breast. The dog was not caught.

A dog belonging to Max Lerner of 222 East 104th Street, bit Nathan Rose, 6, of the same address, in the left hand. The animal appeared to be normal and was not taken.

DIGGERS UNEARTH SKELETON

Found Near North Beach—Believed to Be That of an Old Settler.

While digging in the sands of the old Steinway estate near North Beach, facing on Bowery Bay, yesterday, John McNamee, 373 Woolsey Avenue, and Henry Lantz of 777 Steinway Avenue, both of Astoria, unearthed an adult skeleton. The skeleton was removed to the Astoria Police Station.

The Steinway estate originally was the home of the late William Steinway, founder of the Steinway Piano Company, and now is the property of his heirs. About half a mile away is a cemetery several centuries old, and police are inclined to believe that the skeleton found yesterday is that of one of the oldest settlers in these parts, who frequently were buried on their own property.

DENIES CANADAY REPORT.

Father of 'Kidnapped' Boy Says He Was Not in Texas.

Commenting on a dispatch published yesterday that Roscoe Canaday had been seen on Saturday in San Antonio, Texas, a man who said he was Mr. Canaday, father of Roscoe Canaday Jr., whose mother recently kidnapped him, declared over the telephone from the Canaday home at 708 Fleet Street, Forest Hills, Queens, yesterday, that he had no intention of going to Texas and saw no reason for doing so.

The report from San Antonio said that Canaday had followed his wife and son there and that he was believed to have been in a closed car with drawn curtains, which circled the block on which Mrs. Canaday and the boy are staying. A reward of $100 for Canaday's arrest anywhere in Texas was offered in San Antonio on Saturday by P. B. Caldwell, Mrs. Canaday's father.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 12 (AP).—After a turbulent day, and an unconfirmed report that Mrs. Virginia Canaday and her five-year-old son had left San Antonio to avert a possible attempt to kidnap the boy for a third time, peace had settled over their home tonight, with the mother and son safe but voluntary prisoners on the second floor and Mrs. Canaday's father and mother on guard downstairs with two large pistols.

ECUADOR'S ENVOY RESIGNS.

Dr. Ortiz Will Remain at Washington Till Relieved by Junta's Choice.

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—Dr. Francisco Ochoa Ortiz, Minister from Ecuador to the United States, announced today that he had cabled his resignation to the leaders of the military Junta that recently took possession of that country's Government.

Dr. Ortiz will remain at his post, however, until relieved, and his resignation will not be accompanied by any other immediate changes in the staff of the Legation.

CHINESE SOLDIERS WOUND 3 IN MISSION

launched in Kwangtung and other southern provinces, wherein troops are participating, including the attack by Cantonese soldiers on the English Presbyterian mission at Wukingfu, fifty miles from Swatow, on July 9.

In the food boycott against all British and Japanese in Swatow, other foreigners are threatened should they feed them. A similar report comes from Samshui.

The entire staff of the Peking Syndicate mines with their families, totaling forty Britishers, with Sikh guards, arrived this afternoon, leaving the pits flooded and at the mercy of 5,000 miners in Honan Province, where looting is reported.

The miners struck at the demand of student delegates. The staff kept the pumps going five days, although light, water and food was cut off by the boycott. Finally they fled at an hour's notice, leaving all their effects.

Following a Cabinet meeting here, the Executive Secretary today wired the provinces that the Government is maintaining a firm position relative to Shanghai, crediting the popular movement as based on patriotism. While inveighing against violence, the nature of the telegram is likely to encourage anti-foreign developments.

The Foreign Relations Committee will meet tomorrow, at which the Shanghai incident will be delegated to the Foreign Office. Indian troops reinforced the British Legation guard today.

Says Reds Use Our Dollars in China.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 12.—American dollars are being used by Soviet agents to finance Chinese agitators, says The Daily Mail. Its diplomatic correspondent asserts, on what he calls the best authority, that most of the money paid to the Chinese by Moscow has been American dollars collected by the Soviet from American concession hunters. The writer adds:

"What rewards these Americans will reap from their money payments, plus their wonderful faith, remains to be seen. But some of them are already perturbed about the prevalence of American dollars, which are circulating everywhere in China."

PRESIDENT'S ACTION ON CHINA ENDORSED

Foreign Missions Body Approves Conference of Nations to Carry Out Treaties.

HOPES FOR FOREIGN BACKING

Delay on Washington Agreements Has Caused Chinese Misunderstanding, Statement Says.

A statement regarding the situation in China, issued yesterday by the Committee of Reference and Counsel of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, said:

"The newspapers of July 2 carried the announcement that the Government of the United States is prepared to meet with other powers in conference in regard to carrying out the provisions of the treaties and the accompanying resolutions relating to China, which were adopted by the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament in 1921-22.

"Secretary Kellogg's announcement has been received with profound satisfaction by officers, members and supporters of the boards and societies interested in and cooperating with the Christian movement in China. We hope that the suggestion of the Government of the United States will be acted on favorably by the other powers signatory to the Washington treaties. The representatives of the Signatory Powers were agreed when they met in Washington that it was desirable "to safeguard the rights and interests of China," and to this end the treaties relating to China were concluded and the accompanying resolutions adopted.

"Information reaching us from China, through trustworthy sources, indicates that the prolonged delay in bringing about the arrangements contemplated in the Washington treaties and resolutions has created serious misunderstandings on the part of the Chinese people.

"At this distance from China we are not competent to form an opinion as to the responsibility of those involved in the reported local disturbances, but we record our conviction that a permanent settlement of the difficulties existing in China will be effected, not by the use of (or, by the show of) force, but by friendly conference between those concerned.

"While believing that China's greatest and most difficult problems are within herself and that their solution involves the establishment of stable and just government, the realization of national unity, and the adoption and enforcement of enlightened laws, we believe justice demands the readjustment of the treaty relations between China and other nations as suggested at the Washington conference, and that until these treaties are readjusted, there will inevitably continue to be misunderstandings between China and other nations. We identify ourselves with those who are endeavoring to secure justice for China in all her relations with the other nations because it is the simple and inalienable right of China."

The report was signed by the secretaries of boards of societies carrying on work in China as follows:

4 HURT AS CAR RUNS AWAY.

Children Jump While Motorman Is on Top Adjusting Trolley Pole.

A one-man surface car ran away on a slight incline on Union Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, Brooklyn, yesterday evening, while the motorman, Henry Schuler, 27, of 409A Twentieth Street, Brooklyn, was on the roof putting the trolley pole back on its wire. Four children jumped while the car was in motion, and were slightly injured.

The car was comfortably filled with homegoers from Sunday outings, and stopped suddenly at the top of the Union Street hill when the trolley pole flew off. Motorman Schuler applied the brakes, and clambered up to the roof of the car. While he was there the air brakes slipped, and the car began lurching down the hill, although at a slow speed. There was a near panic, however, among the passengers. As the four children, Margaret Victory, 17, of 241 Hoyt Street; Irene Rolles, 15, of 131 Douglas Street; her sister Florence, 12, and Charles Shields, 18 months old, who was in Irene's arms, jumped from the moving car they were hurt in striking the pavement.

Motorman Schuler was able to climb down from the roof, run alongside the car and jump in the front entrance in time to stop it before it had gone more than a block. At no time, Schuler said, was the car traveling faster than fifteen miles an hour.

ST. CROIX COUNCIL DISSOLVED

Virgin Islands Governor Objected to Rejection of His Appointees.

The Colonial Council of St. Croix, Virgin Islands, has been dissolved by Governor Philip Williams on the ground that it refused to recognize the credentials of two of his appointees, according to a cablegram received yesterday by the American Civil Liberties Union. The message announced that the Governor's action had left the Governmental machinery in a state of chaos.

The Council, according to the cablegram, refused to seat A. E. Stakeman, a lawyer and Judge of the St. Croix Police Court, and one Armstrong, appointees of the Governor. It based its refusal on an act of Congress, passed in July, 1921, which states that only citizens of the United States or of the Virgin Islands shall be eligible as Council members. Stakeman is said to have failed to acquire citizenship in either the United States or the Virgin Islands when he renounced allegiance to Denmark.

Officers of the American Civil Liberties Union said yesterday that they would seek a Federal Government ruling on the status of the rejected appointees.

115,000 JEWS IN PALESTINE.

Number Has Doubled in Past 4½ Years, Census Shows.

JERUSALEM, July 12 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—A census taken by the Statistical Section of the Palestine Zionist Executive reveals that the Jewish population of Palestine has increased 100 per cent. in the last four and a half years. On June 1 the Jewish population numbered 115,151, according to Government figures, but the actual number is believed to be considerably higher.

In 1914 the Jewish population in Palestine was about 84,000, at the end of the great war it was only 57,900. It is pointed out that there has been a notable increase in population during the first five months of this year, the increase exceeding the total immigration for 1924 and preceding years.

Couple, Married for 52 Years, Hosts to 110 Descendants

A hundred and ten descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Haywood Manee held a reunion yesterday afternoon at the Manee cottage, off Paige Avenue, Tottenville, Staten Island. Nine children, seventy-four grandchildren and twenty-seven great-grandchildren were present, ranging in age from 2 weeks to 43 years old. Mrs. Manee, who is 72, two years younger than her husband, prepared a dinner for the guests.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Manee are still in good health, although Mrs. Manee is deaf as the result of being shocked by lightning last Summer. She still does her own housework, while Mr. Manee looks after the yard and does the odd jobs about the house. They have lived on Staten Island throughout their fifty-two years of married life and all their descendants are also residents of the island.

PLAN PAN-PACIFIC INSTITUTE

Delegates at Hawaiian Gathering Discuss Peace Among Nations.

HONOLULU, July 12 (AP).—Plans for permanent organization of the Institute of Pacific Relations, meeting here, were accepted by a general meeting of the institute delegates yesterday.

The plans contemplate conferences biennially, subject to the decision of a council, which is to be elected. There also will be chosen a permanent central secretariat and research director. An annual budget of $75,000 was suggested.

H. Duncan Hall, Professor of History at the University of Sydney, declared in an address supporting the plan that mere prevention of war in the Pacific was not enough, but that there must be a positive growth of the peace ideal.

"We need a Pan-Pacific group of Governments for Pacific needs," he said.

Alexander Hume Ford, director of the Pan-Pacific Union, said that he hoped the conference of the League of Nations societies of the Pacific which is to be held here in 1927 "may bring nearer the Pan-Pacific League of Nations of which Henry Cabot Lodge and Franklin K. Lane dreamed as the real beginning of a world parliament."

Mr. Ford also said that several bar associations had asked the Pan-Pacific Union to invite their delegates to meet in Hawaii to consider formation of a Pan-Pacific Bar Association. He announced that two other international conferences would be held here in 1923—the Pan-Pacific Medal Convention and the Conference of Pan-Pacific Women—and possibly a third, a Red Cross meeting. The Pan-Pacific Ethical Congress will meet here in 1929.

A temporary committee to handle permanent organization for the institute includes Frank C. Atherton of Honolulu; Yusuke Tsukumi of Japan, S. T. Wen of China, John Nelson of Canada and Ray Lyman Wilbur of the United States.

DEVICE PROTECTS TELLERS.

Chicago Engineer Invents "Robber Proof" Bank Cage.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 8.—H. P. Grohn, a mechanical engineer, has invented a bank teller's cage that is said to be bullet proof, gas proof and robber proof.

The enclosure is a combination armored teller's cage and "pill box." The cage is constructed of sheet steel. A series of mirrors, a speaking tube and a patented lock drawer are designed completely to protect the bank employe and at the same time enable him to maintain a full view on all sides and converse with customers in an ordinary tone of voice.

R. C. Saunders, former Chief of Police of Des Moines, who is said to have driven bank robbers out of Iowa, began today the perfecting of an organization to help make Illinois banks safe from bandits. He has been retained by the Illinois Bankers' Association, which at a meeting last night took action to cooperate with the Chicago and Cook County Bankers' Association, which has posted a $2,500 reward for bank robbers "dead or alive," killed by police or bank employes.

DROWNS WITH MANY NEAR.

Playful Shouts of Bathers Silence Victim's Cries.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 12.—William De Cou, 17 years old, of 1,008 Sewell Avenue, Asbury Park, was drowned this evening at the Shark River Hills Country Club almost in touch with scores of other bathers. His cries for help were heard but they were mingled with the shouts of others playing in the water and no one knew the youth was in trouble until several minutes after he had gone under.

De Cou went to the beach with three companions immediately after a hearty dinner, and his friends believe he was overcome by cramps. He was a poor swimmer, they said, and could go only about twenty-five yards. He was last seen twenty yards from shore. Some time afterward his companions missed him and were told of the cries for help.

The beach where De Cou lost his life was constructed in the river a year ago by the company which has built the Shark River Development. No life guards had been provided, it was said last night. Late last night Coast Guardsmen from the Avon station and police of Neptune Township were searching for the body with the aid of a searchlight from a fire engine and the headlights of automobiles parked on the boardwalk.

PREACHES ON VACATIONS.

Dr. Reynolds Says Faith as Well as Rest Renews Our Strength.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Lee Reynolds preached on vacations yesterday in the Park Presbyterian Church, Belleville Avenue and Kearny Street, Newark. He said:

"In these days a vacation is necessary in order that one may obtain nature's tonic for a tired life. It is not a concession to laziness but a stimulus to greater and better work. We all need it and ought to have it. It is wisdom's program for recuperation.

"Faith in God will help us to renew our strength even when the body is weary. The possibilities of the medical value of faith have inspired recent investigation by a great many students. It has been reported by them that the uplift and refreshment of the calm worship of God have given to the weary the renewal that they needed, and men have come away from an hour of devotion feeling ten years younger and 10 per cent. happier."

THORNTON RE-ENGAGED.

Salary of Canadian Railway Chief Is Raised to $75,000.

MONTREAL, July 12 (AP).—The Montreal Gazette will say tomorrow that dispatches from Ottawa report that Sir Henry Thornton has been engaged by the Canadian Government for a further five-year term as President of the Canadian National Railways with a salary increase from $50,000 to $75,000 a year and additional allowance of $25,000 for expenses.

The dispatches state that there has been no official announcement of the negotiations between the Government and Sir Henry for the renewal of the contract.

FRENCH SOCIALISTS TURN ON PAINLEVE

Overthrow of the Government Is Prevented by Support From Centre and Right.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 13.—In an all-night battle in the Chamber to secure the adoption of Caillaux's budget, the Painlevé Government at midnight found itself almost entirely deserted by its Left majority and only saved itself from falling by acquiring a new majority composed of supporters from the Right and Centre. The switch of the Government's majority from Left to Right was preceded by the resignations of Vincent Auriol as President of the Chamber Finance Commission and Milliès-Lacroix as President of the Senate Finance Commission. These constituted the complete liberation of the Painlevé Government from the more or less tyrannical control of the cartel which created it and the death blow to the cartel itself.

The switch occurred when the Government raised the question of confidence on its refusal to accept the Socialist amendment to the budget which excluded from the tax on business turnover the small retail dealers with three employes or less and food dealers. Four times a cartel majority had voted in favor of this amendment, the Senate each time, however, refusing to accept the amendment, and sending the budget back to the chamber with the amendment excluded. The budget came back from the Senate for the fourth time yesterday morning, and the Socialists, perceiving that neither the Senate nor Caillaux himself was willing to yield, prepared to wage a mighty battle against its adoption.

M. Caillaux made a vigorous plea in behalf of the budget as it stood, declaring that while he favored exemptions of small retail dealers and food dealers as a matter of principle, as a matter of practice, in view of the necessities of the financial situation, the proposed exemptions from the turnover tax would this time only tend to defeat the whole project of financial recuperation. He repeated the promise to reform the turnover tax within the course of a few months and thus make it conform more closely to the desires of the Socialist majority. For the time being, however, he insisted no exemptions could be considered.

M. Painleve following the conclusion of M. Caillaux's statement announced the readiness of the Government to resign if the Chamber voted again in favor of the Socialist amendment. The amendment thereupon was put to vote.

Almost the entire left voted in favor of the amendment but right and centres went to the support of the Government and by a vote of 325 against 245 defeated the amendment and saved the day for Painleve.

With the amendment beaten the Government felt assured of adoption of its budget without further serious difficulties even though Socialists intend to return to strict adherence to party pledges and either abstain from voting or vote emphatically against any "bourgeois" financing.

M. Blum, the Socialist leader, announced the return of his party to the old practice of voting against a bourgeois budget, as reasons for abandoning this practice no longer existed.

Chamber Adopts the Budget.

PARIS, July 13 (AP).—The Chamber voted the budget at an early hour this morning, 421 to 150. The Socialists voted against it.

As modified by the Chamber, the budget was returned to the Senate and the sitting was suspended until 2:30 A. M.

AERIAL MAP COMPLETED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The Navy Department announced today completion of an aerial photographic map of the shore of Lake Okeechobee, in the Everglades district of Southern Florida, by pilots and photographers of the Naval Air Station at Pensacola.

It is the first of a series of aerial maps being made by naval photographers of various sections of the coast and lake shore lines of the United States for the Coast and Geodetic Survey and the mapping was undertaken at the request of Secretary Hoover. Approximately 1,500 photographs were taken. These are being developed at the Naval Air Station at Pensacola and will be turned over to the Coast and Geodetic Survey at Washington, where the completed map will be assembled. The area covered by the airgraphs extends from the edge of the lake to one mile inland, all around the lake.

The naval party in charge of the survey was commanded by Lieutenant L. A. Pope, photographic officer at Pensacola, who was assisted by Lieutenants H. F. Carlson and Richard Whitehead. They used a photographic mapping plane, known as the R-6-L powered with 400 horsepower Liberty engines which took the photographs from an altitude of 6,000 feet.

13 HURT IN BULLFIGHT CLASH

Protest Over Rain-Halted Spectacle Ends in Mexican Troop Action.

MEXICO CITY, July 12 (AP).—The spectators at today's bullfight and troops clashed because the fight was stopped on account of rain, and the police report that thirteen persons were wounded, several of them being expected to die.

After a brief downpour had left the ground wet and, in the opinion of the toreadors, unsafe, the fighters refused to continue. The spectators protested, refusing to leave. Troops were ordered to clear the stands when a veritable fusillade of shots ensued.

TANK CARS EXPLODE, KILL 3.

Six Other Men Unaccounted For in Texas Disaster.

TAYLOR, Texas, July 12 (AP).—Three unidentified men were burned to death this afternoon and six others are unaccounted for in an explosion and fire which destroyed eighteen tank cars of gasoline and two box cars six miles south of here.

The cars were part of a fifty-car M. K. & T. freight train.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, July 13—Some years ago the late King Edward, The Seventh, of England, appeared at Marienbad, a famous Continental health resort, with his trousers creased down the side, instead of down the centre. The fad at once set the fashionable world buzzing like an overturned bee-hive. Turning from trousers to golf knickers, the centre crease is passé. The spruce way to wear your "shorts" today is with the crease down the side, but faint, not sharp. Exclusive, but not expensive.

BUTLER URGES NEED OF ENVOY TO LEAGUE

Columbia President Says Man of Ministerial Rank Should Be There to Report to Washington.

AMAZED BY GENEVA VISIT

Multiplicity of Movements in Which America Is Vitally Interested He Finds Centred There.

PEOPLE HERE UNINFORMED

"Not Five Persons in Cabinet and Congress Really Familiar With the Organization," He Declares.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, July 12.—"The League of Nations as an organization for international cooperation and world education is a success and the Government could not make a better investment than to attach to the legation at Berne a man of ministerial rank to observe its work and report its activities to Washington," Nicholas Murray Butler declared today before leaving for Aix-les-Bains. Mr. Butler spent a week at Geneva making an intensive study of the League and the International Labor office. He visited every department of the two organizations and heard detailed explanations of all their activities and aims.

Mr. Butler's research into the work of the League made him see one thing which the officials have been trying hard for the past year to make all Americans see, namely, that the League has other functions than preventing wars and settling disputes, and that in these other activities America and the League can work together with mutual benefit.

"At present there is no League of Nations issue in the United States and it is impossible to raise one," Mr. Butler said. "Therefore it is useless to discuss that angle.

"But that is not the only angle to the League of Nations. It is a splendid organization for educating public opinion and training countries in national conduct. And that is one of the best means of preventing war as well as developing civilization.

Activities of Interest to Us.

"Frankly, I was astounded by the things I learned of League activities. There are a multiplicity of valuable movements being organized or carried on by various departments. There is the movement to standardize harbor signals. There is another to unify the nomenclature of merchandise for the establishment of international tariffs in order to simplify the import and export of goods. The health work which the League is doing is admirable.

"Here are only three examples of a multitude of activities which should interest the United States. We export goods. We have ships. We are as much interested in health movements as anybody. Disease knows no frontiers and we cannot afford to recognize any in combating it.

"At the International Labor Bureau I was shown an office where there are charts of all important fiscal happenings of the last five years. It is easy to say any organization could prepare such charts, but the answer is no other organization does. This is a single example of scholarly work which is being carried on by the surprisingly young and enthusiastic body of men which comprises the League's organization.

"The League of Nations is handicapped in two ways. The word 'league' should never have been used as the title. Many people choose to think it a league against something instead of an association of nations cooperating for mutual benefit and betterment. It is linked with the peace treaty and must suffer most from the criticism which attached to the treaty. The name and association with the treaty have been particularly harmful to the League in the United States, where people are surprisingly uninformed regarding its activities. Despite daily news reports, not only the average persons but many of the best educated people are totally ignorant concerning the League. I would dare say there are not five persons in the Cabinet and Congress really familiar with the organization.

Isolation Impossible Today.

"It has been said we are like ostriches in international relations—that we do not wish to see what is going on beyond our frontiers. That cannot be. Isolation today is impossible. Nations grow through international relationship just as individuals grow through mingling and interchanging ideas. We have to realize that.

"At present there is no possibility of our Government participating in the work of the League of Nations. Fortunately, however, there are two sorts of participation: There is participation of citizens as well as governmental participation, and the League of Nations is enjoying the assistance and support of many of our ablest citizens. I always have been and still am a mild reservationist, but that does not keep me from seeing a fact when it is placed before me. I see the League as an organization of great educational and cooperative value, and the United States Government would find it a cheap investment to spend some $20,000 per year to attach to the legation at Berne a diplomat who would live at Geneva and observe and report on League work."

Heat Kills 3, Prostrates Many; Cooler Today; Greatest Crowds on Record Jam the Beaches

Yesterday's heat packed the beaches from Coney Island to Long Beach with the greatest crowds on record, and caused three deaths and several prostrations among those unable to escape the stifling city.

The temperature reached its maximum in this city at 4:45 P. M. when it was 91 with 46 per cent. of humidity. This was five degrees below the year's heat record which was on June 1. At 10 o'clock last night it had dropped to 80. The prediction is for cooler weather today.

Mrs. Katherine Walstead, 75 years old, of 559 Greenwich Street, fell yesterday afternoon as she started to walk up the front steps of the Franciscan Monastery at 151 Thompson Street. Father Tuttiarone administered last rites. When an ambulance arrived from St. Vincent's Hospital she was dead.

Wolf Wolfelson, 49 years old, of 139 Second Avenue, who was visiting friends at 2,969 West Thirty-third street, Brooklyn, was overcome by the heat. He was dead when a physician arrived from Coney Island Hospital.

The heat was an indirect cause of the death of Philip Vassell of West Broadway and Arlington Road, Cedarhurst, who was overcome while he was standing on the platform at Lynbrook waiting for the Long Beach train. He staggered and fell off the platform in front of the train and was instantly killed.

More than 750,000 persons sought to escape the heat by going to Coney Island. The crowds at Long Beach were said to be greater than any ever known there previously. About 20,000 automobiles were reported to have been parked there during the day.

Patrolman William Lau was assigned by Inspector Cummings to one of the most interesting jobs on the island yesterday. He was told to present with a summons every person whose bathing suit he did not consider sufficient to cover that person. He handed out sixty such summonses, the majority of offenders being men. They were charged with disorderly conduct and will be arraigned in Coney Island Police Court this morning.

Bayonne Police Fire a Dozen Shots in Auto Chase After Trio.

GAVE BAD BILLS FOR DRINKS

Identified by Bartender When Headquarters Warns Saloons to Be on Lookout.

Special to The New York Times.

BAYONNE, N. J., July 12.—Three men arrested here last night after a chase by police in automobiles, during which a dozen shots were fired, were turned over to the Federal authorities this morning charged with counterfeiting. The prisoners were identified by several Bayonne saloonkeepers, who said that spurious Federal bank notes in five-dollar denominations had been tendered to them.

The prisoners were Edward Ryan, 31 years old, of 311 Hudson Street; Herbert Gearheart, 28 years old, of 418 Jackson Avenue, and William Lawler, 29 years old, of 108 Adams Street, all of Hoboken. They will be arraigned tomorrow before United States Commissioner Stanton in that city.

About 8 o'clock last night the Bayonne police received a complaint from Joseph Jeciuch, a saloonkeeper at Avenue C and Fifty-fourth Street, that three men in his place had paid for drinks with a counterfeit five-dollar bill. This complaint was followed at brief intervals by others. The police finally notified all saloons of what was taking place. When, near midnight, three men answering descriptions given by the police appeared in the saloon of Hugh Boyle at 371 Avenue C, and paid their bill with a five-dollar note, Boyle excused himself on a plea of going for change and called the police.

The men became suspicious, however, and left the saloon before the police arrived. Boyle ran out and called Patrolmen Moylan and Nolan, who commandeered automobiles and gave chase. After firing twelve shots, the police finally forced the fugitives to stop, and arrested them.

FLEET WILL GUARD PLANES.

Commander of Air Forces Draws Lines for Pacific Flight.

HONOLULU, July 12 (AP).—Plans for guarding in Hawaiian waters the naval airplanes which are to make the trans-Pacific flight early in September were discussed yesterday aboard the United States steamship Langley by Captains S. E. Moses, Commander of the aircraft squadron of the battle fleet, and the staff commanders of the units which will patrol the waters from a point 1,950 miles from the mainland, around the islands of Hawaii and Maui.

The Navy Department has approved of the closing of the naval radio circuit at San Francisco, San Diego and Honolulu for all messages except those dealing with the flight during the 27 hours and 41 minutes which it is estimated the flight will take if a start is made from San Diego, or 26 hours and 9 minutes if San Francisco is the starting point.

Hospital Elects 5 New Directors.

Five new members have been elected to the Board of Directors of the Beekman Street Hospital, it was announced yesterday at the hospital. They are Harvey Gibson, President of the New York Trust Company; Samuel Streit, President of the New York Stock Exchange Clearance Committee; Fred Warburg of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., George Naumberg of E. Naumberg & Co. and Samuel Fuller of Kissel, Kinnicut & Co.

ON BOARD U. S. S. SEATTLE, PAGO PAGO, Samoa (via Honolulu), July 12.—With the exception of a thrilling incident at sea the American fleet completed the first leg of its Australian cruise without a major event. Lieutenant Harry J. Noble of the Medical Corps, Mine Squadron No. 2, Fleet Base Force, became suddenly ill on July 3 aboard the destroyer Ludlow, which carries no doctor. Noble diagnosed his own illness as propably appendicitis.

The Relief, the only vessel in any navy laid down as a hospital ship and wonderfully equipped for the purpose, had suffered a breakdown of machinery and fallen out of formation thirty miles astern the main column of the fleet. The Ludlow immediately turned around and steamed to the Relief.

Choppy seas were running and it was impossible for the destroyer to launch its own boat in order to transfer the sick man, who was in great pain.

The Relief, however, sent its ambulance boat, into which Noble was lowered and transferred. The Relief's surgeons kept Noble under three days' observation and finally diagnosed his illness as acute appendicitis, operating immediately and successfully. The sick man's condition is now reported good and he is on the road to recovery.

There is one officer aboard the fleet who is carrying with him an authenticated document which would make his wife the owner of some of the most valuable portion of the City of Sydney. The document belongs to Captain William A. Merritt, a member of Admiral Coontz's staff. It appears that Dr. William Balmain, a surgeon in the Royal Navy, came to Australia from Perth, Scotland, in the eighteenth century and between 1794 and 1800 obtained grants from the King of England of 1,245 acres, which now comprise important sites in Sydney.

Members of Balmain's family later emigrated to America, one of them serving on Washington's staff during the Revolution and being one of the founders of the Order of the Cincinnati. Balmain was a great-great-uncle of Captain Merritt's wife, and the document, which is Balmain's will, would make her heir to this property, but Captain Merritt points out such rights have long since expired and this will and a picture of Balmain, which he has with him—the original hangs in the library of Winchester, Va.—are really only evidence of the true liaison of feeling existing between Australia and the United States.

The fleet engaged in extensive manoeuvres during ten days at sea. Light cruisers catapulted seaplanes into the air and these circled about and alighted on the water, being pulled back on board with derricks. Gun-pointing, tactical and signal training were engaged in virtually every day.

Tonight Captain H. F. Bryan Governor of this possession, gave the armada a final send-off on the last stage of its journey to Melbourne and Sydney in the form of a farewell dinner to the commander-in-chief and various senior officers. Having refueled, the vessels leave to-morrow.

Get Man Sought in Hold-Up in 1921.

John Piecpko, a laborer, of 638 Grove Street, Jersey City, was arrested yesterday at 9 Oak Street, Manhattan, on a bench warrant by Detectives Kemp, O'Hara and Coffee of the Jersey squad. The police have been searching for him since Nov. 3, 1921, when four men held up and robbed Sprakl Hourish of 111 Goerck Street, Manhattan. They took $2,300 from Hourish, who appeared as complainant against Piecpko. Three men said to have participated in the robbery have already been arrested.

REPORTS ISOLATION OF CANCER ORGANISM

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

of areas with tar and other substances of a similar nature.

Details of the discovery are being closely guarded with the intention of setting forth in the coming official statement just what has been accomplished, it being desired to guard against the raising of false hopes among cancer sufferers. But it is stated that it is regarded that only a step has been made in the work which it is hoped to accomplish.

For some time it had been known that the Medical Institute had been working on the problem. The London Times on March 27, 1924, said:

"Interesting developments in the study of cancer are now taking place at the National Institute of Medical Research. A short time ago a micro-organism was isolated from that form of tumor which occurs in fowls and is known as chicken sarcoma. Then the idea presented itself of prefacing inoculation with an extract from bruised tissue so as to initiate the effects of a blow or other lesion. It is understood that when this was done a degree of success attended the experiment which has opened up a wide new field of effort."

The London Times now states:

"The work has advanced considerably since the Spring of 1924 and has been assisted by new methods of microscopy of a very interesting character. Of course, it is impossible at this stage to offer any opinion, since every reputed discovery of the causative germ of cacer must be carefully scrutinized by competent authorities before claims made for it can be admitted.

"Nor does it seem that the discovery to be described holds out any immediate prospect of treatment, although naturally if it is substantiated an immense step in this direction will have been taken."

Commenting on the development, The Daily Express says:

"Once more the brain and soul of man have triumphed. While the clatter of international bickerings and the stress of industrial life have been going on a little group of devoted men of science have been laboring here in London trying to find the secret of the deadly scourge of cancer. They had to face discouragement and apathy and they knew the crime of raising false hope by premature announcement.

"At last, however, they have decided to speak, to give their message to the world, and the message which will be given this week will be, 'We have discovered the cause of cancer.'

"It will be impossible to suppress the joy and pride with which this British discoverer, financed by British taxpayers' money, will be received. Yet it is necessary to point out that this is only a base from which to launch the ultimate offensive—discovery of a cure for cancer. Whether a cure will be found or not for years is one of the secrets yet to be wrested by science. This much we know, though, that a great light has broken the long night of waiting, and that the shadows are lifting from the heart of man."

CLOSING OF MINES SEEMS LESS LIKELY

Feeling Grows That an Agreement Will Be Reached at Coal Wage Parley.

BOTH SIDES RENEW CHARGES

Lewis Again Says Peril of Work Calls for Pay Rise—Operators Deny Big Casualty List.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 12.—Official spokesmen of the anthracite miners assembled here for the joint wage conference with the operators, were silent today regarding developments, but there was an undercurrent of feeling among members of both sides that in some way a strike would be avoided. The attitude privately expressed by many was that an agreement eventually would be reached, despite present gloomy prospects and despite the report that the operators really do not desire arbitration, a proposal which the miners have rejected.

The operators today denied more charges made by the miners. In his address at the opening of the conference, John L. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers of America, declared that within the past two years 1,000 miners had been killed in the collieries, and more than 40,000 maimed and injured.

"When the miners ask for a 10 per cent. wage increase," he said, "they are asking you, the operators, to make it possible that a rightful price be paid for their services which demand such a sacrifice."

Anticipating a statement by the operators that increased wages would mean "increased cost in millions of dollars to the consumer," Mr. Lewis declared that "in that respect we measure the lives of our people against the value of the dollar, and hold that the interests of human lives rise superior to those of the dollar."

Call Charge "Too Highly Colored."

In an official statement issued today by the operators this picture of the anthracite region "as a shambles where yearly 20,000 men—400 a week—are carried out of the mines on stretchers," was characterized as "too highly colored to be taken seriously."

The operators said that "the stress now placed on the hazards of the employment as a reason for the wage increase suggests that this argument is resorted to because it is realized that comparison will show that anthracite workers' earnings are all really above those of other industries and that some other argument than the inadequacy of earnings must be found."

"If, as has been stated by the miners' representatives, 20,500 men are killed and 'maimed' yearly, the entire working force would have to be replaced every seven years—an obvious absurdity," adds the statement.

"Perhaps one-third of the anthracite mine accidents are compensatable—that is to say, serious enough to require that compensation be paid. The remainder include a scratch on the finger or a speck of coal dust in a man's eye. Every accident, however trivial, is investigated by company doctors and reported. That is the main reason for the large total.

"According to Government experts, there are twenty more dangerous employments than anthracite mining, which is surrounded by every possible safeguard.

See No Menace from Substitutes.

"There are 42,500,000 man days of work a year in the anthracite industry. Figuring that there are 6,500 serious accidents per year, it is apparent that a man takes the risk of being injured once in 6,545 days, or about twenty-four working years."

The operators have based their refusal to grant the wage increase demanded by the miners upon the alleged fact that the industry will not absorb the increase because of the competition of other fuels.

The miners have formally denied that such competition seriously affects the sale of anthracite and it was unofficially pointed out here today, as a fact generally known, that such substitutes cannot be used without special and more or less expensive equipment, anthracite still being the peer of heating agents.

It was also declared that the operators, contrary to their statement, can increase the cost of coal somewhat to meet the wage increase, Samuel D. Warriner of Philadelphia, Chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Conference, having declared that anthracite is selling for less than before the agreement of 1923, providing room for an increase.

The next meeting of the joint committee will be held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Hotel Traymore, and meetings will probably be held each day of next week thereafter until Saturday, when there will be adjournment until July 27.

CALLS MOVES INEFFECTIVE.

Norman Thomas Sees No Constructive Plans Offered in Coal Parley.

Norman Thomas, executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy, made public yesterday the first statement by H. S. Raushenbush, secretary of the committee recently appointed by the league to study and publish the facts in the coal situation. Mr. Raushenbush declares that "we are approaching a deadlock with no constructive suggestions either by the operators or by any Government body."

"The operators simply protest inability to pay a higher wage scale," said the statement, "and the Federal Trade Commission, having pointed out how the consumers are exploited in the face of a threatening coal shortage, suggests the impossible remedy of more competition and the ineffective remedy of more publicity."

The statement says that competition and publicity have been tried for twenty years and have not helped the situation, but have confused it.

THIS is our great "Last Yardages Sale". Reductions are $5 to $20. You can have an Arnheim woolen made to order for as little as $35. If you have followed clothing prices here and elsewhere, you know how low this really is....These fabrics are cut simply because each has been popular, because each is down to its last yardage.

This means:

Fabrics that were $40—$50 now made to order for $35
Fabrics that were $50—$60 now made to order for $40
Fabrics that were $60—$70 now made to order for $50

Good woolens need never be reduced. Most custom tailors never reduce them. But it is the Arnheim policy to dispose of each season's stock while the season is on—hence this opportunity offered once each year by Arnheim and only by Arnheim.

Looking Forward

TO insure one's life is every man's plain duty to his heirs. But that duty goes further. It is the heirs' right to expect him to take measures to conserve for them the insurance that he leaves.

The safest way to accomplish this is to appoint a Trustee of unquestioned standing and financial strength. This Company not only qualifies in these respects but is in a certain strategic position to invest Trust Funds to advantage.

UNCLE OF WILSON AN EVOLUTIONIST

Rev. Dr. James Woodrow Was Tried by Presbyterian Assembly in 1887 on His Views.

ACQUITTED BUT WARNED

Future President, Then at Johns Hopkins, Attended Notable Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 12.—No less a person than the late Rev. Dr. James Woodrow, uncle of Woodrow Wilson, once believed and taught that evolution as a scientific possibility was entirely outside the realm of theology and the Bible, and, while defining the fact of creation, was most eloquently silent as to the method.

The statement was made here tonight by the Rev. Dr. Thornton Whaling, Professor of Theology at the Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., a former student of Dr. Woodrow at the Presbyterian Seminary in Columbia, S. C., and one of the defenders of Dr. Woodrow when the latter was tried for heresy for his expressed beliefs before the General Assembly in Baltimore in 1887.

"Dr. Woodrow believed, as I believed, that evolution, as a biological hypothesis, had no more to do with the Bible and theology than the multiplication table," said Dr. Whaling.

"As a matter of fact, although Dr. Woodrow was the recipient of one of those 'Scotch' verdicts at the hands of the General Assembly, 'Not guilty, but be careful to not do it again,' nevertheless, to avoid further agitation in the Presbyterian Seminary, where he occupied the Perkins Chair as Professor of the Relation of Religion and Science, Dr. Woodrow was retired, afterward becoming President of the University of South Carolina.

"Strangely enough, in 1911 I myself became President of the Presbyterian Seminary and was requested to occupy the same chair from which Dr. Woodrow was compelled to resign, and did so—with the expressed stipulation that I was to be allowed to expound the same belief held by my predecessor."

"I suppose that the evolution trial in Dayton has brought back vivid memories to Southern folk of that famous trial of Dr. Woodrow for his expressed beliefs," he said. "Let me tell you something of Dr. Woodrow:

"His father, Thomas Woodrow, was a Scotch Presbyterian. He preached in Carlisle, England, and later emigrated to Canada; thence to Ohio. James Woodrow, the son, was graduated from Washington and Jefferson College in Pennsylvania.

"Later he studied abroad and received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Leipsic. He was a great student of biology as well as theology, and a linguist as well.

"Before accepting the professorship at the Presbyterian Seminary in Columbia, S. C., he had taught at Oglethorpe University in Georgia.

"Although he taught theology for twenty-five years, and studied biology all that while, nevertheless at the outset Dr. Woodrow first taught that evolution seemed an unlikely theory. It was only after long study of the scientific hypothesis advanced that his conviction changed—with the maturity of twenty-five years.

"Then he began to believe that the theory of evolution, whether true or false, was in no way contradictory of the story of Genesis. He announced that he would expound that theory to the students. The Board of Directors of the seminary at first complied with that announcement.

"Meanwhile William Adams, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Augusta, Ga., filed charges of heresy in that connection against Dr. Woodrow with the Presbytery in Augusta. Dr. Woodrow was tried and found guilty. He appealed the sentence to a higher court—the Synod at Atlanta, Ga. The Synod upheld the findings of the Presbytery and the case shortly thereafter was brought before the General Assembly in Baltimore. That was in 1887.

"The trial was of intense interest, and its outcome from the very beginning was doubtful.

"Woodrow Wilson, later to become President, was at that time a Fellow at Johns Hopkins. He attended the trial and sat near me. The late President's father, Dr. Woodrow's brother-in-law, and also a professor at the Presbyterian Seminary, was there, too.

"Well, some sort of a compromise was arrived at. It was tantamount to saying that Dr. Woodrow had been found guilty of the charge preferred and advised to abandon his intention of teaching the fact of creation and the mode of creation as separate entities.

"That advice, however, Dr. Woodrow declined to accept. He announced his intention of teaching along the lines he had previously contemplated. The Board of Directors of the Seminary, not caring to create more agitation at the institution, caused his withdrawal."

"I filed a legal document of protest with the General Assembly against their decision," Dr. Whaling concluded. He stressed the fact that Dr. Woodrow had attempted to draw a distinction between evolution of the body and that of the soul.

"Evolution, according to Dr. Woodrow—and according to me," he added, "is, hypothetically, a theory dealing with the mode of creation. Creation, as defined in Genesis, is the fact."

LABOR SEEKS NEW ORGAN.

British Socialist Leaders Rivals for Purchase of Reynold's News.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, July 12.—Negotiations for the sale of Reynolds's Illustrated News to J. H. Thomas, M. P., Colonial Secretary in the late Labor Government and present Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, are in progress, according to The Morning Post. J. Wheatley, M. P., Minister of Health in the Labor Government, is mentioned as bidder against Thomas.

Mr. Wheatley was leader of extremist opinion in the MacDonald Administration, while Mr. Thomas belongs to the more moderate school.

Reynolds's is a Sunday newspaper established in 1842. It always has been regarded as an advanced Liberal publication, and the possibility of its being owned by the leader of either of the two wings of the Socialist Party is a development that is interesting all London. The paper is now owned by Lord Dalziel.

SHOT, WON'T TELL BY WHOM

Man Hit Twice by Bullets Fired From an Automobile.

Two men driving swiftly along Cherry Street in an automobile shortly before last midnight fired three shots at a man on the sidewalk in front of 419. Two of the shots took effect and the man fell. A policeman took him to Gouverneur Hospital, where he said he was William Cody, 21 years old, a carpenter's helper, of 676 Water Street. He had been shot in the right thigh and left hand.

Detectives were sent to question him and when he was asked who shot him he replied:

"You are detectives, aren't you? Well you find out, that's what you are paid for."

POLICE IN MID-STREAM SUBDUE HIGHWAYMEN

Philadelphia Officers Win Fifteen-Minute Struggle in Twenty Feet of Water.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12 (AP).—Two alleged highwaymen were captured early today after a thrilling battle with policemen in the darkness and in twenty feet of water. After struggling for fifteen minutes in Pennyback Creek, on the outskirts of the city, the policemen beat the men into submission with the butt ends of their pistols and swam ashore with them.

The prisoners, who were identified by the victims of the hold-up, said they were James McMonigle and Harry Meenan. They were held without bail by a Magistrate on a charge of highway robbery.

Acting Lieutenant Dennison and Patrolmen Luckman and Schemm started in a bandit-chasing automobile in pursuit of the men, who were also in an automobile, a few minutes after John H. Eckard and Miss Hilda Klock reported that they had been held up and robbed of $7.19 on the Roosevelt Boulevard. Pistol shots failed to halt the fleeing men.

Reaching Pennypack Creek, they abandoned their motor car and plunged into the water. The policemen, only a few feet behind, also jumped into the creek and swam after them. They overtook McMonigle and Meenan in mid-stream and the battle started. The fugitives were holding their own until the officers brought the butts of their pistols into play.

PLASTERERS VOTE TO GO ON WITH FIGHT

Operative Association Gives Executive Board Power to Act.

CLEVELAND, July 12 (AP).—More than 200 representatives of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers' International Association, at the close of a two days' conference here today, adopted a resolution empowering the Executive Board to carry on the jurisdictional fight with the Bricklayers,' Masons' and Plasterers' International Union.

Officials of the first union charge that the Bricklayers' Union is trying to absorb it. This is denied by the bricklayers.

Before leaving for New York tonight, Edward J. McGivern, International President of the Plasterers' Union, commented on a letter issued by the Bricklayers' Union printed today.

"Prior to the existing disagreement between the two bodies," the McGivern statement says, "the Bricklayers' Association has periodically reached out its long arm and gathered into its fold several of the smaller trades, such as the tile setters, stone masons and marble cutters.

"There is no doubt in all these cases it had no desire to absorb, but time found the steam roller getting in its work, and the future of these associations was entrusted to the bricklayers."

KILLS 1, WOUNDS 5 IN DUEL

Kentucky Monshiner Is Finally Caught in Mountains by Posse.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISA, Ky., July 12.—Word has reached here from the mountain wilds of Martin County of a reign of terror reported started by a man said to be Millard Jenkins, alleged moonshiner, in which one man was killed, two others were wounded and three women were shot.

Frank James, member of a hastily organized sheriff's posse, was the man slain. The names of the five wounded persons are not known here.

The story says that Jenkins, on the first day of the outbreak fought several persons at Big Creek, in which he shot the two men and three women.

In that almost impassable section of the mountains there is a resident Deputy Sheriff, and the frightened residents sent to Inez, the Martin County seat, for help.

Early next morning Sheriff John Fletcher organized a posse, deputized young James and went to Big Creek.

Jenkins, the report says, opened fire at once, James being killed. Jenkins then tried to escape into the fastnesses of the hills, but the others captured him and put him in the Inez jail.

James was 25 years old and unmarried. It was his first trip as member of a Sheriff's posse. His mother, Mrs. Allen James, did not want him to go.

TRIES TO CHOP DOWN HOTEL

Oliver Eastwood, Actor, Arrested as He Hacks at Arch With Fire Axe.

Oliver Eastwood, 35 years old, an actor and author, who said he had written the story from which Leon Gordon wrote "The Piker," starring Lionel Barrymore, was arrested early yesterday morning on the third floor of the Hotel Alamac, Seventy-first Street and Broadway, while hacking at an arch with a fire axe. Eastwood explained after his arrest that he had been "out on a party." He was arraigned in the West Side Court on charges of disorderly conduct. He was released under a suspended sentence on his promise to pay the hotel $100 for the damage he had done. Eastwood lives at 55 East Fifty-ninth Street, but he could not be found there yesterday.

Eastwood, the police said, wandered into the hotel at 4:30 A. M. yesterday and walked unobserved to the third floor. There he found the fire axe on the wall, they said, wrenched it down, and began chopping the arch. Guests were aroused and telephoned to the desk that a man was wrecking the hotel. House Detective Norman McConnell went to investiagte and arrested Eastwood at the point of a pistol.

Eastwood said in court that he was to take the place tonight of Allen Davis in "White Cargo." Davis is now recovering from wounds recently inflicted by his wife.

POLAND ACTS FOR ITS JEWS.

Cabinet Department Provides for Wider Education and Freedom.

WARSAW, Poland, July 12 (AP).—The Cabinet department having to do with regulations concerning minority populations, presided over by Premier Grabski, has adopted a series of resolutions intended to give effect to the Government's recent promise to improve the conditions of the Jewish population.

The resolutions provide, among other things, permission for the free use of Hebrew and Yiddish in Jewish religious communities, the establishment of some State primary schools, where the pupils may observe the Jewish Sabbath, and stipulates that the pupils of certain Jewish primary and secondary normal schools may acquire full rights in public schools and that Jewish pupils in public schools shall not be obliged to do writing on the Sabbath.

Jewish soldiers are to have facilities for the exercise of their religion, notably arrangements for securing a supply of kosher meat.

Congressmen Leave Manila for China

MANILA, July 12 (AP).—The transport Chaumont, carrying eleven American members of Congress who have been visiting Manila and near-by points, left yesterday morning for China. They will visit Hongkong, Shanghai and Yokohama.

RUSBY'S SUGGESTION SCOUTED BY BRYAN

He Says Ban on Degrees From Anti-Evolution Colleges Would Affect Few Students.

IDEA FINDS SUPPORTERS

Anti-Evolution Laws Would Prevent Adequate Training in All Sciences, It Is Argued.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 12.—Dr. Henry H. Rusby's suggestion that the large universities of the country refuse to accept credits and recognize degrees from colleges in States where scientific research is hindered by anti-evolution laws, got from William Jennings Bryan today the comment that the people of Tennessee "will feel more interested in the religion of the ninety and nine who do not graduate from any great institution of learning than in any educational system that can be given to the one by an institution that teaches man is nothing but an improved animal."

"A small percentage of the students of any State go to a university," said Mr. Bryan, "and of these a still smaller percentage go to Columbia University. We are trying this case, and we shall not be led away from the issue by speculations on either side."

Walter White, Superintendent of public schools of Rhea County and prosecutor in the Scopes trial, asserted he was not surprised by Dr. Rusby's suggestion.

Entering Wedge to Battle.

"The Dean's suggestion," he said, "bears out my belief that this fight (the Scopes trial) is the entering wedge in a battle which will be world-wide for educational institutions that are based on the Christian religion. Just as soon as the Legislatures of several States convene they will enact laws similar to Tennessee's anti-evolution law. I already have a statement from a member of Congress that he is willing to introduce an anti-evolution bill in the next Congress to withhold financial aid from any college or university that teaches any theory of evolution that denies the biblical origin of man."

Dr. C. F. Potter, pastor of the West Side Unitarian Church, one of the prospective witnesses in the Scopes trial, said:

"Dr. Rusby's proposal smacks too much of the dogmatism of Fundamentalism itself. All Fundamentalist colleges should be examined as to their science teaching and credits refused if their standards fall below that recognized by the Association of American Universities and Colleges. There would be no need then to refuse to recognize degrees from Fundamentalist colleges."

Dr. Randolph Neal, President of the John Randolph Neal College of Law, Knoxville, Tenn., former Dean of the University of Tennessee Law School and chief counsel for Scopes, said:

"Dr. Rusby's suggestion bears out our assertions that an anti-evolution law would help paralyze education in Tennessee. Our men and women from our normal schools would not be accepted as students for work in other colleges. We have not yet had the money to build up good graduate schools in our own universities and we cannot afford to shut the doors of Eastern institutions to our men for graduate work. This is the first indication that our attitude to the law is justified."

W. M. Goldsmith, Professor of Biology, Southwestern University, Winfield, Kan., a prospective witness in the trial, said:

Would Investigate Colleges.

"I would not make a wholesale slaughter of the American Fundamentalist colleges, but I certainly would establish some system of investigating whether they accord with the development of the American system of education."

Watson Davis, managing editor of Science Service, Washington, observed:

"Anti-evolution laws strictly interpreted and enforced would prevent adequate training and education in all the sciences, including medicine, biology, geology, engineering and sociology. Such laws create an unfortunate, archaic state of mind in all branches of learning. For these reasons exclusion of those reared under such limiting circumstances would be justified, provided exceptions could be made for exceptional individuals who could through special effort rise above their adverse environment."

Clarence Darrow of Chicago, attorney for Scopes, remarked:

"The carrying out of Dean Rusby's proposal is the only way we have got to protect science from the bigoted States. I am glad the suggestion has been made."

CALLS RUSBY PLAN HASTY.

Louisville Educators Favor Waiting Upon Developments.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 12.—Discussing today Dean Rusby's suggestion President A. Y. Ford of the University of Louisville said:

"Off hand, it would seem by far more advisable to consider such a suggestion as hasty. However, on its face it is very sweeping at best. It would be wiser, in my opinion, to await the effects of such laws as the anti-evolution law on the work of scientific institutions before taking any steps as radical as those proposed by Dean Rusby."

Chancellor John L. Patterson of the University of Louisville said:

"The States have a right to pass any laws in keeping with individual rights, and in view of that fact the steps suggested by Dr. Rusby's report seem not only hasty, but of a radical nature."

Professor B. M. Brigman, Dean of the Speed Scientific School, said:

"At present the suggestion of Dean Rusby seems to me to be a little too far-fetched. Until the outcome of this little flurry of the seeming anti-scientists is known judgment on such a weighty matter as that proposed would be premature."

OPPOSITION IN CHARLESTON.

But Dean Wilson Favors Rusby Plan for Biology Credentials.

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 12.—Concerning Dean Rusby's proposal, Dean Robert Wilson of the Medical College of the State of South Carolina, said:

"I am uncertain if it would be just to refuse to recognize educational credentials in general from colleges in which a legal ban has been placed on the teaching of evolution, but it would be perfectly proper to decline to accept credentials in biology from such a college.

"Inasmuch as biology is a fundamental requirement for the study of medicine and evolution a fundamental requirement for the study of biology, the credentials in biology from an institution in which evolution is a forbidden topic might be discredited properly."

Rutledge River, prominent lawyer in South Carolina, President of the Board of Trustees of the College of Charleston, and a former member of the State Board of Education of South Carolina, said:

"I am opposed to Dean Rusby's suggestion that the larger universities penalize colleges in States so unfortunate as to have Legislatures that have curtailed scientific investigation of any nature. I think it regrettable that any Legislature should pass such laws, for it is the purpose of the schools to teach and not to suppress.

"The schools should teach the eminent theories for their own worth and then it is up to the pupil to decide whether or not he thinks them right or wrong. Then he will learn that science and religions are not antagonistic.

"Boys and girls reared and educated in Tennessee institutions are not responsible for any prohibitory laws that the Legislature may have passed. Students who desire to enter any university and have the proper requirements should be allowed to enter. If through the banning of evolution or any other subject, however, their credits are not up to the requirements they should be barred simply because they are not prepared."

NO BAN AT JOHNS HOPKINS.

Professor Moss Confident University Can Open Students' Minds.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, July 12.—Commenting on the suggestion that universities should refuse to recognize degrees or educational credentials from colleges in States where scientific research is hindered by evolution bans, Professor Joseph S. Moss, Acting President of Johns Hopkins University, said today:

"Much as every university must deplore any interference with the search for truth by scientific investigations, Johns Hopkins University has had from its foundation the policy of considering mainly the qualifications of the students who apply for admission and only secondarily the character of the colleges from which they come.

"In other words, the doors of Johns Hopkins University will be open to eager students, regardless of the obvious defects of certain institutions from which they may come. The university is confident of its ability to open their minds to the proper approach to knowledge."

STRATON IS ASKED TO TESTIFY AT DAYTON

Pastor Offers Information About Rejection by Museum Here of Alleged Scientific Proof.

The Rev. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, announced last night that he had accepted an invitation to be a prosecution witness in the Scopes trial. The invitation was extended by William Jennings Bryan in a telegram to the pastor's Summer home at Greenwood Lake, N. Y.

The invitation was interpreted as indicating that the prosecution feared failure of its attempt to bar out scientific testimony. Judge Raulston is expected to rule on the admissibility of such evidence at Dayton this morning.

The clergyman's message of acceptance was as follows:

William Jennings Bryan, Dayton, Tenn.

Will gladly come. Telegraph Greenwood Lake, N. Y. I prepared article on evolution for new edition of 'Standard International Bible Encyclopedia' just coming from press. Am prepared to show Hebrew of Genesis and teaching of Scripture throughout utterly incompatible with evolution.

Can also give valuable information regarding refusal of scientists in museum here to accept fossil horseshoe sole, antedating alleged time of man's appearance on earth, taken from cretaceous gravel antedating entire alleged evolution of horse from little five-toed animal, &c. Have pictures, affidavits from research experts, whom scientists here turned down. God guide you!

JOHN ROACH STRATON.

In the course of his sermon last night Dr. Straton told his congregation that he might soon be going to Tennessee.

"The Governor of Tennessee," he said, "recently said that it would be better for the country to do away with the schools and to keep the Bible. I stand behind the Governor in that statement. I have just received an invitation from Mr. Bryan saying to me that if it is decided to import outside scientists and professors to testify in the Scopes trial, he wants me to come to Dayton.

"He wants me to testify in the trial with the other clergymen and the really Christian scientists who will doubtless be invited to hear their testimony. If the need arises, I will certainly go to Dayton and bear my testimony against evolution as an untrue theory.

"I think that I may be able to give them some facts on the scientific side of the issue. As, for example, the recent exposure of the frauds of Mr. Carl Akeley of the American Museum of Natural History, as exposed by no less a person than Sir E. Ray Lankester, one of the greatest living English scientists."

WANT BRYAN TO HEAD A NEW DAYTON COLLEGE

Fundamentalists Talk of National Co-Educational Institution Based on Bible.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 12.—Walter White, Superintendent of Public Schools of Rhea County and prosecutor in the Scopes trial, announced today that citizens of Dayton are planning to establish here a Fundamentalist college and invite William Jennings Bryan to become its President.

"We got the suggestion only this morning," said Mr. White, "but we shall act on it immediately. I shall see Mr. Bryan about becoming its President either tomorrow or next day.

"Of course, we do not expect Mr. Bryan to remain in Dayton all the time after the college is in operation. We shall expect him only to be its directing officer, with a Dean resident here to take care of the routine work of the institution's operation.

"If we established a Fundamentalist college, men and women all over the country who admire and follow Mr. Bryan in his fight on the enemies of the Bible would send their sons and daughters to be educated here.

"Yes, we plan to have the institution co-educational. We have plenty of land on the outskirts of the town which would be donated for the purpose, and we think money could be raised for buildings and endowment by a nation-wide campaign for funds. Such an appeal would bring money from all believers in the Bible as revealed religion."

Mr. White said the proposed institution would be non-sectarian but religious.

Mr. Bryan would not say whether he would accept Mr. White's offer.

$55,000 for Brace Newsboys Home.

Gifts totaling $55,000 have been received by the Brace Memorial Newsboys Home, 244 William Street, which is undergoing extensive repairs, it was announced yesterday by William Lewis Butcher, Superintendent of the home. Edwin Gould contributed $25,000, William H. Wheelock $15,000, Thomas W. Lamont $10,000 and Arthur Curtiss James $5,000. The Children's Aid Society, of which the Newsboys Home is a subsidiary, has already contributed $125,000. An additional $75,000 will be needed.

switchboard somewhere and study until I can hold a better job. There is nothing wrong with my congregation. This is merely a sample of small-town mass psychology. It could not be helped.

"Infidelity inside the church is what hurts religion. Men like Darrow don't do any harm. They are honest, everybody knows how they feel, and they live true to their philosophy.

"The people in the churches who make believe they know the Bible from cover to cover and don't act on it are the ones who make the trouble. Back of this Fundamentalist wave are Calvinistic theologians using Bryan as their tool, and I don't believe he knows it."

Threat to Wreck Church.

Dr. Potter was unwilling to have Mr. Byrd leave his calling on his account and said that under the circumstances he would withdraw his acceptance of the invitation to occupy the pulpit. Then he put up this bulletin on the window of Robinson's drug store, the Fundamentalists' local forum:

"Dr. Potter has canceled his evolution sermon at the Methodist Episcopal Church owing to the threat of the congregation."

He explained later that the "threat" referred to the visit of more than half of the congregation in a body last night to the parsonage where they told Mr. Byrd that if the New Yorker were to preach in the Methodist edifice they would "wreck the church."

There was some dismay among the townsfolk when they realized the situation which has been caused by Mr. Byrd's renunciation of his ministry. Postmaster S. C. Patten, who is the principal member of his church, had nothing but kind words for Mr. Byrd, despite his liberal beliefs.

When Mr Patten was asked if there would be an attempt to bring about a reconciliation between factions in the congregation and persuade Mr. Byrd to stay, he was noncommittal and indicated that, although he regretted what had happened, there might not be a serious attempt to persuade Mr. Byrd to stay.

Dr. John R. Neal, chief of counsel for Scopes, said he had been consulted by Mr. Byrd the night before and strongly advised him not to resign, at least until the trial is over.

This was a day of religious meetings, at which William Jennings Bryan was the most active figure. He spoke in the morning at the Sunday school, while Judge John T. Raulston sat in a front pew, and in the afternoon in the court house yard, and attracted the largest crowds which have yet come to Dayton. Fully 3,000 persons gathered on the lawn, as many as possible getting in the shade of the trees, but scores of them standing in the glare of the summer sun.

Bryan's Sermons Add to Strain.

His activity increased the strained relations between the opposing counsel. Attorney General Stewart, in breaking the agreement to argue on Monday the admissibility of evidence, said he was tired of the theatricals and extra-legal aspects of this case and that hereafter it would be conducted in an orderly and legal manner.

"What is that," asked a man connected with the defense, pointing to the huge crowd on the lawn under the court room windows "but an attempt to influence the judgment of this community? How can they make a statement of that kind in connection with our honest endeavor to save ourselves $10,000 or $15,000 if scientific witnesses are to be included?

"The agreement was nothing but an agreement of convenience, and if we are not to know what situation we will face, we must prepare as best we can and bring our witnesses here anyway. They will at least spoil the symmetry of our case and force us to ask many eminent and busy men, some of them old men to whom this journey for nothing would be a hardship, to come here on the chance that their trip may be for nothing. Not one of these scientific witnesses who have volunteered for the defense is being paid.

Defense to Fight for Agreement.

"We will try to hold them to their agreement, but of course cannot do so if they persist."

There are bound to be some hot exchanges between Stewart and Darrow over this question when court reconvenes tomorrow, for the Chicago lawyer was reported to be "fighting mad." The decision to end the agreement was made by Mr. Stewart late on Saturday afternoon, and he went to the house where the counsel for the defense are staying to tell them what he intended to say.

Dr. Neal met him there, and said today that he supposed he conveyed to Mr. Stewart that an abrogation of the agreement would not be consented to by the defense.

At any rate, twenty minutes after Mr. Stewart left, Dr. Neal came into town and went to the Attorney General's office to serve notice on him and that the defense would attempt strenuously in court to persuade the State to abide by Friday's decision. Darrow is a master of bitter invective, and if chooses he can make things very lively for a few minutes.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South never held such a crowd as filled it this morning when Mr. Bryan rose in his shirt sleeves, and with the ever-present palm-leaf fan, to speak of the Florida climate and the democracy of the heart. His entrance into the church was greeted, as always here, no matter what the environment, by applause. He came in during a hymn, but that didn't stop Dayton any more than their presence in a courtroom repressed their exuberant greeting of him on Friday.

Dr. John R. Neal, chief of counsel for Scopes, who is doing his best to put evolution back into the State school books, occupied a seat on the platform of the church. He is a Methodist.

Judge Raulstone sat in front with his wife and daughters, and showed the liveliest appreciation. Mr. Bryan was welcomed by the Rev. Charles R. Jones as the "Ambassador of Jesus Christ our Lord," and the congregation applauded again.

Mr. Bryan said he was going to talk as he does to his Bible class in Florida, and referred to the remarkable weather there which permits them to hold services outdoors under the palm trees. He asked that if any members of the jury were present that they withdraw, so that there might be no objection later because of their having heard him, and then said that he rarely made a speech that was not misconstrued.

Mr. Bryan disclosed a remarkable divergence of belief in his own family. He is a Presbyterian, but his father was a Baptist and his mother a Methodist. He had to attend two Sunday schools as a boy because of this, and when he was 14 he struck out for himself and was converted to Presbyterianism. His oldest daughter is an Episcopalian, his son a Presbyterian and his youngest daughter a Congregationalist.

He said he believed in stressing the underlying faith in all churches, and that his principles were so fundamental he had been able to express them in a Jewish synagogue and had been supported by Roman Catholics.

Hymn Consoled in Loss of Election.

When he was first defeated for the Presidency, said Mr. Bryan, he felt relief rather than disappointment, and found much comfort in a hymn, the first line of which was: "If You Cannot in the Ocean Swim Among the Swiftest Fleets."

"God does not require you to do great things. God does not require you to hold high position, but we are held responsible not for mignificent things but for all we can do. Duty is measured by opportunity plus power."

When he traveled around the world and talked of government he always got into trouble, and when he talked of intellectual things he found that men differed greatly, but he had found that all men agreed on things of the heart.

"I fear the aristocracy of wealth, I respect the aristocracy of learning, but I thank God for the democracy of the heart," said Mr. Bryan and was vigorously applauded.

The God of the Ignorant and Learned.

"The mind is a machine, but the mind is controlled by the heart," he went on. "While God does not despise the learned, he does not give them a monopoly of His attention. The unlearned in this country are much more numerous than the learned.

"Hear are some figures I got from an Episcopalian clergyman,—not one in ten of our boys and girls who enter graded schools ever enters high school, and of those who enter high school only one-half finish. Only one in fifty of our boys and girls who enter graded schools enters a college or university. I think it safe to say that not over 1 per cent. of those entering graded schools ever graduate from college.

"I am an enthusiast for education, but we have to deal with conditions as they are. A religion that didn't appeal to any but college graduates would be over the head or under the feet of 99 per cent. of the people. The God I worship is the God of the ignorant as well as the God of the learned man.

"Thank God I am going to spend the latter years of my life in a locality where there is a belief in God, and in the Son of God and in a civilization to be based on salvation through blood."

Mr. Bryan was much upset today when he read the New York newspapers which gave prominence to his intention to put the Bible into the Constitution and immediately issued a denial. The speech in which he made his reference to the courts and the Constitution was the one which made such an impression on the attorney for the defense who heard it that they later issued a statement commenting on his "ambitious" program.

Fears Religious Evolutionists.

"The attorneys for the defense charge that our objection to expert testimony is an attempt to evade the issue," said Mr. Bryan "On the contrary it is an effort to confine the case to the issue.

"All the facts needed for the trial of this case are at hand, and can be furnished without any resort to so-called 'expert testimony.' We have the statute, which is perfectly clear, we have the textbook, which Professor Scopes used in his teaching, and we have the evidence of what he taught.

"The counsel for the defense have Mr. Scopes with his knowledge of science and his passion for scientific truth. What more do they need?

"If they were permitted to bring in expert testimony as to whether or not the statute contradicts the Bible, it would be unnecessary and improper because the statute itself distinctly forbids the teaching of the evolutionary hypothesis linking man with the lower forms of life.

"Then, too, their testimony would necessarily be one-sided. They would only summon the so-called theistic evolutionists. They know that evolution has led many into atheism like Nietzsche, for instance, but they will not call any atheists.

"They know that evolution has led a still greater number into agnosticism, like Darwin, for instance, but they will not call any agnostics. They will only call those who still cling to religion and try to harmonize evoution with it. They will thus present a very one-sided view of evolution and its results. A half truth is sometimes worse than a lie, and evolution as they want to present it is less than a half truth.

As to Putting God in Constitution.

"The other point is personal. I have noticed in two prominent newspapers a statement to the effect that I had started on a crusade to put God into the Constitution. I never answer criticisms or misrepresentations when they concern myself only, but this misrepresentation is intended to hurt our cause, and I am not willing that the cause should be injured by a misrepresentation of my utterances.

"I have never in my life used any phrase in speech or writing in favor of putting God into the Constitution. I have never advocated teaching the Bible in public schools. I have advocated reading of the Bible, but not teaching it.

"There is no reason why school children should not hear of Bible characters, as well as of other characters, like Confucius, but the purpose of this trial is not to secure even the reading of the Bible in the schools. It is merely to prevent attacks upon the Bible in the schools. It is merely to prevent attacks upon the Bible and the introduction of irreligion, or forms of religions antagonistic to the religion of the taxpayers.

Aims to Guard Children's Faith.

"Our purpose and our only purpose is to vindicate the right of parents to guard the religion of their children against efforts made in the name of science to undermine faith in supernatural religion. There is no attack on free speech or freedom of the press or freedom of thought, or freedom of knowledge, but surely parents have a right to guard the religious welfare of their children.

"This was decided in the recent Oregon case.

"The defense in the Tennessee case is insisting upon the right of an admitted minority to force their views upon the children in the schools in spite of the opposition of the majority. The defense will not be permitted to dodge the issue, or pose as martyrs. They are a militant minority, a little oligarchy of self-styled intellectuals attempting to force their views on the people through the public schools."

The views of Mr. Bryan and Mr. Stewart on "foreign" scientists have caused the defense to make a last minute change in their plans, and they will call a number of scientists from Tennessee colleges.

This was regarded as merely a concession to local feeling, for they had already been offered the services of enough prominent men of science to round out their case. They have a very definite view of the way in which it should be presented, and one of their reasons for feeling so bitterly over Mr. Stewart's objection to arguing the question of competency arises from the belief that it will mar their case by causing them to start without all their witnesses present.

COMMONER'S PLEA SWAYS PLAIN FOLK

Throngs From Hills Join All Dayton in Spiritual Ecstasy at Outdoor Service.

FEWER LISTEN TO POTTER

Doctrinal Foe Yields Place to New Yorker, Who Declares Faith in Deity, Bible and Man.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 12.—All of the Tennessee and Sequatchie Valley people came to Dayton to see Bryan today. They flocked into town long before church started and tried to force their way into the little frame building where he was teaching Sunday school. Disappointed there, they turned to the court house yard and sat about under the trees until it was time for him to speak in the afternoon.

They were plain people in plain clothes, and they seemed to be almost apathetic in their attitude. That was only on the surface, however, for any one who has been a few days among these people knows that their prejudices and their emotions are living things.

As they sat fanning themselves in the sultry yard they drank in Mr. Bryan's sermon, much the same that he preached in the morning, with the avid attention of men and women to whom his words were law and those who denied them evil persons.

Mr. Bryan's manner with these people is most persuasive. His voice seems to reach out and caress them with its gentle cadences; his arms stretch out over them as if they were those closest to his heart and he would gather them.

Says Religion Antedates Education.

Speaking on the subject, "He Calleth Thee," Mr. Bryan declared that religion was in the world before education, and continued:

"The doctrines of Christ have lived for 1,900 years and they have furnished so completee a moral code that no scholar has dared add a word to it. When the schools get through with our children they still have something else. The only advantage of an education is to increase their capacity for service.

"The dull man with a passion for service will render more service than a keen man with no passion for service."

Saying he had been drawn back into public life again by young men who thought it smart to be skeptical, the Commoner told of visiting the colleges to shame these youths out of their conceit.

"It is possible to carry education so far that a person will look down upon religion as a superstition," he said. "Jesus and the Christian religion are the only hopes for world peace today."

In the evening there was another crowd, much smaller, to hear the Rev. Charles Francis Potter speak from the platform where Mr. Bryan had talked a few hours before. He had planned to speak at the Methodist Episcopal Church, but the objection of the congregation prevented him.

Mr. Potter was put to it to find a place to talk, for T. T. Martin, an anti-evolutionist who has been selling books on his subject, had the permission of the Judge and the sheriff to speak at the Court House every evening. He does not talk on evolution, however, for that subject is taboo on the town grounds. When Mr. Martin heard of Mr. Potter's predicament, he said it was only fair that Mr. Potter be given an opportunity to talk and he offered to give up his time, provided the subject of evolution was not touched upon.

Potter Appeals Against Prejudice.

"When I was excluded from one of the churches of this town this morning and not permitted to preach because of the prejudice of the congregation against my kind of religion, I was not left without a place to preach," said Mr. Potter in his address.

"I do not feel badly about it and I certainly do not hate my orthodox opponent. I agree with Edwin Markham, who said:

> He drew a circle to shut me out,
> Heretic, rebel, a thing to clout;
> But love and I had the will to win,
> We drew a circle which took him in.

"You see, the trouble with certain religious people is that they condemn other religions without knowing anything about them. Consequently, I am going to give those who have never really heard what Liberals and Progressives in religion really believe a chance to hear it tonight.

"You may have heard what we don't believe, for some talk too much about that side of it. But it is the constructive side that is important after all, so I ask your unprejudiced attention while I tell you some beliefs which are very dear to my heart.

"The four points in my belief are these:

"I believe in Jesus, in the Bible, in God and in man.

"I believe in Jesus because He was himself a great Progressive. He said: 'Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, but I say unto you this.'

"I believe in the Bible because it is the record of the progress of a great race in the search for God.

"I believe in God, for He has been the great force and power behind all progress.

"Finally, I believe in man because of his eternal inner urge toward progress and growth. Some one has said that human nature never changes, but a wiser man has said that it is human nature to change.

"If we have faith in man and believe in him, if we have hope of his growth upward and onward forever, and, above all, if we act in the spirit of love toward him, all our problems will gradually be solved by Paul's great formula, Faith, hope and love, and the greatest of these is love."

The vital religious question at stake in these two divergent stories of creation, one in the language of modern science and the other in the language of ancient prophets, is the nature of the Bible and the manner, or sense, in which it is inspired. Is the Bible true in exact literal and mathematical and scientific sense? It should be observed that this question is somewhat different from the one as to whether or not God inspired the writers of the Bible or whether God dictated the Bible to these writers."

Cites Inaccuracy of Language.

Even accepting the view that the writers were inspired, the Secretary held, the truths as God communicated them must have filtered through the minds of imperfect men and have been influenced by the capacity of men to understand them, while there was the further difficulty that language was never an accurate mode of expressing thought.

"Man, it says in Genesis, was created from the dust of the earth," said Mr Wilbur. "The evolutionist will tell you that this is exactly what he claims, that man is the result of a process of creation extending from the protoplasm which lived in the mud to the present form of human life. The great difference in the two stories is in the time involved. Was it a day or a million or a hundred million years from the time that God took the dust of the earth until man was created? It is easy to assert, and it is true, that there cannot be a conflict between scientific and religious truths because there is only one true history of creation. There cannot be a conflict between the truth of science and the truth of religion. Nevertheless our ideas about truth and the ideas of others may be and frequently are in serious conflict.

"The Bible story of creation as we have taught it for several hundred years does conflict with the evolutionist theory of creation. Consequently those who see in the teaching of evolution in the public school a menace to religion are correct insofar as they see a menace to the Bible story of creation as we have taught it. If we build religion not upon the rock Christ Jesus, but upon the fundamental assumption that every word in the Bible always has been and always will be the literal and complete expression of the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, as modern minds apprehend that truth, we find at once irreconcilable conflicts between the ideas of modern scientific men and this fundamental assumption.

"The Bible is not only a book, it is a fact. It is just as much a fact as the earth itself. The Bible, like the world, demands an explanation, a cause for its existence. We can explain the world by saying God created it, and we can explain the Bible by saying God wrote it. If these explanations are satisfactory we do not have to go further, but if an inquiring mind asks how did He create it, we find ourselves involved in a study of the great problems of creation, a study which has been going on for centuries and will continue for centuries more, and if we inquire into the question of how God wrote the Bible we are met by the fact that it was addressed to human intelligence and that human agencies have been employed in its production."

Says Genesis Was Handed Down.

Taking up the biblical account of creation, Secretary Wilbur told of similar accounts antedating Genesis found in the ruins of Nippur, Babylon and Nineveh and said the story in Genesis probably had been handed down from generation to generation until it finally was written under the inspiration of God.

"The Bible story presents man as created in the image of God, in the state of perfection," said Mr. Wilbur. "Because of sin he fell into a lower state and now is striving with the help of God to recover his lost estate. Evolution presents man as always developing upward. It presents the thought of possibilities yet undreamed of. This seems to be in line with the thought of Christ, that men would constantly get better, and men would outdo the miracles He performed and accomplish more by their teaching and preaching than He was able to accomplish.

"The Christian life here and the heavenly life hereafter is wrapped up in the problem of doing the will of God. Men have always had before them the opportunities to choose the higher and better things or the lower and degrading things. Evolution presents this choice as having existed from the very dawn of life on this earth, and suggests to us that man has attained to his present state and development because of the fact that in the various stages of that development through millions of years his ancestors, from the primordial cell through the various intermediate forms of life, have been obedient to the will of God and to His plans for their development.

"I must say that it appeals to me to think of this time in which we are living as a time when men have so far developed in their physical and mental equipment that their immortal destiny, their power to lay hold of eternal life, depends upon their willingness to reach [illegible] extended hand of a loving God."

Uncertain of His Own Belief.

Secretary Wilbur declared he was not sure what he believed about evolution, but pointed out that the theory was generally accepted by scientists and seemed to be in accord with the methods of creation we see about us. But as he surveyed the wonders of the living world, he said, he found himself staggered.

"It seems to me that evolution cried out for a creator, for an architect, for a director," he said, "and that to believe in evolution necessarily involves the idea that there must have been a plan."

Man's salvation, the Secretary said, did not depend on his belief as to how God created the universe; it depended on belief in God and His Son. But he warned against the supercilious attitude that used evolution to get rid of the God concept.

"Let the scientific teacher beware of dissipating God into a vacuum and of trying to teach pupils that man, as it were, has lifted himself by his own bootstraps from the protoplasmic state into his present condition." Mr. Wilbur exclaimed. "When such scientists have solved all the problems of life, when they are able to take the protoplasm and develop it into a full grown man, a statesman, or a soldier to lead a nation in time of trouble, a minister to inspire a man with hope and with courage—when all this has been done it will be time enough for the scientists to begin dogmatizing concerning the creation of life. And when they have been able, not only to do this, but to form the protoplasm with which they began from nothing and endow it with life and project it into full manhood, then it will be time enough for them to deny that God was needed in the creation."

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 12.—John H. Bartlett, former Governor of New Hampshire and now First Assistant Postmaster General, in the light of his Postoffice experience, does not feel that evolution is yet quite complete.

While here with a party of officials inspecting plans for Pittsburgh's new $5,000,000 Postoffice, he was questioned by a reporter regarding his views on the subject that now has Dayton, Tenn., as the centre of its agitation. He replied briefly but eloquently with an air of profound conviction.

"During 1924 there were approximately 19,000,000 letters taken to the Dead Letter Office because they had been improperly addressed," he said. "In these letters was more than $100,000. Obviously man has not progressed very far."

'REAL WAR' AS ALTERNATIVE

French Hope for Combined Franco-Spanish Military Front if Peace Is Rejected.

PARIS, July 12.—While details of the peace terms to be offered to Abd-el-Krim under the accord completed last midnight at Madrid have not yet been made public, a statement given out in Paris today by M. Malvy, head of the French delegation at the Franco-Spanish conference, indicates clearly that the French, in order to procure peace in Morocco, have made the maximum concessions possible, offering even more than they hoped it would be necessary to offer when the conference began.

According to M. Malvy, the terms agreed upon at Madrid, without upsetting stipulations of existing treaties, concede to Abd-el-Krim conditions which permit the fullest possible realization of Riff autonomy under nominal sovereignty of the Sultan, with an agreement of the frontier such as would guarantee the Riffians economic and political security and the necessary commercial facilities in the region of the Ouergha. Should Abd-el-Krim insist on demanding anything more than that he will place himself, M. Malvy contended, beyond the range of further negotiations, and France will have to decide upon prolongation of the war to the bitter end.

"I am naturally afraid," said M. Malvy, "that Abd-el-Krim has become very difficult to satisfy. People with whom he has surrounded himself since his recent military successes have certainly stimulated him to desire things entirely beyond reason. However, when he becomes apprised of the fact that among other things he is being offered the fullest possible liberty for commercial development and every reasonable opportunity to utilize to the best advantage the resources of his country, I believe he will think twice before inviting upon himself a real war in which France and Spain will call no halt until a decisive victory shall have been achieved.

"I do not even care to contemplate such an eventuality, for it has been the sincere desire of myself and my colleagues to bring to a conclusion the bloodshed and war devastating all concerned."

M. Malvy denied a peace envoy had been selected by the French Government to accompany the Spanish envoy, Echevarrieta, who, according to late news from Madrid, already is on the way to confer with Abd-el-Krim and transmit to him the Franco-Spanish peace conditions.

The question of the creation of a combined Franco-Spanish military front in the event of Abd-el-Krim's refusal to accept the terms still hangs in the balance. It is understood no formal agreement to that effect has been concluded in Madrid. Conditions themselves, however, might produce such a development independent of the will or desire of the powers involved. In fact, a step in the nature of a combined military action occurred last Friday when an attack was launched by a combination of French and Spanish units at the junction of the two zones. The French are inclined to draw from the incident the cheerful inference that the Spaniards will eventually allow themselves to be drawn into a plan of combined military action, the threat of which, according to the French, would in itself do much to put Abd-el-Krim in a more receptive mood, as it would convince him he can no longer count on Spanish reluctance to lend the French every possible aid to push the war against him to a successful conclusion.

The all-important agreement on political collaboration between Spain and France with regard to Morocco was signed here late yesterday on receipt of approval of the accord by the French Government. All the agreements negotiated at the Franco-Spanish conference have now been approved by both Governments. The other two deal with land and naval blockades.

The conference is confronted with still another important question, dealing with the Tangier problem, which concerns not only France and Spain but also all the signatories of the so-called Tangier Statute, covering the neutrality of that zone.

PARIS, July 12 (AP).—The latest news from the Moroccan front indicates that no real change has taken place in the situation, which remains critical. Abd-el-Krim's strategy has compelled the French to string out their forces along a line much longer than they can effectively hold, and his attempts to find the weakest spot in this line keeps the French flying columns on a continual move, compensating by activity for lack of numbers.

The report that Abd-el-Krim is organizing an aviation camp is said to have been spread by his agents to influence the tribesmen.

A dispatch from the Intransigeant's correspondent depicts some of the difficulties to be faced. He describes the evacuation of Taza by the women and children, at which he was present. The troops for a fortnight previously had been making forced marches, fighting one day, then covering twenty or thirty miles and fighting the next day without sleep. As he left Fez for Taza a hot south wind was blowing, the tempest reducing the speed of his automobile to twelve miles an hour, drying the men's throats, burning their eyes and cracking their lips. The automobile was forced to stop behind a hill where a battery of six-inch guns was found, the horses with their heads wrapped in blankets and the men crouching behind the pieces.

He reached Taza in the evening and preparations for evacuating the women and children were completed within a few hours, five trains carrying 1,200 of them away. The men remained and ate."
were armed with rifles and assigned to posts in case of attack.

According to reports received at the War Office today, Abd-el-Krim still is continuing his thrusts toward Taza, some of them thirty kilometers north of the town proving particularly difficult to check, though the arrival of reinforcements is turning the combat in favor of the French. The whole situation in the region of Taza, according to the communiqués, is somewhat improved, but now danger again threatens in the direction of Fez.

The enemy is obviously preparing to renew the offensive against Kelaa des Sless, which is one of the outposts nearest the Moroccan capital, in the region of which Abd-el-Krim in the past few days has accomplished important infiltrations. The French are concentrating their forces in order to stop the attack from realizing its objective.

In the region of Bibane the Arabs have not in the least given up the hope of putting the French on the run and cutting off the road from Ain Aiccha to Fez. They also are continuing attacks against Tafrant and Teroual. Thus far they have failed in their main objectives in this region, but the situation so far as the French are concerned still contains many elements of danger.

SPAIN EXPLAINS RIFF POLICY.

Intends to Pacify Zone, Maintaining Posts and Communications.

MADRID, July 12 (AP).—Spain's difficulties in Morocco and the policies adopted by the Government to bring about a cessation of fighting there are outlined at length in a statement just given out by the Military Directorate.

After recounting the measures taken by the French and Spanish Governments to cope with the rebellious Riffian tribesmen, the statement says:

"It is the purpose of the Spanish Government to pacify the zone under its influence; to maintain the security of the Spanish bases and communications. This policy may require the establishment of new bases and the carrying out of punitive expeditions in some sectors, but nothing need be feared by such a step, because it will only be undertaken subject to every guarantee for safety, and probably in collaboration with the French, if joint action is advisable to assure success for the operations."

Declaring it is important that the country be familiar with this important problem, and be prepared for the organization of the native government in secure contact with Spain, the statement concludes:

"Soon the Government of the protectorate will be perfected by solemn proclamation by the Caliph, who already has been designated and who will work with a civil organization to cooperate with an efficient army and navy and aviation corps, well provided with modern war material, aided by bravery, discipline and experience. All of this represents a sacrifice for Spain, but the Directorate would prefer not to employ these measures if another way could be found to bring peace to the protector-

RUBBER PRICES HIT ENGLAND

Labor Member Will Complain in Parliament Today.

LONDON, July 12.—English rubber consumers, like the Americans, are beginning to complain about the restrictive policy adopted by the British producers, and the British Government will be asked to intervene in view of the present abnormal prices.

The attention of Parliament will be brought to the matter tomorrow by Rhys Davies, a Labor M. P., who will ask the Colonial Secretary, "In view of the large profits of the rubber companies, as shown by the last reports to company head offices in London, the original shareholders of which have received an annual average dividend of 70 per cent. in the last twenty-one years, will he reconsider the limitation policy put in force in the Malay Peninsula with the approval of the Colonial Office?"

Sir George Beharrel, Managing Director of Dunlop's, complained tonight that when the restriction scheme was introduced the manufacturers gave assurance that when the price of rubber reached 1 shilling, 9 pence a pound extra supplies would be released, but that nothing of the kind has happened, and the scheme apparently became so automatic that it could not be stopped.

The present price, he added, was a false price, not justified by production costs, and that the relief to be afforded by the 10 per cent. increase due on Aug. 1 would not meet the situation, so that tire prices must advance if the restrictions are allowed to continue.

PARIS, July 12.—During the celebration of the fall of the Bastile which began last night with dancing in the streets of Paris, the dancers at one of the corners of the city suddenly had to fly to cover when a maniac started shooting from a fourth-story window, shouting "Down with the Bastile! Down with Abd-el-Krim! Down with the whole world!"

Miraculously, none of the three shots he fired into the throng at the first discharge hit any one, and by the time he reached the roof of the house where, from an overhanging ledge he reopened fire again, there was nobody on the street to hit, dancers and musicians having fled down side alleys.

After emptying his revolver the maniac sat on the edge of the roof with his feet dangling, complete master of the situation, until some policemen climbed to the roof and captured him by inviting him to come down and have a glass of beer.

TWO YOUNG GIRLS DROWN.

Children Fall in Deep Hole of a Ford in Blackstone River.

BLACKSTONE, Mass., July 12.—Nellie Wujick, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wujick, and Mary Dupry, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dupry, both of this town, were drowned today about 1:30 P. M. when they slipped into deep water in the Blackstone River from a submerged road used as a ford when the river is low.

At the present time the ford, known as the "Indian road," is under about two feet of water. Nellie's brother John, aged 8 years, saw his sister and the Dupry girl fall in the stream and ran for help. The bodies of the girls were recovered.

dition to class rooms, a large auditorium, gymnasium, shops and laboratories, according to an announcement by Dean Withers. Elementary and secondary observation practice schools also will be in the new building. Ample space will be provided for various bureaus of educational research, including vocational guidance and personnel service. Provision will be made for student activities.

Emphasis will be placed on facilities for graduate research, Dean Withers declared, especially in the new departments of physical education, musical education, commercial and normal school education. These new aspects of secondary training, in which New York University is a pioneer, have attracted many well-known educators to the university.

"Washington Square was the original home of New York University," Chancellor Brown declared, "and after 92 years it is still the location of six of its twelve schools and colleges. While it has been necessary to acquire four additional centres of instruction, each of which has a strategic value and a special character of its own, there has been no alteration in the original plan to develop on or near Washington Square a greater university centre. The acquisition by the university of the whole remaining frontage of Washington Square gives this plan an added reality. It will give to this whole region a distinctive academic character; and when the heavy initial construction now contemplated has been carried to completion, the city at large and the fine old residential section of Washington Square and lower Fifth Avenue in particular will find new occasion for pride in this old-time centre of the city's life. The interest will not be confined to the city, for already forty-three States of the Union and fourteen foreign countries are represented in the great student body that has congregated here.

"Already a rich collegiate tradition clusters around this spot. Here Samuel F. B. Morse and Alfred Vail pursued the researches which resulted in the invention of the recording telegraph. The first message was sent through the halls of the old university building. Here Professor John W. Draper made the first picture of the human face and opened the way for modern photography. The group of artists who had their studios in the old Washington Square Building formed the nucleus for the literary and artistic settlement which has given the Square its distinctive character."

BANK CREDITS FEEL EXPORTS OF GOLD

Sending $175,000,000 Away in 7 Months Causes Heavier Demand onthe Federal Reserve.

COMMERCIAL LOANS GAIN

Total Loans and Investments of Member Banks Is $2,500,000,000 or 10 Per Cent. Above 1924.

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—The turn in the tide of gold has begun to affect banking credit in the United States, and members of the system are resorting to increasing use of credit from the Federal Reserve banks.

A gold outflow of $175,000,000 has taken place in the last seven months, and now, the Federal Reserve Board disclosed today, the commercial banks find themselves in a position sharply in contrast to that which they held almost continually since the end of the war. During those years these banks, through the deposit of imported gold with the Federal Reserve banks, obtained funds for repayment of borrowings and for use as a basis for increased extension of credit.

"For four years prior to 1925," the Reserve Board said in its monthly discussion of conditions, "continuous inward gold movements had been the principal factor in the large growth of (commercial) bank credit, accompanied by a decreased use of Reserve Bank credit. But recently the direction of the gold movement has been reversed and gold exports have tended to check the growth of member bank credit and to increase the demand for Reserve bank credit."

Total loans and investments of all member banks, though they show little growth so far this year, now approximate $2,500,000,000, or 10 per cent. more than in the Spring of 1924. For two years, the total of loans and investments of these banks has been above the high point reached in the Fall of 1920, and on April 6, this year, they were roughly $3,000,000,000 larger than the maximum in 1920.

The larger volume of member bank credit, as compared with 1920, when the commercial demand for bank credits was unduly large, was declared by the board to reflect almost entirely a growth in the banks' investments, which were shown to stand at a record high level.

Loans by the member banks, after declining $3,000,000,000 between the Fall of 1920 and the Spring of 1922, have since increased continuously, until now they are slightly above the 1920 level.

"While total member bank loans thus exceed their early high point in 1920," the board said, "loans for commercial purposes, as indicated by reports from banks in leading cities, are still considerably below their level at that time. The volume of this class of loans, which had declined by more than $2,500,000,000 by July, 1922, increased $1,000,000,000 during the following year and has remained relatively constant since the Fall of 1923.

"Thus, it has not been primarily the growth in commercial loans which has accounted for the large increase in the total outstanding credit of reporting member banks. In fact, the two recent periods of most rapid growth in total loans and investments of these banks were in 1922 and again in 1924, when the demand for credit for commercial purposes was relatively inactive, and of the growth of more than $4,000,000,000 in the total of their credit since the early part of 1922 about three-fourths was an increase in holdings of investments and of loans on securities."

PRINCE AT VICTORIA FALLS.

At a Ball Wales Also Sees Novel Way of Polishing a Dancing Floor.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to The New York Times.

LIVINGSTONE, Rhodesia, July 12.—During the week-end the Prince of Wales visited Victoria Falls, one of the grandest sights to be seen in Africa.

At midnight the Prince went from a dance at Government House and drove to the Eastern Cataract, where he saw a beautiful lunar rainbow traced across the vapor, which rose high above the falls mingled with clouds.

Again today the Prince devoted practically the whole day to the falls and the River Zambesi. The party tramped across ridges facing thundering torrents and thence into Rain Forest, where every twig and stone dripped moisture. Above the falls the Prince embarked in a canoe and was rowed upstream as far as Kandaher Island, where he lunched.

The Prince was welcomed at Livingstone by the Governor and a number of officials, behind whom was a magnificent guard of bare-legged native police, none of whom was under six feet.

Last night's official ball was a novel affair held in the open air on a floor specially constructed over the tennis courts at Government House.

During an interval a squad of natives polished the floor, their method being to drag each other round on matting with terrific energy, singing as they worked. The Prince was so amused with their antics that he organized a sprint race among them, to the intense amusement of all concerned.

WOMAN HURT IN SMASH.

Has Hip Broken as Car Overturns in Collision.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 12.—Mrs. Hannah Weiss of 3 Elm Street, Trenton, N. J., is in the Ann May Hospital here with a broken hip as the result of an automobile accident in Seagirt this afternoon.

Mrs. Weiss was riding with several other persons in a car driven by Edward Kralewski of 403 Divine Street, Trenton, when their car collided with one driven by George Kimphn of 11 Linwood Avenue, Bogota, N. J. Kralewski's car was overturned. Patrolman Cecil Newcorn of the Seagirt Police Department issued summonses for both drivers to appear before Justice of the Peace Fred Collier of Seagirt Wednesday night on charges of reckless driving.

SAYS BEER CAUSED DEATH.

Medical Examiner Investigates Case of Man Found Dead in Bed.

ELMSFORD, N. Y., July 12.—Three glasses of bad beer, procured in Yonkers, caused the death of Joseph Raunig here today, Dr. Amos O. Squire of Ossining, Westchester County Medical Examiner, announced today at the close of an investigation.

Raunig, who was 48 years old and a lineman and electrician, was found dead in bed. Dr. Squire said the evidence showed that the man had drunk only three glasses of beer the previous night when in company with some friends in Yonkers. Raunig then went to bed, Dr. Squire said, and never woke up. Raunig leaves a wife and child.

Albany Post Road Improved.

Special to The New York Times.

CROTON, N. Y., July 12.—Under prodding from Judge Charles Anderson of Croton and members of the Town Board of Cortland, the rought pavement of the Albany Post Road from Croton to Crugers has been improved and today traffic found smoother going. Automobile traffic is "single-tracked" for a mile because one half the highway is torn up for widening. The firm got $28,000 extra on condition that half of the road be kept open during the improvement, but the open half was so rough for several days it was almost impassable.

Close Dantzic Bars on Paydays So 'Wives Can 'See' the Wages

DANTZIC, July 12 (AP).—A liberal view of the liquor problem is held in this second smallest State of Europe, the slogan being: "Drink all you want, but first give your wife a chance at the pay envelope."

While wine, beer and cordial flow freely, the law provides that saloons and bars must be closed Fridays and Saturdays from 2 to 9 P. M. Experience showed that too many workmen invested the contents of their pay envelopes in spirits, leaving little or nothing for the support of their families. By closing saloons during the "critical hours" after the week's wages are paid, wives are given a chance to claim their share.

Dantzigers also feel it is unbecoming their dignity as churchgoing people to have liquor dispensed during church hours; therefore the saloons are closed Sundays until noon.

COMMENDS GOV. FERGUSON.

Woman Executive Is Exceeding Expectations, Declares Texan.

"Our Governor Ferguson has a good deal more common sense than she was generally given credit for before her election, and so far as I can see the State of Texas is very well and satisfactorily governed," said Ben S. Woodhead of Beaumont, Texas, who has been at the Hotel Astor while attending an Executive Committee meeting of the National American Wholesale Lumber Association.

"There has been an overproduction of lumber, which has made the price low temporarily, but in the Autumn when the crops come in we look for an improvement in conditions and an increase in price," he added. "The export business to Venezuela and Colombia is good, however.

"The Wholesale Lumber Association is the first national organization to adopt the principle of compulsory arbitration. Arbitration is coming to be adopted more and more, first, because it is right, and second, because the courts are all so crowded it is difficult to get speedy action and members of our organization have agreed to arbitrate any controversy which may arise through the purchase or sale of forest products."

ACCUSES TICKET AGENT.

Porter Charges Theft—I. R. T. Counsel Defends Employe on Record.

An Interborough ticket agent who has been employed by the company for fifteen years, with an excellent record, was a prisoner in Tombs Court yesterday accused of robbing a sleeping passenger.

John Sullivan, a porter in Washington Market, said he had fallen asleep Saturday night on a bench in the Franklin Street elevated station of the Interborough and that when he awakened he had found the station agent, Herman P. Shotte, 50 years old, standing over him and $67.60 missing from his pockets.

L. M. Hutchins, I. R. T. counsel, appeared for Schotte, saying the man had been a faithful employe for such a long period that there was no doubt in his mind that Sullivan was mistaken in his accusation.

The ticket agent was released on $1,000 bond for hearing today.

NEW YORK CAVALRY ENCAMP IN VERMONT

TROOPS NUMBER 1,290 MEN

General M. L. Bryant, in Command, Is Pleased at Ability of Men as Camp Is Speedily Erected.

Special to The New York Times.

FORT ETHAN ALLLEN, Vt., July 12.—Descending upon this post in eight long trains, New York's National Guard cavalry, the Fifty-first Brigade, today made their third annual invasion of the Green Mountains. From early morning until dusk the troop trains crept in, each in several sections. Part of them deposited their loads of men and horses directly at the post, the remainder went to the yards at Burlington, whence the troops were transported to camp by motor truck, the horses following in, led by small detachments.

The pride of the Twenty-seventh Division is its cavalry, and today the citizen soldiers detrained and made their camp in a manner that added to that pride. Officers of the regular establishment at Fort Ethan Allen praised highly the efficient manner in which men and animals were unloaded and moved to their camp site on the Vermont State reservation adjoining the post.

The first unit to come in was the headquarters troop, led by Captain William Morris. They arrived before reveille, and, except for a few shrieks of locomotive whistles, which could not be blamed upon the troops, there was nothing to disturb the early morning slumber of the garrison.

Before the regulars went to breakfast the brown pyramidal tents of the guardsmen had popped up, their horses had been watered and picketed and their mess line was falling in.

From then on the invasion continued, until at sunset all troops were in, the canvas of the entire brigade was up and the smoke was curling lazily up from their kitchens, the brown rectangle of canvas in sharp contrast to the red brick barracks across the long drill grounds. Brig. Gen. Mortimer L. Bryant, commanding the brigade, expressed himself as well satisfied with the celerity with which his men got themselves settled.

The troops in camp comprise the Brigade Headquarters Troop, from Staten Island; the First Cavalry, commanded by Captain W. G. Taylor; the 101st Cavalry, commanded by Colonel James R. Howlett; the Fifty-first Machine Gun Squadron, one time Squadron A of Manhattan; and the attached medical detachments of the 101st Cavalry, the headquarters and service troop, and the First Squadron, commanded by Major Walter E. Young, from Brooklyn. The Second Squadron comes from Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse. The First Cavalry, with three troops, comes from Albany, Utica and Geneseo. There are 1,290 enlisted men, 78 officers and 1,100 horses in the brigade.

Visitors came to the camp in a steady stream and during the afternoon the guardsmen were quite a rival attraction to the usual Sunday polo game at the post. Tomorrow the two weeks' grind of actual field training will commence. The usual formal calls of courtesy were exchanged by the post commander, Colonel Alfred A. Starbird, and General Bryant, and informally the regular garrison officers and men extended a warm welcome to the newcomers, who have made many friends at the post during their previous camps.

ARMY PLANE STARTS IN HUNT FOR KNAPP

as headquarters until Knapp is captured or until it becomes apparent that the search is hopeless in that region.

There are no specially designed flying facilities at Plattsburg Barracks, but there is ample open space for a landing field and ample fueling facilities.

The first army airplane to be used in such a man hunt is equipped with one Liberty motor. It can fly 100 miles an hour, according to Major Hensley. When dispatching the two flyers to Plattsburg Barracks, he advised Madison Barracks at Watertown, and Fort Ontario, where there are army landing fields, to be ready to help the two flyers if needed.

"The fingerprints of Knapp which I asked Washington to send here should arrive by mail tomorrow morning," said Major Hensley. "I will have copies of the photostats made and furnish sets to the civil authorities and send other sets up to Plattsburg to be used in identifying any prisoner."

Hempstead Plains, where Panella's body was found by three of his taxicab driver friends, has been the scene of several hold-ups recently. Taxicab drivers, fearing such a fate as Panella met, had applied for permission to arm themselves, but their requests until now had been refused. The authorities of Nassau County decided yesterday, as a result of the Panella murder, that they would issue permits to taxicab drivers to carry pistols, beginning today.

The State is prepared to resist any move that may be made to save Knapp on the ground of insanity, according to Assistant District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau County.

Major Hensley said he would send more planes to help the hunt for Knapp if it were found they could be used advantageously. He believes the search will demonstrate to some extent the practicability of using airplanes in catching criminals.

Major Hensley said he was informed yesterday by Private Antonio Comizzi, company tailor in the company to which Knapp belonged, that he saw the deserter at Coney Island Sunday night a week ago, two days after the body of the murdered taxicab driver was found. Comizzi said Knapp was wearing civilian clothes.

The company tailor asked Knapp, according to Major Hensley, if he were going back to Camp Mitchel. Knapp is quoted by Comizzi as having said:

"Yes, I'm going back tonight, because my pass expires."

Major Hensley said, "Knapp missed a golden opportunity when he did not come back to Mitchel Field on Sunday night or Monday morning. If he had been back here Monday morning there never would have been a check-up.

"There would have been no A. W. O. L. report against him. There would have been no search of his quarters, there would have been no search of the arms locker and discovery that army revolver 507 was missing. There would have been no discovery of the letter Knapp wrote jointly to his father and to his Captain.

"If Knapp had come back to the reservation he would have gone right back to the routine of camp life, where he would have found absolute security while the police and other authorities were taking up dozens of suspects and questioning them regarding the murder of Panella."

HUNT FOR KNAPP NEAR UTICA.

Man of His Description Held Up Two Taxi Drivers Yesterday.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., July 12.—Philip Knox Knapp is believed by the police here to be the man who held up two taxi drivers on the outskirts of the city early this morning.

Luck played an important part in the bandit's escape for, with death staring him in the face, a .45 calibre army gun missed fire and jammed. Joseph Wurz Jr., one of the cabmen who were held up, had wrested the gun from the highwayman and pressed it into the pit of of his assailant's stomach.

Descriptions given to the police by Wurz and Harold Kruger of Amsterdam tally well with that of the missing scion of a prominent Syracuse family. The fact that the bandit flashed a .45 gun and that he had a dimple in his chin strengthen the belief that Knapp was the bandit. State Troopers and local police combed the countryside for the man. They searched every foot of farm land and inquired at every house in the neighborhood, but not a person had seen the bandit, who could not have had more than a twenty-five minute start from the police.

Kruger picked up his fare in Amsterdam, Saturday night. A few miles outside the city limits the taxi driver felt a gun in his back. He was tied to the foot rail of the car and the bandit took the steering wheel. In Utica he stopped and tied Kruger to a barn. Three times the man returned to see his victim safe. The driver's pockets were frisked and $35 and a $65 watch were taken. The bandit then drove the machine to the Postoffice and left it there.

Going to the New York Central depot by foot, he hired Wurz's taxi. A half mile from the barn where Kruger was left he levelled his gun at the driver, but Wurz put up a fight and got the weapon. When he found it would not fire, he ran.

FLIERS REACH PLATTSBURG.

Confer With Civil Officials on Guarding Roads to Border.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 12.—Lieutenants M. L. Elliott and W. H. Sargant, army aviators, arrived here from Mitchel Field this evening at 7 o'clock in an army biplane in the search for Philip Knapp. They flew low from Albany to Plattsburg, hoping to see something of the fugitive.

After reporting to Colonel Graham, commandant at Plattsburg Barracks, they and Lieutenant Cross, provost marshal at the post, came to the city for a conference with city and county officials on guarding every highway leading to the Canadian border.

Military police and State troopers will be used to guard the highways at the three principal points of entrance into the Dominion, Rouse's Point, Champlain and Mooers, all of which are within a few hundred feet of the international line. Lieutenant Elliott communicated later with Major W. H. Hensley, commander at Mitchel Field, as to the advisability of making a flight to Montreal tomorrow to get in closer touch with the Canadian authorities. Nassau County officials and Private Donlin of the aviation corps are expected to arrive here tonight to assist in the search.

2 SUSPECTS HELD IN ALBANY.

One Has Army Gun—Both to Await Identification in Jail.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12.—The two men who were arrested here suspected by the police as being Philip K. Knapp are still in custody. The men have not been able to prove their identity, and they will be held for a few days.

They describe themselves as George Kavanaugh of New York City and Jack Trimmer of Rochester. Kavanaugh is held as a vagrant, but the police have a charge of carrying concealed weapons against Trimmer, who had a .45-calibre army revolver when picked up on the New York road by motor vehicle inspectors.

VIGILANCE COMMITTEE AIDED BY DOG PATROL

Citizens of Forest Hills South Aroused Over Robberies and Presence of Prowlers.

Residents of Forest Hills South have formed a Vigilance Committee, it was learned last night, because of robberies in that neighborhood and because of even more numerous cases of prowling and attempted robberies.

The citizens will petition for more police protection. Meanwhile, however, they are watching out for themselves. There are many firemen and policemen living in the neighborhood and most of these, it was learned, have in the past week or so been patroling the section of their own accord, taking turns on off nights, between midnight and dawn.

The robberies, it was said, have been going on for the past three weeks. In many cases real articles of value have been stolen. In more cases, however, the back yard prowlers have been frightened away or have disappeared after unsuccessful attempts to force doors or screens.

There is, in addition, a dog patrol at night. All residents who have dogs have agreed to let the dogs loose after midnight, instead of keeping them in the house or tied up.

COOK HELD AS MAN DIES.

Armenian Felled Furniture Dealer in Altercation, Police Say.

With the death in Bellevue Hospital yesterday morning of Dietrick Sempken, sixty-year-old furniture dealer of 1,791 Lexington Avenue, Michael Thilipposian, 30 years old, an Armenian cook, of the Lexington Avenue address, was held without bail by Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in Harlem Court on a charge of homicide.

On June 27 last, police say, the two men had an altercation, the Armenian declaring the furniture dealer had struck the former's four-year-old son. In the argument, police allege, Thilipposian struck Sempken in the face with his fist and the elder man fell to the sidewalk, striking his head. At Bellevue Hospital it was said he had a fractured skull. The Armenian was released on $500 bail on a charge of felonious assault pending the outcome of Sempken's injuries.

W. K. Post Home to Become a Camp

The Girls' Friendly Society of the Episcopal Diocese of Newark has leased the summer residence of William K. Post, former United States Ambassador, at Baycourt, Long Island, it was announced yesterday. The society, which operates vacation camps all over the United States, will establish a camp at Baycourt. It is designed especially for business girls and other young women who wish to take their vacations near the city.

RACES FOR RECORDS TO MARK AIR MEET

Events Announced for National Race at Mitchel Field on Oct. 8, 9 and 10.

PULITZER TROPHY A PRIZE

Other Countries Invited to Compete—Sham Battle to Be One of the Features.

A spirited effort to better the American record now held by Lieutenant Al Williams of the United States Naval Air Service for track flying will be made at this year's air race for the Pulitzer Trophy on Oct. 10 as part of the program of the National Air Race to be held at Mitchel Field, Long Island, on Oct. 8, 9 and 10. Announcement of the air race was made yesterday by E. O. McDonnell, President of the New York 1925 Air Races, Inc., 30 East Forty-second Street, the organization under whose auspices the event is to be held.

Williams established his record in St. Louis in 1923, when he flew 243 miles an hour. Competitors for the trophy this year will use new planes now being built by the Curtiss Company at Garden City. Permission for the use of Mitchel Field has been given by Acting Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, who said in his letter to Mr. McDonnell that the Army Air Service would participate in the air meet. Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commanding officer of the Second Corps Area, also expressed approval of the use of the field for the races and pledged full support and the aid of Colonel T. A. Baldwin, air officer of this corps area, and Major William N. Hensley, commanding officer of Mitchel Field. Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, Chief of the United States Air Service, and Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, U. S. N., have promised entries in all military races.

The personnel of the General Racing Committee is as follows: Vincent Astor, Robert L. Bacon, Harold Belster, Caleb S. Bragg, E. Garnsey Brownell, Irving T. Bush, Godfrey Cabot, B. F. Castle, Heyward Cutting, Gerhard M. Dahl, T. Coleman du Pont, Harold Fowler, Harvey D. Gibson, Harry F. Guggenheim, Frank Hitchcock, Richard F. Hoyt, Leonard Kennedy, Clarence Mackay, Edward C. McDonnell, A. G. McIlwaine Jr., Orson D. Munn, Grayson M.-P. Murphy, Bradford Norman Jr., Earl D. Osborn, A. C. Pickford, Johnson Redmond, Governor Alfred E. Smith, Lorillard Spencer, Elmer A. Sperry, James B. Taylor Jr., Frank A. Tichenor, James P. Warburg, Henry James White and Major W. N. Hensley.

Other Countries May Enter.

Mr. McDonnell said that all the foreign Governments have been invited to take part in the races and that there was a good chance that British and Canadian entries might be made. He said that the greatest interest centered around the three new racers now being built for the Pulitzer Trophy race by the Curtiss Company, which will probably advance the Pulitzer record from 243 to 265 miles per hour and may do 300 miles on a straightaway course as against the existing record on such a course of 278 miles an hour held by Adjutant Bonnet of France. The other two entries which may be made in the Pulitzer race are a fast PW-8 pursuit plane of the Army and the Curtiss Navy racer in which Lieutenant Williams made his record at St. Louis.

Altogether prizes of $23,500 will be awarded in the different events. These events and the dates on which they will be held are as follows:

1-A. September 28 to October 8—"On-to-New York" race for New York Chapter National Aeronautic Association Trophy (civilians only). Race based on distance covered, passengers carried, engine horsepower and average speed. Prizes $3,000.

1. October 8, 11 A. M.—Free-for-all race for two-seater airplanes; distance 100 miles, twenty times around a closed course of 5 miles (civilians only). Prizes $2,500.

2. October 8, 12:30 P. M.—Free-for-all race for 2, 3, or 4 place airplanes; distance 100 miles, twenty times around a closed course of 5 miles (civilians only). Prizes $2,500.

3. October 8, 3:30 P. M.—Race for observation type (2 place) airplanes for Liberty Engine Builders Trophy. Required air speed greater than 90 m.p.h., total wing area greater than 290 square feet. Distance 180 miles, fifteen times around a closed course of 12 miles (military). Prizes $2,500.

To Have a Duration Race.

4. October 9, 9:30 A. M.—Duration race for Mulvihill Model Trophy (members Junior Flying League National Aeronautic Association). Prizes $500.

5. October 9, 10:45 A. M.—Light commercial speed and efficiency race for Aviation Town and Country Club of Detroit Trophy. Distance 100 miles, twenty times around a closed course of 5 miles. Winner (a) on speed, (b) on efficiency (civilians only). Prizes $2,500.

6. October 9, 1 P. M.—Light airplanes for Dayton Daily News Trophy, distance 50 miles, ten times around a closed course of 5 miles (civilians only). Prizes $2,000.

7. October 9, 2:30 P. M.—Race for large capacity airplanes for Detroit News Air Transport Trophy. Distance 120 miles, ten times around a closed course of 12 miles (military). Prizes $2,000.

8. October 10, 12 A. M.—Speed and efficiency race for light airplanes. Winner (a) on speed, (b) on efficiency. Distance 50 miles, ten times around closed course of 5 miles (civilians only). Prizes $2,000.

9. October 10, 2 P. M.—Race for pursuit type planes, John Mitchel Trophy. Distance 120 miles, ten times around a closed course of 12 miles (first pursuit group, pilots only). Prizes, three cups.

10. October 10, 3:15 P. M.—High speed race for Pulitzer Trophy. Distance 200 kilometers (124 miles), four times around a closed course of 50 kilometers (civilians and military). Prizes $4,000.

Mr. McDonnell also announced that on all three days there would be interesting flying events besides the races. There will be a sham battle between National Guard flyers and twenty tanks of the United States Army Tank Corps, balloon sniping and aerial circus, sham battle between pursuit planes, parachute jumping, refueling in flight, smoke screens, sky writing, radio broadcasting from the air and bombing tests.

Woodpeckers Split Phone Poles.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., July 12.—Emergency crews of the telephone and telegraph companies are kept busy repairing telephone poles damaged by red-headed woodpeckers in the vicinity of this city. Hundreds of poles have been split. The birds bore holes in the pole and put acorns in the holes. In wet weather the acorns swell, causing the poles to split.

Says Man Went Over Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 12.—Report was made to the police this morning by a citizen that he had seen a man climb the wall of the Goat Island Bridge, drop into the rapids and go over the American Falls. No farewell note or other indication of a suicide has been found by the police and there is no report of any missing man made as yet to the authorities.

SEES INSANITY INCREASING.

Physician Lays Prevalence in Maryland to Prohibition and War.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, July 11.—Declaring that prohibition and strenuous methods of living since the World War were causing an alarming increase in insanity and that it was far more prevalent in Baltimore and Maryland than at any previous time in the history of city or State, Dr. Harry Goldsmith, psychiatrist in Baltimore city hospitals, has urged the establishment of a municipal psychiatric hospital.

Dr. Goldsmith asserted that the insane population of this city had almost doubled since 1910. The increase amounted to 90 per cent., while the general population grew only 36 per cent.

Prohibition, he emphasized, was one of the chief causes of increased mental disorders. One out of every nine mental cases he handled could be traced to prohibition.

"Much of the increase in insanity," he said, "could be traced directly to the World War. Before the war people lived easier, more contented lives. Then, with the outbreak of hostilities, many of them began earning more money than they ever expected to, and they lived extravagantly or in a manner never known to them before."

Wife Sees Train Kill Deaf-Mute.

LYNBROOK, L. I., July 12.—When he walked out on the tracks to see whether his train was coming, Philip Bassel, a deaf-mute, 27 years old, of Cedarhurst, L. I., was killed by a train going the opposite way at the Long Island Railroad station here today. Bassel's wife, also a deaf-mute, saw him killed.

URGES WIDE REFORM IN FORESTRY BUREAU

Ashhurst Charges Its Policy Has Practically Destroyed Arizona Cattle Industry.

WANTS IT 'ENDED OR MENDED'

Senator Declares the Tyranny of This "Engine of Oppression" Is Unbelievable.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—That the Forestry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture has become an "engine of oppression" and that the time has come when Congress should consider whether to mend or abolish the bureau was the assertion today of Senator Ashurst of Arizona. The bureau, he added, never moves except in the wrong direction, and as a result of its policies, covering a quarter of a century, the sheep and cattle industry of Arizona has been, the Senator asserted, practically destroyed.

Senator Ashurst is a member of the committee appointed to investigate the forest and public land situation in the Southwest. The hearings in Arizona have just been completed. The Forestry Bureau, Senator Ashurst charged, attempted to defeat the resolution authorizing the investigation. Failing to do that, he said, the bureau sent an official to Arizona to make an investigation. He said it was believed the official went there to forestall the work of the committee.

Senator Ashurst's statement was considered significant in view of a statement issued in Denver yesterday by Governor Pinchot, a former Chief of the Forestry Bureau, who warned the West that "an attempt to dismember the United States Forest Service is now being prepared at Washington." He added he would be ready to take up the cudgels for the service when the expected onslaught comes, which he predicted will be in the next session of Congress.

"The National Forests or Forest Reserves in Arizona," said Senator Ashurst, "have now been administered about twenty-six years by the Federal Forestry Bureau, and at the conclusion of this twenty-six-year period, during which time scores of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money have been expended, we find the following conditions:

"The cattle and sheep industries are about to be exterminated; sheep and cattle men who have lived lives of industry, economy and prompt taxpaying are either ruined, or soon will be, and reduced to bankruptcy by the reckless, ignorant and relentless policies of the Forestry Bureau. Steak on the plate is now almost beyond the slender purse of the common citizen, while steak on the hoof brings no profit to the cowman.

Charges Ignorance of Conditions.

"Mutton has tripled in price while sheep have dwindled in price. Woolen clothes are at the peak of prices, but the flock master must take an inadequate price for his fleece. It is the same old story, the producer sweating and toiling and receiving scarcely a living while the consumer pays double prices. To help reduce this spread between what the stock man receives and the consumer pays ought to engage the attention of officials, but seemingly it does not.

"The Federal Forestry Bureau in its abysmal lack of familiarity with our national forests believes, or pretends to believe, that were sheep and cattle prohibited from grazing upon the national forests the forests would be safe from fires. The very reverse is true. It was when sheep and cattle were excluded from the California forests in 1905 and Idaho in 1910 that the destructive fires in those forests raged.

"During these twenty-six years, the Forestry Bureau has planted no trees in Arizona and has neither reforested or regrassed a single acre in the State.

"The Forestry Bureau has practised injustices and tyrannies upon the helpless citizen to an unbelievable extent. Instead of placing a badge of honor upon the stockman, farmer and homesteader it treats him as an intruder. It sedulously refuses to employ Arizonans as officials but sends from distant States a swarm of mollycoddles to harass the people and eat out their substance.

Thinks Injustice Unequaled.

"Conscious of its own mal-administration and recalling its foul injustices, the Bureau attempted to defeat the Senate resolution proposing an investigation of the public lands and forest reserves. Failing to defeat the resolution, one of the officials hurried to Arizona ostensibly to make field examinations, but it is believed his mission was an endeavor to forestall the work of the committee.

"The Forestry Bureau is now an engine of oppression and the Senate will either mend or end this bureau. Neither German nor Russian bureaus have exceeded the injustices perpetrated by this forestry bureau. It moves but seldom and then in the wrong direction.

"Red tape, prolixity, delay, huge expense accounts, ukases, and a prurient itch for favorable mention are its gods."

Partisans of Ousted Prelate in St. Nicholas Cathedral Hiss and Jeer Sermon.

SECOND ROW IN TWO WEEKS

Choir Leader Is Waylaid and His Hymn Books Taken on Way to Service, Preventing Music.

Thirty agitators were ejected by police from the Russian Orthodox Cathedral of St. Nicholas at 15 East Ninety-seventh Street yesterday morning when they attempted to shout down the Rev. Michael Chervinsky, toward the close of his sermon. It was the second time in two weeks that the Sunday morning services in the cathedral had been interrupted by partisans of the Archbishop Platon.

The disturbance started after Father Chervinsky had made a plea for unity in the Church. He declared that an erroneous impression obtained that the clergy connected with the Cathedral of St. Nicholas belonged to the Soviet "Living Church." "We are not the Living Church," Father Chervinsky said.

This assertion was the signal for hisses and jeers from several parts of the auditorium, followed by shouts of "You are; you are." The priest raised his voice and tried to continue the sermon, but was unable to make himself heard.

A squad of thirteen uniformed patrolmen in charge of Sergeant Hawkins of the East 104th Street Station, who had been sent to the cathedral in anticipation of trouble, began mingling with the congregation. Disturbers were singled out and ejected. Outside, other patrolmen drove the agitators away. The uproar continued for fifteen minutes, after which all disturbers had been removed and the services were resumed.

Choir Leader Robbed.

Before the disorder at the cathedral yesterday, Basil Varcholak, leader of the cathedral choir, was stopped by agitators at Twelfth Street and Second Avenue, while on his way to the church with hymn books. His books were taken from him and he was not permitted to attend the services, so there was no choir at the cathedral yesterday morning.

Yesterday's trouble is said to be the result of a meeting Saturday night, held by adherents of Archbishop Platon in a hall at 9 Second Avenue. Invitations printed in Russian were spread among the congregation several days before. The invitations read:

"Russian people, a tremendous catastrophe has befallen our St. Nicholas Cathedral, seized by force by Bishop Philippovsky. You Orthodox Russians must bare your breasts and help your legal Bishop, Metropolitan Platon. This is your right; it is your holy duty. Come in masses to protest against the seizure of the St. Nicholas Cathedral."

Bishop Adam Philippovsky explained yesterday that the whole trouble had arisen over the question of the right to succession. "Archbishop Platon," he said, "is in America as a guest and has no jurisdiction here whatsoever. In fact, he has been suspended by the Patriarch and ordered back to Russia for a Church trial.

"Although my rights to the bishopric cannot be challenged and have been upheld by the courts, I am willing to resign if the Patriarch will appoint a rightful successor. But I will not turn over my bishopric to Archbishop Platon, who has no right to it."

Seeks Peace in Church.

Bishop Philippovsky declared that what he wanted most was peace in the Church. "It is not a question of differences between Carpathian Russians and High Russians, as the Platon constituents have charged," he said. "They have accused me of trying to get control so that we Carpathian Russians might turn the cathedral over to the Roman Church. This is not so. But the High Russians led by Archbishop Platon want to make the cathedral a place of worship for Russians only. They think no member of the Russian Church unless born in Russia should be allowed to worship here. In other words our fight is one of democracy against Russian absolutism."

Bishop Philippovsky, explaining his right to the bishopric, said that Bishop Evdokin was sent here in 1914 by the Holy Synod, but when he arrived Bishop Alexander, who was already here, tried to forestall him and get the bishopric for himself. Thereupon Evdokin returned to Russia, but he nominated Bishop Alexander and Bishop Stefan to represent him, and gave them full administrative powers. During the war, Bishop Philippovsky said, Bishop Alexander incurred the displeasure of the United States authorities and left the country, leaving Bishop Stefan in full control.

When Archbishop Platon came to this country, Bishop Philippovsky said, he sought to take over the authority from Bishop Stefan, who had meanwhile ordained Bishop Philippovsky as his associate Bishop. Bishop Stefan is said to have been made so unhappy by the trouble with Archbishop Platon that he quit the Russian Church and entered a Roman Catholic monastery as a monk. According to the rights of succession, Bishop Philippovsky said, he is entitled to succeed Bishop Stefan.

FINE CLASSIC THEATRE FOUND AT JERAASH

Back of the Stage and Many Column Are Unearthed, Apparently Intact.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, July 12.—An important archaeological find has been made in excavations of the Graeco-Roman theatre at Jeraash—the classical Geraza or Decapolis—beyond the Jordan by Mr. Horsfield, former student to the British School of Archaelogy at Jerusalem, who now is charged with the conservation of historic monuments.

While the foundations of the theatre and the proscenium were being tested the podium at the back to the stage was disclosed, apparently intact, with fourteen monolithic columns, the lower order of which were standing complete in position. There also were traces of the upper order and statues, inscriptions, three stagedoors, vaulted main entrances from both wings to the stage and the orchestra. The whole constitutes one of the most complete classical theatres.

INDIANS OF OAXACA WAR OVER A STATUE

Patron Saint of Village Is Carried Off by Rivals Jealous of Its Prosperity.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—A strange story of Indian warfare comes from the State of Oaxaca. At the little Indian village of Nopalera a statue of its patron saint was stolen from the church by enemies and taken to the mountains, where it was tried by a court-martial and ordered executed by a firing squad. The prosperity of Nopalera, attributed to its guardian, was objected to by inhabitants of other Indian towns, who complained that Nopalerians were getting rich while other Indians were becoming poorer. This trouble between the Zapoteca Indians of Nopalera and the Mixteca Indians of Santiago Nuyoo and San Pedro Yosotato has been taken to the courts. The Zapoteca Indians charge that since 1923 Mixteca Indians have been assaulting their village, killing the inhabitants and stealing cattle. The Zapotecas also complain that with the disappearance of their patron saint the village has lost its prosperity and is unable to defend itself against the Mixteca Indians.

The latest outrage by the Mixtecas last June aroused the attention of the State authorities. Five hundred Mixteca Indians armed with rifles attacked Nopalera, stealing and burning, and also invaded a ranch known as Jacaltepec, where they kidnapped two families consisting of eight members, stealing fifty head of cattle and much corn.

Military authorities have ordered troops to the district to disarm all Indians.

It is stated trouble arises from a difference in Indian races. Inhabitants of Napolera are true descendants of the Zapoteca Indians, who dominated the entire State of Oaxaca hundreds of years before the Spanish conquest, building the famous ruins of Mitla and others, where the Zapoteca Kings held their royal court.

Solomon to Run for Controller.

Announcement that Charles Solomon, former Socialist Assemblyman from Brooklyn, would be the candidate for Controller on the Socialist-Progressive ticket, was made yesterday at the Socialist Party headquarters. Mr. Solomon will displace Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, who was named at the recent Socialist-Progressive-Labor convention. It was explained that Mrs. Blatch would not be in this part of the country during the campaign and that the committee to fill vacancies had designated Mr. Solomon in her stead.

Big Monkey at Coney Strays Away.

Thomas McGowan, manager of Steeplechase Park, Coney Island, reported to the police yesterday that an eighty-pound monkey had wandered away or had been stolen. The animal was an exhibit in a show. McGowan said the monkey was about five years old and was named Sarah. It is three feet tall and one tooth is missing. It was dressed in a purple dress and a white hat and Manager McGowan hopes that in this regalia it will attract enough attention to be captured and returned to him.

SPERO STILL HEADS LOCALITY MAYORS

Again Defeats "Stitch" McCarthy for Chief at Convention of League.

VOTING TWICE DELAYED

Talk on Evolution Nearly Starts a Row—Four New 'Executives' Are Enrolled.

"Stitch" McCarthy, Mayor of Grand Street, was defeated for the third time in his political career yesterday, when he attempted to wrest the title of Chief Mayor of the Locality Mayors of New York from Mayor Jack Spero of Washington Heights. Spero was elected by a 5-to-4 vote at the annual convention of the League of Locality Mayors which was held at the Hotel Astor amid the most sumptuous surroundings the league has ever known.

The sting of defeat was softened for "Stitch," however. He was quick to remind his fellow Mayors that the 5-to-4 verdict was the closest in the history of the organization. The Mayors, in return, quickly elected "Stitch" Deputy Mayor "of all the Locality Mayors in the great, imperial City of New York."

Several times the feud between "Stitch" and Spero threatened to flare up. Louis Zeltner, the toastmaster, was busy with the gavel to prevent any unpleasant disturbance. "Stitch" was late in arriving. It was said that he had gone by mistake to the Hotel Astoria, Astoria, L. I., instead of to the Hotel Astor. Meanwhile, Spero used the opportunity to do some electioneering for himself. Before the convention was called to order pictures were taken on the hotel roof showing the assembled Mayors congratulating Spero on his reelection as Chief Mayor. When "Stitch" arrived he could not see any necessity for the congratulations before the Chief Mayor had been elected, and so, at his request, the Mayors went through the picture-taking again, this time omitting the congratulations.

Hardly had the assembled Mayors, in shirtsleeves, seated themselves around the dinner table than trouble began anew. Spero started it by announcing that McCarthy sided with William Jennings Bryan on evolution. It was an affront to Grand Street dignity which "Stitch" could not allow, and he countered with a challenge. "Spero says he's a friend of the poor, even if he does come from Washington Heights," he said. "Now I want him to prove it. I want him to buy tickets for a benefit tonight, and if he won't I'll know he's a faker." Thereupon "Stitch" handed his opponent two $5 tickets for a benefit for one of the Grand Street boys who is in need of help. The Washington Heights Mayor promptly accepted them and paid for them, while all the Mayors applauded.

At this point in the proceedings the Mayors adopted a resolution of regret that Mayor Hylan was unable to be present. "Stitch," who is a good Republican, objected on the ground that politics should not be injected into a Locality Mayors' convention.

Twice the Mayors made ready to vote for their new Chief Mayor, but once the filet of sea bass, sauté amadine, interrupted them, and a second time the timbale of raspberries, glacé Melba, put a stop to the election. Finally Abe Fagin, Mayor of Hunts Point and "the head of 36,000 American citizens," brought the matter to a head by eulogizing Abe Fagin as a candidate for Chief Mayor. "I am not looking for honor, my friends," he said. "I am not looking to be Chief Mayor. But I want the people to know, and I want it known on the streets and in the press and all over this city, that it is an honor to be a Locality Mayor and an honor for the people to have a Mayor like Abe Fagin."

Mayor Fagin was in a talkative mood, and he kept on talking while the ballot was being taken.

Following the announcement of Mayor Spero's re-election, Mayor Herman Zoller of Forsyth Street moved that Mayor Edward Rosenstein of Broome Street be elected Deputy Chief Mayor "by explanation." Mayor Rosenstein arose to explain, however, that he was forced to decline the honor and that he would withdraw "in favor of my learned friend, 'Stitchy' McCarthy." Thus "Stitch" triumphed and was unanimously elected Deputy Chief Mayor.

Four new Mayors were admitted to the League. They were Herbert Nathan, Mayor of St. Nicholas Avenue; Julius Baumann, Mayor of Flatbush and Duke of Beverly Road; Charles W. Lynch, Mayor of the Grand Concourse, and H. Stuart Morrison, Mayor of West Midwood. They were all present yesterday as guests of the League. Other invited guests were Assistant Corporation Counsel Benjamin Greenspan and former Assistant District Attorney Joseph Edelston.

Among the locality Mayors who attended were Gus Baker, Mayor of Harlem; Max Dick, Mayor of Allen Street; Morris Eisenstein, Mayor of Bryant Avenue; Nathan Vlodinger, Mayor of Eldridge Street; John Leppig, Mayor of Avenue A, and George B. McKegney, Mayor of Eighth Avenue. Joe Levy, Duke of Essex Street and Mayor of Second Avenue, left hurriedly after the meeting to find his Rolls-Royce and his Japanese chauffeur Itchee, who was waiting to take him back to Second Avenue.

20 MISSIONARIES SOUGHT.

Methodist Church Needs Teachers, Nurses and Dentist.

Twenty or more missionary teachers, registered nurses and other specialists are being sought by the self-supporting schools and hospitals of the Methodist Church, according to an announcement yesterday by T. A. Hildreth, personnel director of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions, 150 Fifth Avenue.

Ten single men and five single women are sought for intermediate and high school teaching under three and four years' contract in Malaysia.

Teachers are also wanted for English to college boys in West China, for supervising a primary department in Burma and for religious education of women in South Fukien, China.

Graduate nurses are being called for by hospitals in Peru and in Yenping, China. A dentist is needed to conduct a clinic and teach in a medical college in Peking.

All of those qualifying for these mission posts must have special technical training, must be members of some evangelical church and must be actuated by missionary motives, Dr. Hildreth said.

U. of P. Starts Personnel Study.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12 (AP).—Announcement was made tonight that the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania has created a department of student personnel which will establish an acquaintanceship with each student as he enters the university and build up a personal record so that when he reaches his senior year a clear appreciation of his personality and aptitudes and a complete record of his scholastic attainments will be available. Thus, it will be possible to advise students intelligently as to their life work. Assistant Professor Thomas A. Budd will head the department and an advisory committee of students and Faculty will assist.

REAL SHOTS TO FLY IN SHAM AIR ATTACK

Defenders of Camp Dix Will Use Bullets in Training Test on Wednesday.

BALLOONS TO BE TARGETS

Planes From Mineola Are Expected to Join the "Battle," but Not in the Danger Zone.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, N. J., July 12.—Attacking forces in a sham air attack on Camp Dix will be brought down by a barrage of real bullets next Wednesday, in a spectacular feature of the Summer training schedule of the First Infantry Brigade, regular army, and the reserve officers of several branches of the 78th, Reserve Division. All week the camp and surrounding farm and forest zones will be a "war zone" for extended field operations of the troops, under the command of Brigadier-General Preston Brown.

In the air attacks, the invading craft will be balloons of various sizes. There will be fifty of them, to be released at different periods during the day. This operation will be confined to the range beyond Pointville. The firing will be directed at an angle that will bring the trajectory of the bullets well within the border of the range in areas cleared of soldiers and civilians.

Real airplanes from Mineola are expected to participate in the attack, but not as targets. Captain James Crockett, Camp Executive Officer, says the firing at balloons will afford excellent training for the soldiers, who will use the standard army rifle in the tests. The percentage of balloons destroyed will determine the success of the defensive.

Visitors to the camp this week will see troops deploying in and around the famous wartime cantonment as was done during the stirring days when troops were being prepared here for the war.

The Summer training program will continue through this week. Major Gen. Summerall, Corps Commander, will make his official visit and inspect the camp next week, after which the various units of the 16th and 18th Infantry will be reassigned to garrison duty at posts throughout the corps area.

SILZER AT CAMP SERVICES.

Jersey Guardsmen Also Hear Sermon at Seagirt.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP SILZER, SEAGIRT, N. J., July 12.—Governor and Mrs. George S. Silzer attended military church services conducted on the lawn of the Little White House, their Summer home, today. Chaplain Charles A. Dubell of Camden, regimental chaplain of the 114th Infantry of the New Jersey National Guard, which is encamped here for a two weeks' training period, officiated.

Major Gen. Quincy A. Gillmore, commanding the Forty-fourth Division, with headquarters here, and Mrs. Gillmore, and Brig. Gen. Bird W. Spencer of Passaic, Inspector General of Rifle Practice, and Mrs. Spencer also attended. Troops who attended were in charge of Major Charles W. Shivers of Elizabeth.

Hundreds of visitors from all parts of the State gathered at the camp to watch a regimental parade this afternoon.

POLICE FIND BANDIT VICTIM.

Jersey Man Picked Up Unconscious Near Woodridge Station.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 12.—William Burns of 159 Carter Avenue, Jersey City, was found unconscious near the Woodridge railroad station early this morning and was taken to the Hackensack Hospital.

He was badly cut and bruised on the head, and the police believe he was attacked and robbed. His identity was revealed by letters in his pocket.

Reading Train Makes Record Run.

Special to The New York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J. July 12.—The Reading Railroad's fisherman's special from Chestnut Street Ferry to Schellenger's Landing here broke all records for speed on this division today when the first section of twelve cars made the run of eighty-one miles in seventy-two minutes. The train was in charge of Fred Tompkins, veteran conductor of the Cape May Division, and Engineer Frank Hein. Railroad men here say that the speed of the train at times reached ninety miles an hour.

Young People's Conference Opens.

Light Luggage in the Seventies

"My new bureau trunk certainly is a comfort," mused Miranda. "It holds everything." "But the kitchen stove," added Bowser cocking one ear at her.

The bureau trunk attained to quite a popularity back in the seventies, they say—though not with the baggage men. It was built something like a sectional bookcase — a huge wooden affair which folded down to a mere eight feet by six. Undoubtedly it held much.

This McCreery full size dress trunk, while just a sliver compared to the bureau trunk, holds a lot too. In it you can fold your frocks lengthwise. And it has two trays, in one of which is a hat form. 36 inches long. 47.95

ALL DENY DRY LAW INCREASED DRUG USE

Foreign Policy Association Submits Views of Authorities to General Andrews.

BELLEVUE ADDICTS FEWER

The Belief Is General That Prohibition Has Not Affected the Narcotic Situation.

The Foreign Policy Association forwarded yesterday to Brig. Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Department in charge of prohibition enforcement, a survey of the use of narcotics in relation to prohibition. The conclusion drawn was that drug using had not increased since the Volstead act was passed.

"It is the experience of every authority," said Miss Christina Merriman, Secretary of the association, "that prohibition has had no effect whatsoever on the prevalence of drug addiction in the United States. Not only is there no evidence to show that prohibition has increased drug addiction, but according to the United States Public Health Service and the Federal Narcotic Division, the drug habit has probably decreased since prohibition."

Reports in the survey, submitted by the police in this city, Boston, Detroit, Chicago and San Francisco were that less than one in 1,000 of habitual drug users has taken up "dope" in place of alcohol. Hospital records, reported by the association, told the same story. The history of 3,000 cases observed at North Brother Island Hospital here failed to show a case where prohibition had brought about drug addiction.

A report by A. G. Du Mez, pharmacologist of the United States Public Health Service, put the number of drug addicts in the United States at 150,000, with a steady decrease noted since 1900.

Surgeon General's Report.

"It is obvious that no one can have accurate statistics with reference to the effect of the prohibition of alcohol upon increasing addiction," said Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming of the Public Health Service, "because there is no reliable evidence whatever that drug addiction has increased in this country to any appreciable extent. As a matter of fact the number of addicts in the United States at the present time is much less than some years ago and this would not be true if prohibition were causing great numbers of people to change from alcohol to narcotics."

The same view was expressed by L. G. Nutt, Chief of the Narcotic Division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Dr. Amos O. Squire, formerly physician at Sing Sing Prison said:

"In reply to your communication in reference to the alleged increase in drug addiction since the enactment of the Volstead act, I would state that I have never been able to satisfy myself that there is any connection between the two. The major portion of the drug addicts admitted to Sing Sing give a history of not having been addicted to liquor. As a matter of fact, from the histories taken, we find that about 60 per cent. of our total admissions are abstainers and 40 per cent. are not abstainers."

Dr. Alexander Lambert, for Bellevue Hospital, reported:

Says Addiction Diminished.

"I have several times published a statement of my own experience, that prohibition has not increased drug addiction and that drug addiction has diminished during the years of prohibition. I know of my own personal knowledge that I do not see so many persons addicted to heroin and morphine in Bellevue as I formerly did.

"Before prohibition, one-third of the patients in Bellevue went through the alcoholic wards; that is, there were about 15,000 alcoholics a year in Bellevue. Last year there were 5,942 of these. Formerly 2 or 3 per cent. were drug addicts. Last year there were noted 145 in drug addiction."

Another who reported that he saw no connection between prohibition and the use of narcotics was Dr. Carlton Simon, Special Deputy Police Commissioner. The use of drugs has been reduced "to a minimum" in San Francisco, according to D. J. O'Brien, Chief of Police. Michael H. Crowley, Superintendent of Police at Boston, said that he had noticed cases where an addict, deprived of drugs, occasionally would stupefy himself or herself to escape from the agony of drug hunger. Chief Magistrate McAdoo reported against the theory that the absence of liquor caused persons to turn to drugs.

79 Alcohol Deaths Recorded in May.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12 (AP).—Seventy-nine deaths from alcoholism in New York State during May were reported today by the State Department of Health. This was eleven times the number recorded in May, 1920. Of the nine pre-prohibition years for which the department has records, only three registered a higher monthly total than May, 1925. The number of deaths from alcoholism has increased each year since 1920.

AN 'ENVOY OF AMITY' NOW IN PHILIPPINES

Rev. Mr. Neff to Aid the Islands In Their Bid for Independence.

SENT BY A GROUP HERE

Fellowship of Reconciliation in Statement Finds "Peril" in Our Control of the Territory.

The Rev. Clarence A. Neff of Foochow, China, landed in the Philippines last Friday as an ambassador of friendship to the Filipinos, having been sent by the American Branch of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, whose offices are at 383 Bible House, this city. A cablegram was received at the offices here yesterday telling of his arrival.

"Mr. Neff was sent to convey to the people there the knowledge that there is in America a growing group which is in cordial sympathy with their aspirations for independence and to enlist the cooperation of the peoples of the islands in the methods of peaceful understanding and team-work to which the Fellowship is committed," said a statement issued by the American branch.

"The American group of the Fellowship," adds the statement, "sees in the continued holding of the Philippine Islands by the United States a situation which will increasingly foster suspicion and hostility on the part of the Filipinos and repressive methods on our own part, both leading to possible ultimate conflict.

"Instead of waiting until this stage is reached and then protesting against war at a time when the forces of understanding and good-will will have been relegated to the background, the Fellowship desires now to unite the latent good-will of Americans for the creation of a public opinion which will redeem the assurance of independence we have given to the Filipinos, and to encourage the latter to seek not only political freedom but that larger freedom which comes from a liberated life.

"The members of the Fellowship believe that if independence can be granted soon in a friendly spirit it will be of more value to the islands than if granted in exasperation at a time when bitterness has come to dominate the situation. The Fellowship has about 4,000 members in this country and a small group in the Philippine Islands. Similar groups are organized in eighteen different countries, including Japan and China.

"Mr. Neff will spend a month in the islands speaking before various organizations and holding meetings in towns and cities. The arrangements for his visit have been made by Dr. Frank C. Laubach, Dean of Union Theological Seminary of Manila. Other representatives of the Fellowship will visit the islands later in order to strengthen the bond which is now being created."

FRENCH LANDS RESTORED.

War Damages More Than 95 Per Cent. Repaired.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—A report to the Department of Commerce from C. L. Jones, commercial attache at Paris, says that in the French devastated regions more than 95 per cent. of land, and 91 per cent. of factories have been restored, that another year should see the complete fulfillment of the extensive restoration program begun by the French Government soon after the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, and that only 22,500,000 francs as a maximum is needed to finish the work.

Figures presented by Mr. Jones in support of his statements show that the 7,250,000 acres of land rendered unsuitable for use at the time of the armistice, 95 per cent. had been restored on Jan. 1, 1925. Practically all the land covered with barbed wire entanglements had been cleared, and 97 per cent. of the earth thrown up in making trenches has now been used for filling in. Of the nearly 5,000,000 acres of farm land unsuitable for use at the time of the armistice, 4,525,000 acres had been leveled off.

At the time of the armistice the number of destroyed buildings had reached 893,792. On Jan. 1, 1925, 508,319 of these had been rebuilt. A considerable number of the destroyed buildings will not be restored, as their owners have accepted war damages with no intention to rebuild.

The number of factories destroyed in the war was 22,900. On Jan. 1, 1925, 21,000 of these had been rebuilt or repaired, as had more than one-half of the 5,081 schools and 3,311 churches destroyed.

On Dec. 31, 1924, France had paid out for the restoration of the devastated regions 74,206,000,000 francs. On the same date the Minister of the Liberated Regions reported that an additional 22,500,000 francs would be necessary to complete this restoration. It is hoped, however, Mr. Jones says, that economies will bring down the total to about 18,250,000 francs.

Motor Concern Robbed of $600.

GOVERNORS ISLAND FIRE INJURES 12

flames. It was impossible to save anything of the wooden barracks and little of the household effects of the occupants could be salvaged because of the rapidity with which the fire spread. Efforts were concentrated on the laundry and the dental clinic directly behind it.

Colonel Paul Freeman, post surgeon, hurried with ambulances to the fire and officers on the links which lie directly west dropped their clubs and ran to aid.

One of the first to be injured was Richard Collins, an ambulance driver who had backed his car as close to the fire as possible. He was struck unconscious by a fire nozzle as he bent to pick up a stretcher. A volunteer jumped to his seat and Collins was taken to the post hospital in his own ambulance. Sergeant Ernest Ricks of the Signal Corps was badly burned on both hands by a high tension wire. Ricks, among the first to respond, saw that there was danger from a tangle of electric wires hanging from the laundry power house. Warning others to stand clear, Ricks took a rubber gas mask to stand on as an insulator, reached up to pull down the wires with his bare hands and 6,600 volts ran through his body. As he reeled from the shock, he pulled the wires down, thereby breaking the circuit. He was taken to the hospital in the car with Collins.

Sergeant John R. Hammond was struck on the head and knocked unconscious by a chair thrown out by an overzealous salvage worker. At the post hospital last night it was said that the condition of all the injured was good. A list of those hurt follows:

BROWN, Private FRANCIS, medical department, exhaustion.
CAVEY, Private JOHN J., mail orderly, overcome by heat.
COLLINS, Private RICHARD, in charge of an ambulance, head abrasion from blow from hose nozzle.
FORSTER, Lieutenant GEORGE L., aide-de-camp to General Charles P. Summerall, bruised and contusions.
GILLFILLAN, Captain JOHN E., face and hands scorched.
GUILE, Private HAROLD H., Company B, burns on face and arms.
HAMMOND, Staff Sergeant JOHN R., leg bruised by falling chair.
JOYCE, MICHAEL, post plumber, overcome by smoke.
LANCE, Sergeant DELBERT W., Company D, overcome by smoke and heat.
MOORE, Private BERNARD, Motor Transportation Corps, cuts about the body.
RICKS, Sergeant ERNEST, Signal Corps, hands burned.
Military prisoner, arm burned.

To Hold Inquiry Today.

At 4 o'clock, after a two and a half hour battle the fire was out. Chief O'Donohue ordered his men to "pick up." Lieutenant McKeon followed, leaving two soldier firemen to wet down the ruins and Provost Sergeant Kenna lined up his tired prisoners and marched them back to Castle Williams. Before they started Kenna turned to look at the half acre of twisted iron and ashes and shook his head. "Look at this mess," he said, "and we just got this post cleaned up for a general inspection."

Captain Gillfillan said last night that an investigation would be started today to ascertain the cause of the fire and the damage. "The damage will not be great," he said. "The barracks were to have been torn down soon anyway, as other quarters have been provided for the non-commissioned officers and their families."

Last night the homeless were housed in the officers' club and today other arrangements will be made to care for them.

JOSEF HOFMANN says:
"The Duo-Art is supreme in presenting a true likeness of the pianist's playing."

The DUO-ART
REPRODUCING PIANO

THE DUO-ART is the instrument that people are now so anxious to have. Every day greater numbers are exchanging their old pianos for it. It is superseding the regular hand-played piano — even the more recent pianola — because, while it embraces both of these, it offers so much more!

In addition to the piano, in addition to the pianola, the DUO-ART is something which until a few years ago was not even imagined.

Picture this instrument if you can,—it stands in your living-room, to all appearances simply a handsome piano. Touch its keys and you realize its richness of tone. But when you insert an artist's DUO-ART roll—then the wonder of this modern piano is disclosed.

Enthralled, you hear Paderewski play his own exquisite Minuet—you hear Hofmann as he plays today—as when he holds thousands breathless at Carnegie Hall! You hear practically any great artist you choose. Another roll and you hear the most perfect dance music—or lovely old ballads—or an accompaniment to voice or stringed instrument played by an authority on how it should be played—

Is it any wonder that this great instrument has taken the world by storm? That its sale in Europe, Australia and South America, as well as throughout the United States, is reaching enormous figures?

It is an interesting and significant fact that over 90 per cent. of the reproducing pianos purchased for and installed in educational institutions last year were Duo-Arts.

A few of the great educational institutions using the Duo-Art:
Royal Academy of Music, London
Paris Conservatoire
Sacred College of Music, Rome
Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y.
Oberlin Conservatory of Music, Oberlin, Ohio
Wolcott Conservatory of Music, Denver, Col.

QUITS PARKS FIGHT CHARGING POLITICS

Mrs. Wilmerding Sees Attempt to Commit Conservation Association to Smith's Cause.

ROULSTONE MAKES DENIAL

Head of Organization Says Memorandum Suggesting Support Was Not Made Public.

Mrs. C. H. Wilmerding of 959 Madison Avenue, a delegate to the Parks Conservation Association from the Fifteenth District Republican Club, resigned from the association, in a letter made public yesterday, charging that its Chairman, William B. Roulstone, had attempted to commit the Parks Conservation Association and the seventy-two organizations that belong to it to Governor Smith's State parks policy. She charged that he gave interviews and made speeches which had the effect of throwing the prestige of the Parks Conservation Association in favor of the Smith cause. Her letter continued:

"Because of my intense interest in the parks and my belief that politics should be constructive I was sent as a delegate to the Parks Conservation Association by the Republican Club of the Fifteenth Assembly District. Through me you have put my club on the side of Governor Smith in a matter which, as you expressly state in your report, has become acutely political. As a fact, we are absolutely loyal to the Republican Party, absolutely loyal to Mr. Ogden Mills personally and absolutely with him and Governor Miller in their opposition to the expenditure of great sums of money carelessly.

"For the work of our association I care a great deal, but political chicanery can only create distrust and blast its noble purpose. I must report this occurrence to my club which I represent and also I believe it to be my duty to give this letter to the papers in order that my club's loyalty to the party and to Mr. Mills and my own loyalty to the club may not be questioned. The delegates to the association, too, who were not present at Wednesday's meeting should understand the situation as should the people up-State to whom you have talked.

"Believe me, I regret extremely that I must take this step. You have done splendid work which I have been proud to support, but under the circumstances I can see no other course to pursue."

Replying to Mrs. Wilmerding, Mr. Roulstone said yesterday:

"I have very carefully done the very opposite of what Miss Wilmerding says I have done. I have carefully kept the association out of any political controversy. The report which she refers to as committing her organization was a memorandum which I prepared for the information of our members and was not made public and has not been made public by me. Mrs. Wilmerding came along and made it public herself and then complains that it has been made public and has committed her.

"As to her complaint of politics, let me say that Mrs. Wilmerding has belonged to this association for eighteen months and during that time she has heard me attack Mayor Hylan repeatedly for his indifference to the fate of the city parks and to the welfare of the people of this city, and she has not made one gesture of dissent. When I found it necessary, on the other hand, to comment very midly on the action of certain Republicans, she rushes into print with this letter. It becomes necessary, in defending the parks, to attack their enemies, whether they are Democrats or Republicans, and it is useless for those who applaud me when I happen to attack a Democrat to try to muzzle me when I make the least critical mention of a Republican."

PEDDLERS PROPOSE 7 MARKET CHANGES

City Federation Moves to Reorganize After Revelations of Graft Inquiry.

Magistrate Simpson, Who Conducted the Hearing, and Commissioner O'Malley Get Resolution.

A meeting last night of the Federation of Citizen Peddlers of Greater New York, at 128 Stanton Street, adopted recommendations to Mayor Hylan for a reorganization of the public markets for push-cart peddlers of the Municipal Department of Markets. A resolution containing suggestions for changes in the markets, presented by I. Weisengreen, attorney for the federation, was headed with this statement:

"The recent hearing and investigation in the 'John Doe' proceedings of the peddlers' graft charges in the public markets has proven to us conclusively the urgent need of radical changes in the administration of these markets."

The recommendations were addressed to Mayor Hylan, City Magistrate Simpson of the Bronx, who heard the charges, but has not yet rendered a report, and to Commissioner Edward O'Malley of the Department of Markets.

Seven recommendations were ordered sent to these officials, as follows:

Eliminate the weekly license fee of $1 and replace it with a yearly license, based on the actual cost of supervision. A reduction in the number of supervisors, to diminish the cost of supervision. Market rules and regulations to be printed and distributed to all licensed peddlers. Market locations to be assigned according to seniority of time in the markets. The tin plate license now attached to push carts to be replaced by a button for each licensed individual. That peddlers be permitted to sell, if necessary, other articles than those specified in the permit. The federation to recommend applicants for locations.

MODERN LIBRARY SOLD.

Corporation Is Reported to Have Paid About $250,000 for It.

Boni & Liveright, publishers, of 61 West Forty-eighth Street, announced yesterday the sale of the Modern Library, a popular series of modern classics, at a price reported to be in the neighborhood of $250,000.

The purchaser is the Modern Library, Inc., of which Bennett A. Cerf is President. The new President of the Modern Library, Inc., is 27 years old. He is a graduate of the Columbia School of Journalism. As a student he was editor of The Columbia Jester, Columbia's humorous weekly. Mr. Cerf spent three years in Wall Street. In 1923 he joined Boni & Liveright, later becoming Vice President and a director.

The Modern Library was incorporated in 1917 to specialize in modern classics.

State Raises $400,000 for Legion.

A total of $400,000 has been raised in New York State in the $5,000,000 American Legion Endowment Fund campaign for war orphans and disabled veterans, it was announced yesterday by Franklin D. Roosevelt, State Chairman. The State quota is $1,500,000. Livingston, Warren and Chemung Counties have already raised their quotas. In Manhattan forty-four of the sixty-two active posts are fully organized and pledged to raise $200,000.

FRANKLIN

The American Style-Leader of Sport Runabouts

There is more than mere beauty in this appealing New Franklin design. De Causse has gotten into it a style, a dash, a freshness, which is the very personification of power, speed and the open road. This is tempered by a fine European dignity of line, creating an effect which excites unanimous and lasting admiration. There must be something unusual about its appearance to make so many people call it the smartest runabout they have ever seen. And there is certainly something unusual about its performance, and about the Franklin reputation, to make so many buy it on sight. The new American style-leader of sport runabouts.

A One Profit Coach

—in quality a fine five-passenger Coupe

You doubtless read in yesterday's paper the full page advertisement of The Studebaker Corporation of America reproduced at the right. In my opinion this is the most important announcement ever made to New York motorists. I strongly urge that you come in and see the remarkable values made possible by this "one profit" principle of motor car manufacture. Remember, too, that we have unexcelled service facilities, including the largest service station in the world.

Edward J. Munnanb.
Manager of Retail Sales
New York Branch.

THIS is an unusual opportunity for the motorists of New York to inspect the remarkable values made possible by the Studebaker "one-profit" principle of motor car manufacture.

Our convenient showrooms throughout New York, Brooklyn and Jamaica have on display a complete line of Studebaker cars.

But in order to make selection easy we are particularly featuring the Special Six Coach—the lowest priced closed car ever offered on the famous Studebaker Special Six Chassis.

It is a coach in price alone. But in quality a fine type of five-passenger coupe.

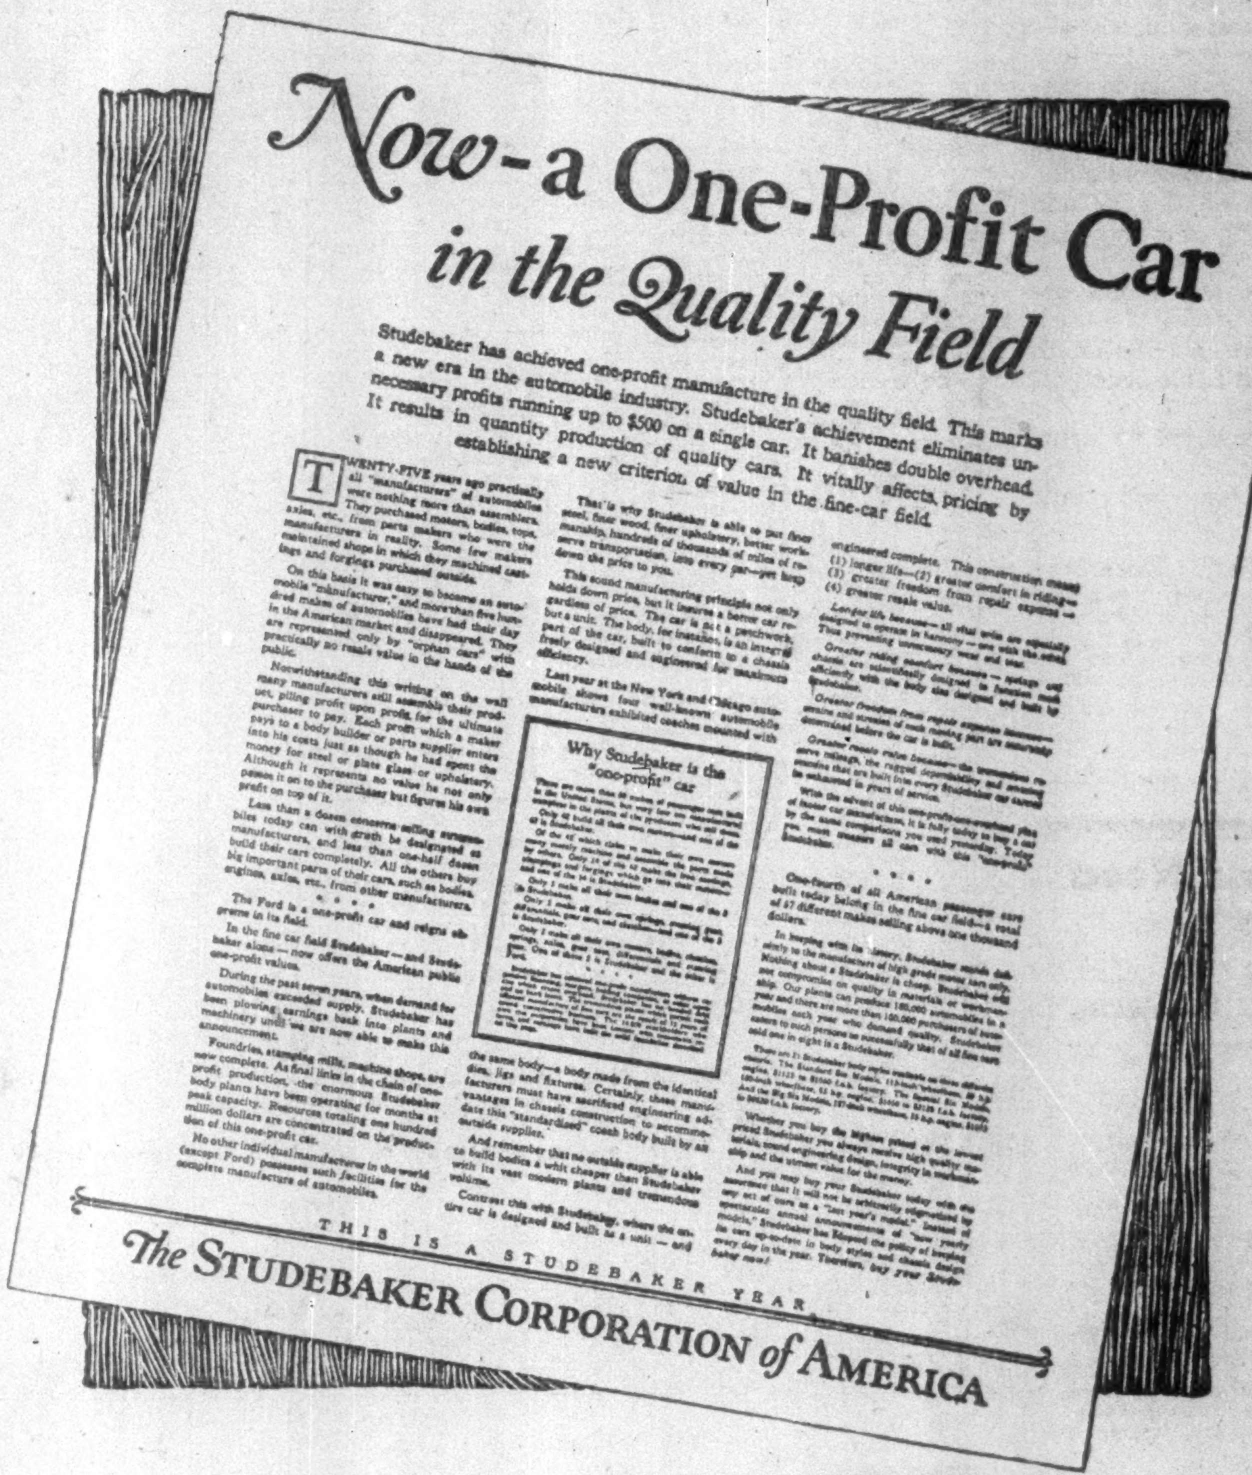
Here is a closed car upholstered in a fine quality of material—with high-grade carpeting—with heavy decorative doorpulls to assist passengers in alighting.

Here is a closed car of unusual room and comfort. To get a coach as large and roomy you must pay $1000 more in price.

It is mounted on the famous Special Six Chassis and built complete by Studebaker—body, engine, transmission, clutch, brakes, etc. Thus it is a "one-profit" car and is sold at a one-profit price.

In justice to yourself come in and see this Special Six Coach before you consider any other car. Ride in it—drive it—see for yourself the outstanding value it offers.

Call at any of our convenient showrooms and let us arrange a demonstration.



Now—a One-Profit Car in the Quality Field

Studebaker has achieved one-profit manufacture in the quality field. This marks a new era in the automobile industry. Studebaker's achievement eliminates unnecessary profits running up to $500 on a single car. It banishes double overhead. It results in quantity production of quality cars. It vitally affects pricing by establishing a new criterion of value in the fine-car field.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago practically all "manufacturers" of automobiles were nothing more than assemblers. They purchased motors, bodies, tops, axles, etc., from parts makers who were the manufacturers in reality. Some few makers maintained shops in which they machined castings and forgings purchased outside.

On this basis it was easy to become an automobile "manufacturer," and more than five hundred makes of automobiles have had their day in the American market and disappeared. They are represented only by "orphan cars" with practically no resale value in the hands of the public.

Notwithstanding this writing on the wall many manufacturers still assemble their product, piling profit upon profit for the ultimate purchaser to pay. Each profit which a maker pays to a body builder or parts supplier enters into his costs just as though he had spent the money for steel or plate glass or upholstery. Although it represents no value he not only passes it on to the purchaser but figures his own profit on top of it.

Less than a dozen concerns selling automobiles today can with truth be designated as manufacturers, and less than one-half dozen build their cars completely. All the others buy big important parts of their cars, such as bodies, engines, axles, etc., from other manufacturers.

The Ford is a one-profit car and reigns supreme in its field.

In the fine car field Studebaker — and Studebaker alone — now offers the American public one-profit values.

During the past seven years, when demand for automobiles exceeded supply, Studebaker has been plowing earnings back into plants and machinery until we are now able to make this announcement.

Foundries, stamping mills, machine shops, are now complete. As final links in the chain of one-profit production, the enormous Studebaker body plants have been operating for months at peak capacity. Resources totaling one hundred million dollars are concentrated on the production of this one-profit car.

No other individual manufacturer in the world (except Ford) possesses such facilities for the complete manufacture of automobiles.

That's why Studebaker is able to put finer steel, finer wood, finer upholstery, better workmanship, hundreds of thousands of miles of reserve transportation, into every car—yet keep down the price to you.

This sound manufacturing principle not only holds down price, but it insures a better car regardless of price. The car is not a patchwork, but a unit. The body, for instance, is an integral part of the car, built to conform to a chassis freely designed and engineered for maximum efficiency.

Last year at the New York and Chicago automobile shows four well-known automobile manufacturers exhibited coaches mounted with the same body—a body made from the identical dies, jigs and fixtures. Certainly, these manufacturers must have sacrificed engineering advantages in chassis construction to accommodate this "standardized" coach body built by an outside supplier.

And remember that no outside supplier is able to build bodies a whit cheaper than Studebaker with its vast modern plants and tremendous volume.

Contrast this with Studebaker, where the entire car is designed and built as a unit — and engineered complete. This construction means (1) longer life—(2) greater comfort in riding—(3) greater freedom from repair expense — (4) greater resale value.

Why Studebaker is the "one-profit" car

One-fourth of all American passenger cars built today belong in the fine car field—a total of 57 different makes selling above one thousand dollars.

BRAVED DIRE PERILS TO MEET AMUNDSEN

Associated Press Correspondent Now Recounts His Adventures in Arctic's Icy Seas.

AID REFUSED BY NORWAY

Trips in "Crazy" Ships and a Leaky Rowboat With Drunken Crew to Get News Off.

(By The Associated Press.)

How a staff correspondent of The Associated Press, who was sent to the Arctic regions to learn the fate of the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole expedition, unflinchingly braved the perils of the icy seas can now be told.

Less than a month ago, when the world was praying for the safe return of the Norwegian explorer's party—believed by many a forlorn hope—J. A. Bouman of the London Bureau of The Associated Press was encountering hazards as great as those of the explorers. His risks were in the line of duty. He had no thought of fame. His work, like that of all employes of his organization, was to be anonymous. His reward was to be only the knowledge that he had done his best, had met courageously the hazards that beset his journey. The public is entitled to the story.

When the Amundsen party hopped off from Spitzbergen on May 21 in two airplanes in an effort to fly to the North Pole their aim was to be back within two or three days at the most. When days and weeks passed without any word coming from the adventurers there was insistent demand that a relief expedition be sent to Spitzbergen and as much nearer the Pole as ships and airplanes could reconnoitre. The Norwegian Government finally responded, an it was arranged to send airplanes and fliers to Spitzbergen on the coal carrier Ingertre.

Meanwhile Mr. Bouman had been sent from London to Oslo, the capital of Norway, where the Norwegian Aero Club had bought the exclusive rights to the personal narratives of Amundsen and members of his party. Bouman, a man of 52 years and not particularly robust, cheerfully accepted the assignment to proceed with the relief ship, notwithstanding that he suffered severely from a cold caught on the fifty-hour journey from London.

The Associated Press had applied to the Norwegian Government for permission to have its representative go on the rescue ship. Finally, the permission, including the promise of the ship's wireless, was obtained. Later the rescuers left the ship, eventually transferring to another Government ship, the Heimdal, and Bouman was not permitted to board it. He was left stranded at Advent Bay, where ships rarely touch.

This constituted the only instance in the history of The Associated Press where any Government has not willingly accorded facilities for obtaining the story of an effort to save human life.

When, in the face of these obstacles, Bouman at last reached his objective and obtained the news, three days went by before he was permitted to send it. It was said that the wireless station at King's Bay was privately controlled. As to the wireless aboard the steamer Heimdal, also at King's Bay, a message received from that vessel by The Associated Press explains why Bouman was not heard from. It reads:

"Your correspondent arrived King's Bay. Found Amundsen, Ellsworth good health, but in accordance agreement with Norwegian Aero Club, I, its press agent, am compelled stop all news messages regarding Amundsen expedition."

It was with hardly more than his Summer clothes as an Arctic outfit that Mr. Bouman hastily left London for Oslo to board the relief ship. There he found a fellow-newspaper man, who subsequently shared his experiences—William Bird of The Consolidated Press. Aboard a vessel by which he was making his way back to Oslo, which he reached before Amundsen did, Mr. Bouman wrote the following to The Associated Press:

"The main difficulty in joining the relief expedition was to break through the objections of the Amundsen press monopoly, which aimed at annexing the relief story as well as the polar expedition story. One, they held, was part and parcel of the other. The Norwegian Aero Club, which promoted Amundsen's expedition, had perfect interlocking arrangements with the Norwegian Admiralty, the Air Department and the Spitzbergen coal companies—which virtually rule the Svalbard Archipelago—and it took a vast amount of trouble, including a Cabinet Council, to get any move at all in the matter. American Minister Swenson and Consul General Snyder, however, gave most valuable assistance, and eventually I was permitted to join the relief mission aboard the Ingertre.

"The Ingertre, as you know, was first scheduled to go to King's Bay. Spitzbergen may look small on a world's map, but the distances are enormous, and means of local transportation (necessarily by sea) are slow at this time of the year. With King's Bay radio monopolized by the Amundsen press organization, one might as well be in London or New York as at Green Harbor or Advent Bay. As a matter of fact, the first public announcement of Amundsen's return reached Green Harbor in a wireless from New York instead of from the port on the other side of the island.

"Our next troubles began at Advent Bay, where the Ingertre landed the relief men and ourselves. The former flew to King's Bay, and, despite most urgent appeals, we could get no transportation farther north on the patrolship Heimdal. We had to find a ship of our own to take us there.

Adventure in Leaky Rowboat.

"Incidentally, we had a taste of adventure here while trying to get to the Advent Bay radio from the Ingertre, which was coaling about a mile or so away from the jetty. Walking along the broken shore was impossible, but three men offered to row us (Bird and me) in a crazy boat, which was leaking through every seam and with a fresh breeze blowing over turbulent waters. Too late we discovered they were drunk as owls, and later they became quarrelsome.

"One of them conceived a fancy that I was a German, in which case he roared he would take extreme pleasure in throwing me overboard without ceremony. We endeavored to placate them, but he kept on repeating in all intonations the cheerful refrain: 'You German, overboard you go.'

"We zigzagged across those choppy waters for an hour and a half, holding on to the gunwale for dear life, with our baggage and feet in cold water, and were ultimately conveyed to land by a launch from the steamer Farm.

"There were no sealers or coalships available in Advent Bay or anywhere else, and the only means offered, as we ascertained by wireless, was an old 35-foot motor sloop at Green Harbor, which we agreed to charter for at least three weeks. We therefore left Advent Bay for Green Harbor by the Forsete, a cargo steamer, which by a lucky chance was to call at our destination—three hour's steaming.

"At Green Harbor we found our sloop on a small slipway undergoing repairs. Even to a landsman like myself it was perfectly obvious that this frail craft would never survive even a moderate gale, but I was determined to follow in the Heimdal's track and get the use of her wireless. Our first call would necessarily be King's Bay, thence to Dane Island and further north to and along the ice barrier.

"I have no hesitation in saying that if ever there was a foolhardy enterprise it was this. People at Advent Bay and Green Harbor thought us crazy, but there was no other way. Then, the ship having been made what was euphemistically called 'seaworthy,' the news came that Amundsen had returned, which made it all the more urgent for us to go to King's Bay forthwith. We sailed June 19 at 1:30 P. M.

"The distance from Green Harbor to King's Bay is roughly 100 miles, our course being outside Prince Charles foreland, passage by the inner sound being blocked by solid ice. At about six knots an hour I reckoned we would do this in about sixteen hours, but instead it took twenty-one hours. First of all, our drinking water was found to be foul, so we had to moor to an iceberg, from which we took a fresh supply from a pool on the top of it. Year-old ice, of course, is quite sweet.

"The mouth of the ice fiord was full of floes, large and small, and we got some buffetings from them while nosing our course through. Then we got out into the open Arctic Ocean and headed due north. In a heavy swell our boat was tossed about like a cork, and four times that night the motor broke down. Our crew worked heroically, but when we limped into King's Bay the next forenoon we found our connection bearings were burnt through and our boat temporarily out of commission.

"Next came the great problem how to get off such news as I could gather in chats with Amundsen, Ellsworth and their companions. Of course they were perfectly friendly; indeed, we were a happy party together; but by the terms of their contract their mouths were sealed. Amundsen repeatedly expressed genuine regret at being thus tied.

"Hundreds of telegrams to Amundsen, besides the official story, kept operators both at King's Bay and Green Harbor busy for days throughout the twenty-four hours. Here was I with a real story and no possible chance of getting my stuff away. Our boat was still useless, otherwise we would have sent her back to Green Harbor with the messages.

"Suddenly—a ray of hope. The relief aviators were going up for a practice spin and it was arranged they should go to Green Harbor. These young officers were fine sportsmen, thoroughly good fellows and entirely in sympathy with my plight. They could not, of course, undertake to deliver my messages at the radio station, but I arranged that they should drop a parcel addressed to the proprietor of our boat. This parcel contained my messages, with a letter asking him to deliver them to the radio.

Messages Barred From Radio.

"I was overjoyed when the airmen went up, but my hopes were dashed when half an hour later I heard their motors again. A fog had suddenly descended and they were obliged to come back. Finally, the Albert W. Selmer came in—I made a dash for the Marconi operator, who cheerfully accepted all the copy offered. More elation—followed by further disappointment; for after several attempts Green Harbor told him to shut up; they would not take his radio offerings.

"Of course, I made every attempt to get back to Norway with the Amundsen party, but found it quite impossible. By taking the Hobby to Tromsoe, however, we reckoned we could beat the party into Oslo and prepare for the reception ceremonies.

"That voyage from Spitzbergen to Tromsoe I am not likely to forget. The Hobby is reputed to be the worst roller in the whole Norwegian mercantile service, and she certainly rolled, caracoled, sidestepped and did everything but capsize in the angry polar sea. I didn't get out of my clothes for four nights and three days and couldn't eat anything for thirty-six hours on end. There was no bunk for me, and I lay down on a narrow ledge in the Chief Engineer's cabin, not caring whether the darned ship went down to Davy Jones's locker.

"The ship had been in continuous use since March and was pervaded by all imaginable sorts of smells, including those emanating from carcasses and skins of all sorts of polar fauna. A dense fog off the iron-bound North Norwegian coast made entrance into the fjord leading to Tromsoe very dangerous.

"Let me place on record the unfailing kindness and hospitality of the coal managers and chief engineers at the places we visited. Their homes were thrown open to us and they were veritable havens of refuge from our discomforts, but the frozen wilderness begins at their back doors. Those coal managers are kings in their own domain; there is yet no Norwegian authority of any sort in the islands. The companies make the laws and the managers enforce them. It is a perfect working example of a benevolent autocracy.

" 'Tromsoe, thou paradise,' begins a popular Spitzbergen trapper's ditty, and although its unpaved streets were ankle-deep in mud and a dismal, chilly fog hung over the town, it certainly seemed a paradise to me."

CALLS TRIP TO POLE EASY.

Little Danger There for an Airship, Dr. Eckener Asserts.

KOENIGSBURG, Germany, July 12 (AP).—Statements that airship exploration in the region of the North Pole involve material risks were contradicted today by Dr. Hugo Eckener, Director of the Zeppelin plant, who, speaking before the German Publishers' Association, asserted that the only inconvenience and possible danger were from localized storms caused by the meeting of hot and cold air currents. These, however, were not expected at the Pole, where the average Summer temperature was zero.

"With an airship it is possible to determine definitely the land and water distribution at the North Pole, whether there are large stretches of land on this or the other side of the Pole, the depth of the waters, and if the Pole area is occupied by a shallow lake or deep ocean," he said.

"The results of the observations will facilitate the drawing of important conclusions about ocean currents and meteorological relations. They will also enable experimental research on atmospheric electricity, the earth's magnetism and the phenomenon of Polar lights.' "

Topics Discussed in the Metropolitan Pulpits Yesterday

SAYS BRYAN GROUP BETRAYS FREEDOM

Real Issue Is Whether We Shall Return to Medievalism, He Tells Unitarians Here.

The Rev. Dr. Albert C. Dieffenbach, preaching yesterday on "Evolution vs. a State Church," in the West Side Unitarian Church, 110th Street, near Broadway, attacked Fundamentalism as a religion of authority and a treason against a free country. He criticised William J. Bryan severely for speaking after the manner of democracy, "when his whole attitude is that of autocracy," and hailed evolution as the most glorious confirmation of Christianity in the twentieth century.

Dr. Dieffenbach is editor of The Christian Register of Boston, Mass. He occupied the pulpit in the absence of the Rev. Charles Francis Potter, who is in Dayton, Tenn., for the Scopes trial. Dr. Dieffenbach said:

"Evolution is only a single phase of a much larger issue. It is true that the Fundamentalist is intensely opposed to the scientific theory of human creation, and his tactics are wise to focus on a single popular idea rather than on a general religious principle, because the people can understand talk about a monkey and they may not be able to grasp the deeper meaning of this whole controversy, which involves nothing less than the old conflict which we falsely thought was settled in the sixteenth century.

"What Mr. Bryan and in fact nine-tenths of the churches are trying to do is to maintain the religion of authority as against the religion of the spirit. Evolution is one of the things the religion of the spirit has brought forth in the past generation. Because it runs counter to the teaching in the Book of Genesis, in their judgment, they will have none of it. That is because their authority is the Bible. They do not believe in free inquiry, and if the open quest of truth finds any data which the Fundamentalists think are contrary to the ancient Book they will do as they are doing in Tennessee—treat with anathema those who are faithless to the authority."

"In other words," continued Dr. Dieffenbach, "today we have the divine right of a legislature instead of the divine right of kings. We have, in the Fundamentalist, betrayal of the religion of Jesus Christ and treason against a free country.

"Evolution does not antagonize the Bible, because the Bible nowhere claims for itself what the Fundamentalists claim for it. The Bible said nothing against slavery, but we learned slavery was wrong. We grow in wisdom with the ages, and human experience is itself a golden testimony to evolution. And evolution, far from undermining Christianity, places the highest value on the spiritual things, as Jesus did, and is concerned with true theology more than sound biology.

"But evolution is relatively unimportant. The great thing which we must decide is whether or not we are going to have a religion of authority or a religion of freedom. The Fundamentalist has three propositions: First, there must be external authority over the soul of the individual, and this authority must be exercised by a person as defined by the Church. Second, the average man is not fit for religious freedom, and he cannot be trusted with his reason. Third, if a man will not acknowledge the authority of the Church as interpreter of biblical doctrines, his rights as a citizen and his freedom shall be taken away, in so far as religious expression is concerned.

"Against these dogmas as they are coming to the test in Tennessee we stand with three great principles, true to the religion of Christ, true to America, and for them we will give our souls in this conflict. They are absolute freedom of private judgment, the abolishment of all external authority, whether in a person, the Bible or the Church; and authority to reside within the indiivdual's own soul."

ASSAILS DARWINISM AS EVIL.

Dr. Sloan, at Ocean Grove, Says No Modernist Can Be a Christian.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., July 12.—Evolution and Darwinism were attacked by the Rev. Harold Paul Sloan, D. D., of Haddonfield, N. J., in a sermon in the Ocean Grove Auditorium today before an audience of several thousand persons. Dr. Sloan, who is President of the Methodist League for Faith and Life, of Philadelphia, also assailed Modernism, declaring that one could not be a Modernist and a Christian.

Declaring the theories of Darwin "false and monstrous," Dr. Sloan said: "God forgive for their egotism those who think that they are called upon to change the faith of the ages. If they had more humility they might be able to learn more."

Dr. Sloan declared there was no vital difference between the Protestant, Roman Catholic or Greek Catholic churches.

"I have vastly more fellowship with the Church of Rome," he said, "than with any Modernist in any church. Rome will believe with me, but Modernism denies the whole thing."

AMAZED BY DAYTON FURORE.

Dr. Brooks Says Faith of Church Is Not Involved in Scopes Case.

"I am amazed at the supposed conflict this evolution trial is creating," said the Rev. Dr. Arthur W. Brooks yesterday in his sermon in St. John's Episcopal Church, 38 Duncan Avenue, Jersey City. "After all, it is an over-exaggerated and insignificant affair, for it is just a civil trial to determine if a state law has been broken. Nothing touching the faith of the church is involved."

"St. Augustine taught that God was manifested through nature and that the Creator used natural means at his command, of which He was the origin, in an evolutionary manner to form the physical man. But the soul-life is mainly the meaning of the Genesis account of the words, "breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul." This is intended to show the existence of that eternal spark of immortality which lifts man above brute life—the origin of that spiritual consciousness, which expands in the process of his physical evolution.

"This does not mean that man descended from the brute, which after all, is nothing more than a guess—an unproved theory—needing much more evidence than has been offered before any one can or should accept it as a definite law."

CALLS DAYTON TRIAL A SILLY PERFORMANCE

Evolution Does Not Contradict Fact of Creation, Says the Rev. W. B. Kinkead.

The Rev. William B. Kinkead, in his sermon yesterday morning in Trinity Church, described the Scopes trial as "a silly performance." He said it was surprising that such an array of lawyers, educators and scientists should participate, and that the newspapers should represent the case as "a duel to the death between Chrstianity and evolution." Then he said:

"As a matter of fact, there is no necessary conflict between Christianity and evolution. Evolution, it must be remembered, is a theory, a theory which attempts to explain the processes and the order in which living things came to be on the earth.

"In the main, the theory seems to work and to be substantiated by the facts as we know them now. Yet it is only a thory of method and order. No matter how far back the process may be traced, the fact is not disproved that there is a God and that He is the 'creator of heaven and earth and of all things visible and invisible.'

"If you will read carefully the opening pages of the Book of Genesis you will find that no method of creation is set forth at all. A certain order is given, an order which corresponds almost exactly with that which the scientists have agreed upon. They must have a very unworthy idea of the way by which God works who think that when it is written that He made man 'out of the dust of the earth' it means that God molded the dust into the shape of a man, as children sometimes do when making mud pies, and then blew upon it and it came to life! But the Bible makes no such statement.

"There are still some gaps in the steps which science seems to have discovered. But if it should be conclusively proved that the method God used was the gradual development of the lower into the higher forms of life through millions of years, that our remotest ancestor was the oscillaria, the scum which floats upon the surface of the water, or the amoeba, I might have a greater respect for the oscillaria and the amoeba, but I should have no less respect for man, and certainly no less belief in God. It would still be true that He created man, and that He created him from the dust of the earth. What a vision it gives us of the greatness of God. To think of all creation from the beginning of the world, through all the millions of years, working and struggling, in accordance with the great design, that there might be brought forth a creature in the image of God."

Says He Is Ignorant Fanatic With Mania for Persecution.

The Rev. John Haynes Holmes preached on "William Jennings Bryan—Fundamentalist," yesterday in the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. He said:

"Fundamentalism can be summed up in one word—ignorance. Ignorance which is sincere, devout, militant, but still ignorance!

"Mr. Bryan is a true Fundamentalist in the sense that his ignorance is fundamental. Indeed, his ignorance is not only fundamental—it is universal and apparently eternal as well. Nothing else can explain his present religious attitude, and the attitude of the great host of intellectually benighted Fundamentalists whom he so perfectly represents.

"Mr. Bryan's ignorance on the subject of evolution is so prodigious as to be pitiful. He knows little about any aspect of the question, and that little is so twisted and perverted that it is worse than no knowledge at all. Thus he declares again and again that no evidence has ever been presented in favor of evolution. As a matter of fact our natural history museums are filled with evidence. Our libraries groan beneath the weight of books which list multitudinous facts with precision. Every embryo of every child born into the world is a miniature moving-picture of the evolution of the human species from the fish, through the reptile, to the animal and the man. Mr. Bryan declares that no new variety or species has ever been produced within the experience of living men. As a matter of fact, every breeder of pigeons, horses, cows, flowers can produce and has produced new varieties at will. What man has thus done by artificial selection nature can do and does do by natural selection. A high-school freshman would be ashamed to speak of evolution with the utter ignorance which characterizes Mr. Bryan's every utterance.

"In the biblical field, his ignorance is just as colossal as it is in the scientific field. He has apparently never heard of the higher criticism of the Bible, or if he has, he is not familiar with any of its conclusions. Thus he does not know, what has been a commonplace of respectable scholarship for 150 years, that Moses did not write, and could not have written, any of the so-called 'Books of Moses.' He does not know that Genesis contains not one, but two accounts of the creation, which do not agree in important particulars as, for example, the creation of man.

"Come, Mr. Bryan, which story of the creation are you talking about when you say that evolution contradicts Genesis. Is it not fair to ask you to read your Bible, before you ask us to reject great scientific truths in its name?

"Worst of all, Mr. Bryan is ignorant of his own ignorance. It is this fact which explains his arrogance, his intolerance, his mania for repression and persecution. We might pardon his ignorance if it were the ignorance of a simple and humble man. But Mr. Bryan pretends to know when he does not know."

CALLS BRYAN FIGHT FARCE.

Christianity Is Not Concerned in It, Says Rev. S. B. Niles.

One's faith in Christianity ought not to be affected by one's theory of human origin, maintained the Rev. Stanley B. Niles in a sermon yesterday morning in the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Temple, Seventh Avenue near Fourteenth Street.

"Mr. Bryan, great exponent of a creed he would force us to believe," said the preacher, "is standing in a Southern court fighting what he calls the greatest battle of Christianity, the fight against evolution. No wonder he is aroused if he truly believes what he declares he does—namely, that Christianity is the issue and that it lives or dies with his cause.

"But the whole thing seems farcically foolish to me. If Christianity is simply a faith in our origin, then let it die. But it is more than that. It is a fellowship, a fellowship with a living God."

Lauds New Yorkers in Sermons.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 12.—In his sermon in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church here this morning on "Transfigured Life" the Rev. B. M. Denniston, the pastor, referred to the late John S. Huyler of New York and the late Dr. Henry A. Butts, for thirty-two years President of Drew Theological Seminary, as illustrating the transfiguring power of Christianity. He spoke of the public benefactions of the millionaire during his active life and the fact that it had developed since Mr. Huyler's death that thousands of needy cases received his attention which were never known to the public.

SAYS TENNESSEE IGNORES PROGRESS

Christians Need Not Believe in Genesis Literally, Declares Dean Mathews.

SHOULD USE INTELLIGENCE

Dean Cites Beliefs of Biblical Age Which Have Been Discarded Without Harm to Religion.

Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago Divinity School, in a sermon yesterday morning in the Park Avenue Baptist Church, Sixty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, compared the legislature of Tennessee to Robespierre. He said "they are attempting to enforce virtue by a $500 fine as the French reformer tried to enforce it by use of the guillotine."

"How is it that the attention of the whole world is centred on a town so small that the railroad hardly stops there, where a football coach who happens to be a biology teacher is on trial for teaching evolution?" Dean Mathews asked. His answer to the question was that the Dayton trial is the dramatic expression of the problem confronting all intelligent Christians.

"Can we be Christians and still use our intelligence or must we sacrifice our intelligence for the sake of our faith—that is the problem being fought out at Dayton," Dean Mathews said.

"As it seems to me," he went on, "the more we understand the expression of God in Nature, the closer we get to God. We have the voice of God in our hearts, and it doesn't make any difference who our ancestors happened to be. The legislature of Tennessee can never change them. Nor need we change our religion. Christianity need not be restricted by the Bible.

"Our Tennessee reformers are too pugnacious, mistaking pugnacity for spirituality. They insist on ignoring the majestic procession of progressing intelligence. What does the spiritual message of the Bible have to do with the scientific beliefs of a people who lived 2,000 years before Christ?

"Genesis says that vegetables were made before the sun. We know vegetables cannot live without sunlight. How are we to teach botany if this be true? We cannot, without being dragged into court to pay a $500 fine. The people who wrote Genesis believed the world was flat. Must we believe that to believe in God?

"My point is," Dean Mathews continued, "that Bible science is not important. It is pathetic that we cannot see how we are attacking our priceless faith in the spiritual message of the Bible by arguing about scientific theories in that connection.

"These reformers are asking us to do the very thing which Christ refused to do when the devil urged him to leap off a high place—to disregard the laws of nature. Christ would not disregard the law of gravitation as He knew it, without any elaborate Newtonian explanation. Are we to disregard the laws of science as we know them and cling to the science of 2,000 years ago?

"Because Jesus believed in God, He refused to submit to theological control and lived in accordance with the Fatherly will. All nature is corroborating evidence of that will. Given love and salvation we do not need the ancient science of Genesis."

DEPLORES SCOPES TRIAL.

Rev. C. E. Wagner Says Case Will Increase Bigotry and Hatred.

Preaching on "Common Sense Religion" in the West Side Methodist Episcopal Church, 461 West Forty-fourth Street, yesterday the Rev. C. Everett Wagner said:

"In view of such religious oddities as the Scopes trial there is an urgent need of a common sense Christianity in America. What has been demonstrated at Dayton is a nonsense religion.

"The trial is a species of intolerance which is one of the waves that has swept over this nation and others for evil as one of the aftermaths of the World War. The bigotry of the prosecutors and the defendants is not the least of evils of the case. The Scopes trial is going to increase the intolerance and the enmity between these two camps."

SEES PROGRESS IN CHURCH

Dr. Brooks Attacks Those Who Sneer and Call Christianity a Failure

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., July 12.—Speaking on "The Church and the Community" at a union service tonight in the First Methodist Church, the Rev. Dr. John Y. Brook of Trinity Reformed Church said:

"In our day it seems rather bright on the part of certain people to sneer at the Church and say it is a failure. The Church has not failed. It has a spiritual message that no other organization gives and there can be no substitute for the Church. In America the Christian Church has grown five times as fast as our population. She has increased more in the last one hundred years than in the previous centuries of her existence. Think of the value of the Church to the community. There is not a person living in this city who, if all the churches were taken from it, would not be morally and spiritually impoverished. The backbone of our civilization is the Christian religion and Christian Church."

HAYES DEDICATES CHURCH.

Delegation Escorts Cardinal to Edifice at New Dorp.

A new Roman Catholic Church, the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, was dedicated yesterday at New Dorp, Staten Island, by Cardinal Hayes. The Cardinal was met on his arrival on the Island by Mgr. Charles A. Cassidy of St. Peter's Catholic Church, with two motorcycle policemen, who escorted the party to New Dorp. There it was met by a delegation of clergymen from Staten Island parishes and by Borough President John A. Lynch and County Judge Harry Tiernan and the Boys' Band from St. Michael's Home. A large delegation from the Knights of Columbus were also present.

High mass was celebrated at 11 by the Rev. George Warring, Vicar General of the army and navy diocese, assisted by the Rev. Thomas McDonald and the Rev. John White. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Mgr. Cassidy and Cardinal Hayes blessed the building. The new church, which is built of concrete, will have for its parishioners principally residents in the Summer cottages at New Dorp and Oakwood beaches. The Rev. John J. Hopkins will be its pastor.

DR. GILMORE WANTS LITERATURE PURGED

MORAL PARALYSIS ENSUES

Parents Warned to Get Sanitary Squads to Clean Up if Children Are to Be Guarded.

"Sanitary squads" to clean up current literature were recommended by the Rev. Dr. O. T. Gilmore yesterday in his sermon in Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, West 104th Street, near Amsterdam Avenue. He said:

"Attending a theatrical production, seeing a picture, hearing a story or reading a paragraph that sets up a train of thought which breaks down one's highest thought, life and best conduct is much more injurious to us than going into a restaurant and eating bad food. The first, which are quite plentiful, give people a mental and spiritual 'ptomaine poisoning' and often develop a form of toxication and paralysis from which large numbers never again recover good mental and spiritual health. The latter feeding may result in an aching stomach. But by a generous helping of simple antidotes it is soon forgotten.

"If parents of this city really care for the more serious needs of their children, they need in addition to a Department of Health numerous well trained 'sanitary squads' to help them clean up current literature and pictures to be found in all of our neighborhoods. Parents have a double responsibility. They must look not only to what their children are eating and drinking, but also to what they are saying and thinking.

"The reason for the Church's continuously firm stand for prohibition is this: that prohibition opposes forces which are detrimental to all moral standards. Liquor has always had its more demoralizing companions, the whole group being more devastating than Lewisite gas. Recently a Chamber of Commerce went out on one of the Great Lakes for a gala-day. A generous supply of prohibited drinks was on board the boat. When prohibition officers seized the goods and investigated, all on board disclaimed responsibility. Drinking the liquor would not in itself have been as detrimental to the men concerned as the actual dishonesty it caused when they sold their manhood by the lie."

DR. SLATEN ACCEPTS CALL TO PULPIT HERE

Rev. Mr. Potter's Successor Was Once Ousted by Baptist College as a Modernist.

The Rev. Dr. A. Wakefield Slaten, who was ousted three years ago from the faculty of the William Jewell Baptist College, Liberty, Mo., because of his extreme Modernistic writings, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the West Side Unitarian Church, 110th Street, just east of Broadway.

Dr. Slaten will begin his duties there on Oct. 1, next. He was unanimously called a fortnight ago to succeed the Rev. Charles Francis Potter, who leaves on Oct. 1 to become Executive Secretary of Antioch College.

Dr. Slaten now is professor of New Testament in the Pacific Unitarian School for the Ministry, Berkeley, Cal. He is also the director of the Pacific Conference of Unitarian churches.

The announcement that he had accepted the call was made yesterday by John H. McClelland, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the church. Dr. Slaten sent his acceptance from the Isle of Shoals, New Hampshire, where he is lecturing at the Unitarian Summer Conference for the East.

The immediate reason Dr. Slaten was dismissed from the Missouri College was that he wrote a book on "What Jesus Taught," which was called radical in its theology. The book was published by the University of Chicago Press.

VIEWS CHURCH AS MOTHER.

Dr. Proctor Says It Needs Cooperation More Than Criticism.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Hugh Proctor at the celebration of the fifty-second anniversary of the Nazarene Congregational Church, Herkimer Street and Troy Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday, preached on "The Church as Mother."

"In the evolution of humanity," he said, "mother is the climax of God's creation. In view of the fact that she is the fountain of our life we owe all we are to her. What is too good for mother?

"The Church is our spiritual mother, and is the fountainhead of all that is good in humanity. Are we interested in education, business, society, literature, art, politics, the home? It must be confessed that the Church is the mother of all these.

"As such the Church needs our cooperation more than our criticism. Let us give her unstintingly of our time, our talent and our treasure. If so we shall find an abundant harvest in return."

PREACHER ATTACKS JAZZ.

It "Sandpapers the Soul," Says Dr. Samuel W. Hughes.

What he defined as the "imposition of the second-rate upon our character" will soon leave us in a morally bankrupt condition, the Rev. Dr. Samuel W. Hughes of Westbourne Park Chapel, London, England, declared yesterday in the Brick Presbyterian Church at Thirty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue.

As a result of the substitution of jazz for Beethoven, and "journalistic snippits" for literature, he said, man now has an attitude of cynical scoffing, where he once had a reverence for his spiritual heritage.

"If we have any evidence of our need for evolution let us look at jazz, which sandpapers the soul instead of elevating it. Jazz is made up of wretched atavistic sounds which take us back to the jungles."

200 AT SEMINARY SESSIONS.

Dr. Coffin to Speak Daily at Union Theological Conference.

More than two hundred clergymen are students at the fifth annual mid-Summer conference being held at Union Theological Seminary, Broadway and 120th Street. They represent almost every State in the Union and virtually every Protestant denomination.

A feature of this week will be a lecture every day at 11:45 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church and associate professor of homiletics in the seminary.

STRATON SAYS FOSDICK IS A 'SOCIAL EXPERT'

Declares Ousted Pastor's Faith Is Not That of a Minister of the Gospel.

Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, in his sermon yesterday afternoon in the Old Tent Evangel, at Ninety-fifth Street and West End Avenue, defended the Bible from the attacks of Modernists and characterized the teachings of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick as those of a "social expert" rather than the faith of a minister of the Gospel.

The subject of Dr. Straton's discourse was "evangelism and our happy reunion in Heaven." He began by reading all of the twenty-first chapter of Revelation, upon which he developed his theory of the eternal life, based on the inspired and "old-fashioned faith."

He quoted from Dr. Fosdick's writings, in which an incident was mentioned of a man who had lost his daughter and had sought for consolation from Dr. Fosdick, saying, "Preacher, if you have anything to give, give it me now." To that appeal, Dr. Straton said, Dr. Fosdick had answered only by quoting a remark of Napoleon, who, pointing to the stars, had said, "Who made these?"

"Throughout all of that article written by Dr. Fosdick, from which I have quoted," continued Dr. Straton, "there was not one reference to the Bible and not one inspired word from it; only a quotation from an expression by Napoleon—this bloody man, who had destroyed the lives of thousands. But that was the best that this religious guide could do for a broken-hearted father.

"There is at the present hour a great need for a revival of this great theme of our heavenly reunion, for modernism is working toward a materialization of the world that tends to weaken hope for the future."

Dr. Straton referred to a visit he had made to Auburn prison, with the comment that there were probably some people who would like to see him stay there, but that he was "still pastor of a free church that cannot be dominated by wordly-minded people." The Rev. George W. McPherson, who presided at the services, told the congregation that he predicted for Dr. Straton and his church the greatest success of Dr. Straton's career during the next twelve months.

SAYS FAITH BROADENS SOUL

It Overcomes Fear, the Weakening Factor, Dr. McComb Asserts.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel McComb advocated faith as the master word of Christ's teaching and the only satisfactory solution to the problem of life, in his sermon yesterday morning in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, Park Avenue, at Fifty-first Street.

"The essence of the Christian religion is summed up in the four words, 'Fear Not Only Believe,'" he said. "Fear is one of the most persistent and weakening factors of human life. We fear all manner of things. We are afraid of the past; we fear the future; we recognize and are afraid of our own weaknesses.

"Here is where hope comes in. The great antagonist of fear is faith. Faith broadens our souls in such a way that we are conscious of great truths which even our reason cannot affirm. Faith offers the only channel through which we can cast out our doubts, our fears and that mountain of pessimism which is so evident in human life today, and shows the way to that perfect harmony, that peace of mind and soul which passeth understanding."

FINDS INTELLIGENT CRITICS AID CHURCH

ASSAILS LUKEWARM FAITH

Likens Some Churchgoers Who Grow Comatose in Summer to "Slumbering Crocodiles."

Summer proves that most congregations have their "slumbering crocodiles," the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, at Seventy-third Street, declared in his sermon there yesterday morning. His subject was "Playing at Religion," and he said there were a great many so-called Christian people who did just that.

Dr. Coffin asserted that there was much childishness displayed in the indifference which many manifested toward religion.

"It takes sympathy to understand and criticize intelligently, and such appreciative criticism, constructive criticism, is of the utmost value," said Dr. Coffin. "But that is not the 'market-place' variety. That comes from the outside, from those who complain that the Church is too conventional or too innovating, too dogmatic or too vague, too mystical or too little conversant with the unseen.

"The point is that the critics do not really want the life with God, and have no intention of committing themselves to the purpose for which, with all its faults, the Church stands. They are not taking faith and consecration seriously. They are like children playing."

"Dozens of workers in our churches merely play with their jobs," the minister added. "If they handled their business affairs as casually, as irregularly, as carelessly they would lose their positions.

"Summer is always a test of religious fidelity. Certain animals, like the bear, go to sleep during the Winter. A good many church members let their spirits become comatose during the warm weather.

"In some tropical countries when the pools dry up in Summer there are certain curious mud-fishes and crocodiles that spend the dry period in a sort of suspended animation. Most congregations have their counterparts—their slumbering crocodiles."

Earlier in his sermon Dr. Coffin said: "The history of religion, viewed in the large range across the sweep of centuries or viewed in the shorter range of a single lifetime, shows the same fickleness in fashions.

"Now it is one teacher who has the ear of the multitude and now another. For a year or so in a city's life one church is packed, and then another becomes the popular resort."

Dr. Coffin said: "It is the levity with which people treat the whole question both when they appear to reject and even more when they seem to consent, which is appalling."

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

Applications Received at Room 1400 Municipal Building, Manhattan.

The CITY RECORD, published by The City of New York, contains full particulars in relation to all examinations. Issued daily, except Sundays and holidays. Ten cents a copy; $10 a year. 125 Worth St., Manhattan.

STRUCTURAL STEEL DRAFTSMAN, GRADE D.

Applications close 4 P. M. July 22. Subjects: Experience, Technical, Citizenship. Duties: Involve the compiling of data, computations and designing for structural steel and concrete buildings, retaining walls or similar public structures. Requirements: Candidates must have had at least five years of engineering practice, two years of which, at least, must have been fully engaged on reinforced concrete and steel buildings. Graduates of an engineering school of recognized standing will be credited with one year equivalent of the general engineering experience. Several vacancies at $2,760 in various departments.

PATHOLOGIST.

Applications close 4 P. M. July 22. Subjects: Experience, Technical, Practical, Citizenship. Duties: To perform pathological examinations and conduct research work. Requirements: Candidates must possess a medical degree granted on the completion of a standard course of instruction in a medical school of recognized standing. One vacancy in Department of Public Welfare at $2,100. Others occur from time to time.

ASSISTANT ENGINEER, GRADE D.

Applications close 4 P. M. July 22. Subjects: Experience, Technical, Citizenship. Duties: Supervision of subordinates in various lines of civil engineering, depending upon the branch of the City service to which the appointee may be detailed. Requirements: Candidates must have had at least five years' experience in civil engineering. For this grade it is essential that for two years the candidates should have been in responsible charge of a given engineering project in the office or field. Suitable credit will be given, in the experience rating, for graduation from a technical institution of recognized standing. Salary: $2,760 and up. Vacancies occur from time to time.

INSPECTOR OF DREDGING, GRADE 3.

Applications close 4 P. M. July 22. Subjects: Experience, Duties, Citizenship. Duties: To make measurements and soundings of slips, and depth of waters within the pierhead lines; supervise dredging operations and report on the same. Requirements: Candidates must have had at least three years of harbor work as dredger, helper, sounder, captain or foreman of dredging. Salary: $2,160 to $2,760. One vacancy in Department of Docks at $2,160. Others occur from time to time. Persons who filed applications for Inspector of Dredging, Grade 2, between April 7, 1925, and April 23, 1925, need not file applications for this examination.

DOCKMASTER.

Applications close 4 P. M. July 16. Subjects: Experience, Duties, Citizenship. Duties: To take responsible charge of a section of the waterfront, including docks, piers, bulkheads and adjacent thoroughfares. To collect wharfage fees and enforce the laws and rules of the Department of Docks. Requirements: Candidates must have had at least three years' experience in a responsible position in the handling of cargoes, docking of vessels, care of docks, as a port surveyor, inspector or weigher, such as to fit them for work of this character, or equivalent experience. One vacancy at $2,310 in Department of Docks.

CLERK, GRADE 3 (WITH KNOWLEDGE OF COMPTOMETER).

Applications close 4 P. M. July 16. Subjects: Practical Test, Arithmetic, Letter, Handwriting, Citizenship. Requirements: These clerks will be required to operate non-listing comptometer machines for checking additions, and tabulated work, and calculating averages. They must also be able to transcribe figures in longhand with care and neatness. Speed and accuracy in the operation of the machine is essential. Salary: $1,560 to $2,160. One vacancy at $1,560 in the Borough of Queens.

ACTUARIAL CLERK, GRADE 2.

Applications close 4 P. M. July 16. Minimum age 18. Subjects: Experience, Duties, Mathematics, Citizenship. Duties: To assist in the adjustment of crude mortality rates prepared from tabulations, the construction of mortality and active service tables, the preparation of commutation columns and the development of monetary values based thereon. Requirements: A working knowledge of actuarial terms, symbols and formulae and of mathematics as applied to actuarial work. Salary: $960 to $1,560. One vacancy in the Teachers' Retirement System at $108 a month.

STENOGRAPHER AND TYPEWRITER, GRADE 4 (REPORTING STENOGRAPHER).

Applications close 4 P. M. July 16. Subjects: Elimination Test, Transcription, Facility and Citizenship. Duties: To report and transcribe testimony given at meetings, investigations and public hearings of city departments, or offices, and to do such incidental and stenographic and typewriting work as may be required. Requirements: The examination will consist of various tests dictated at the rate of 150, 160 and 175 words per minute. Salary: $2,160 to $2,760. One vacancy in Department of Taxes and Assessments at $2,160.

FOREMAN DOCK BUILDER (AMENDED NOTICE).

Applications close 4 P. M. July 16. Subjects: Experience, Duties, Oral Practical, Citizenship. Duties: The supervision of the construction of ferry racks, piers and docks, both timber and concrete, including all operations of dredging and pile driving. PROHIBITION AND PATRONAGE.

General LINCOLN ANDREWS, now in general charge of prohibition enforcement, has met an obstacle that he scarcely could have foreseen. In his desire to get better results he has worked out a comprehensive plan reorganizing the whole system of enforcing the Volstead act. Disregarding State lines, he has followed the division of the country into judicial districts and proposes to name some twenty-two administrators, one in charge of each. Naturally, with his keen eye for military efficiency, he wants to secure the best possible men as these local commanders under him. But in such a selection of subordinates, whom he can direct and hold personally responsible, he has already been warned that he is not to be allowed to have a free hand. Here are important offices to be filled, and the politicians, scenting the good things from afar, are descending on Washington to notify General ANDREWS that the appointments must be made at their suggestion, or at least with their consent, or they will know the reason why. It is said that the Republican whip of the Senate has bluntly told General ANDREWS that he himself will be refused confirmation by the Senate unless he agrees to do the right thing in the parceling out of offices.

Thus we see that prohibition is a splendid thing, but that patronage is something nobler and far more essential. From the first, prohibition enforcement has been infected and weakened by the spoils idea. The strong probability is that the Volstead act could not have got through Congress unless the swarm of agents and inspectors under it had been exempted from the civil service requirements. If the politicians of both parties had not been permitted to give these offices to their own followers they would have promptly fallen out of love with prohibition. To this day they act, or at least the majority of them act, as if they thought only of the "jobs" to be apportioned, and cared little or nothing what the effect might be upon the execution of the law. And now, when an able and honest man is undertaking to clean up the whole business of enforcement and place it in the hands of competent and energetic men he is halted by the spoilsmongers.

General ANDREWS will doubtless find a way to escape from this political blockade. A part of his uncommon capacity must lie in ability to deal with difficult situations and with unreasonable men. A few of the former State enforcers of prohibition he may find that he can accept on their record for his new organization. But if it comes to a square issue with office-grabbers he will presumably go to Secretary MELLON and President COOLIDGE for support against selfish and scheming partisans, and his superior officers cannot fail to back him up to the limit.

CLEANSING THE SEAS.

The decision of the War Department to withdraw as soon as possible the permission for the City of New York to dump its garbage at sea makes it necessary for the City Fathers to hasten the completion of their incinerator plants. Until these are finished, of course, the present unclean practice will have to continue, but relief for those who frequent the beaches is finally in sight.

It is only natural that persons interested in defending the city bring up again the old story that the refuse which litters the beaches comes from passing vessels. The argument is not one which stands up under examination. It is true, of course, that the traffic in and out of New York Harbor is enormous. Obviously any disposal of refuse within the Narrows would be sure to foul the beaches of Staten Island and the region west of Coney Island. But the complaints come not from there, but from the beaches much further out on Long Island and down the Jersey coast.

To obtain accurate statistics as to the number of persons entering and leaving New York Harbor in all kinds of craft is almost impossible. Many coastwise vessels do not register their passengers. Others come and go quite informally. Small boats and yachts (unless they arouse the suspicions of the rum-chasers) enter and leave unmolested. But a rough estimate can be made which, if it errs at all, is on the side of exaggeration. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, the total number of incoming and outgoing passengers, American and alien, on vessels engaged in foreign traffic, amounted to 881,163. The crews on the vessels which carried them totaled 504,398. The total number of persons on these ships, therefore, came to well under 1,500,000. Assuming that the number of persons (including the crews) entering and leaving the Harbor of New York on vessels engaged in coastwise traffic is twice this figure, and adding another 1,500,000 as the number of those entering and leaving on small boats and yachts (exclusive of the traffic via Long Island Sound), it appears that the total number of persons entering and leaving New York Harbor during the year is in the neighborhood of 6,000,000.

If this estimate is correct, it is safe to say that all the garbage thrown overboard throughout an entire year from the meals of these 6,000,000 people is not more than the garbage of New York for a single day. Some of this material, to be sure, is dumped near shore. That practice can and should be discontinued. But much of the rest of it is dumped far out at sea and many miles from the beaches whence come most of the complaints. To charge that ships spreading out throughout the entire year the equivalent of only one day of New York's garbage are more to blame than the city's scows is on the face of it preposterous.

The Federal and municipal authorities will do well to use their influence to induce ships to discontinue dumping what little they throw overboard within the three-mile limit. This, however, is only a minor issue. The ultimate solution is the use of incinerators. This the city now appreciates. The sooner the necessary construction is undertaken and carried through the better.

FRENCH NAVAL POLICY.

The naval bill just passed by the French Senate reflects the judgment of many specialists that the requirements of France can be met chiefly by fast cruisers, torpedo boats (including destroyers), submarines and airships. Captain CASTEX of the French Navy has pointed out that torpedoes can now be launched to carry a distance of 20,000 yards. "It "is no longer possible, as it once "was," he says, "for ships to fight "an engagement with guns alone "while outside the range of torpe-"does." Evidently he is one of those who believe that for practical purposes a big-gun range exceeding 20,000 and up to 30,000 yards would not play a decisive part in a general engagement. At Jutland ships fired at were visible, and the range was often less than 20,000 yards. A great many French naval officers hold with CASTEX when he says:

> The importance of the big destroyers, those which accompany the fleets, has been greatly increased. The fact that submarines are constantly increasing in effectiveness and in numbers makes it possible to use the torpedo under conditions impossible for other warships and converts it into a very serious menace. Now, too, airplanes are appearing armed with torpedoes. They can launch their torpedoes with a swiftness and suddenness of action out of the question for destroyers, making it very difficult to avoid them, however easily they may be seen.

This French authority does not go the length of denying the value of gun power. "The battleship," he says, "will retain its importance," but only on condition that it is adjusted to the new developments in naval warfare. It must be better protected against torpedo attack and have smaller displacement. In the matter of displacement there are British experts who agree with him. The bill accepted by the French Senate will add to the fleet a cruiser of 10,000 tons (the largest allowed by the Washington Treaty), three destroyers, four torpedo boats, seven first-class submarines, two mine-laying submarines, one mine-layer and two airplane carriers. The French policy calls for such a program, year by year, to strengthen the navy. Two new cruisers of 10,000 tons, the Duquesne and Tourville, are in hand. The Naval Commission reporter takes so gloomy a view of French sea power that he overlooks the authorization of the Washington Treaty to displace existing battleships by five vessels of 35,000 tons. They may be laid down in 1927, 1929, 1931, 1932 and 1933. In the treaty is this note:

> France expressly reserves the right of employing capital ship tonnage allotment as she may consider advisable, subject solely to the limitations that the displacement of individual ships should not surpass 35,000 tons, and that the total capital ship tonnage should keep within the limits imposed by the present treaty.

Thus France may decide to build small and swift battleships, as some of her naval experts advise. One of them, J. B. GAUTREAU, urges the building of 17,000-ton battle cruisers carrying 12-inch guns and having a speed of thirty-three knots. Faster than the capital ships of other nations, they could maintain communications with the colonies. Four of them could be ready in 1929, taking the place of two 35,000-ton units allowed by the Washington Treaty. It is sometimes said that as regards super-dreadnoughts France is out of the running because Great Britain, the United States and even Japan possess many battleships compared with which the Bretagne, Lorraine and eight other French vessels are almost obsolete. But France accepts the disparity philosophically. In aviation France has a long lead over any other nation. She is in a very strong position to develop the torpedo plane. Steadily she is constructing a formidable submarine squadron. Finally, France is reasonably sure of the protection afforded by the British fleet. It is noticeable that French opinion approves the Singapore project. Dread of the German Navy and fears of Italian rivalry are mere propaganda.

SWARMING AT DAYTON.

No one need be astonished to read of the influx of queer fish at Dayton, Tenn. It would seem that every freak or fanatic not already there is striving to arrive by the next train. It is a fine illustration of the attraction of well-advertised absurdities. A standard of folly has been raised in sight of the whole country, and every man with a crank notion, a pet scheme of intolerance, a dream or delusion of reform, feels that it is his duty as well as opportunity to repair to it. So we are already told of the vigilant police officers of Dayton arresting men because, as was stated in the case of one soap-box orator, "he ain't talkin' right."

Mr. BRYAN has given the signal to thousands of unregulated or ill-balanced minds that there is a chance for them at last. If he can get Tennessee to adopt and enforce a law against teaching a certain doctrine held by scientists, a vast new area is open to men anxious to compel their fellows to think just as they do. Why stop with one item in the list of scientific truths? It will go hard, but Mr. BRYAN himself will be attacked soon as a man willing to destroy the ancient landmarks. In a spirit of concession to modern science, or in weak yielding to intelligence, he has conceded that animals may have been evolved from lower species, though he would die the death before admitting that man has been. But he seems unaware that a literal reading of Genesis is just as fatal to the evolution of the lower animals as he believes it to be to that of man. We wait impatiently, therefore, for some super-Bryan to rise up to convict the actual hierophant of being a heretic. Mr. BRYAN is apparently willing that modern geology should be taught, though modern biology is to him an abomination. But the geologist is all the while discovering fossil forms to add to the proof in favor of evolution. Will Mr. BRYAN allow such snares for the feet of innocent children to be set in the schools of Tennessee or any other State that is truly religious? If pressed on this point, it is probable that he would adopt the view of his spiritual ancestors of seventy-five years ago, who contended that the Creator had placed the fossils in the rocks, at the time of the creation of the world, merely to test the faith of devout believers. To that kind of scientific evidence they were to rise as sublimely superior as Mr. BRYAN is to the particular kind of evidence which he dislikes.

No one can yet measure the impulse and encouragement to erratic thinking which the Dayton trial is giving. It is a sort of notice, posted up so that the whole nation can read it, of the breakdown of the reasoning powers. It is seeming evidence that the human mind can go into deliquescence without falling into stark lunacy. How unsettling all this will be to intellects already partly unsettled, no man can yet say. But the demonstrated immense attraction at Dayton for all sorts of half-baked creatures, charlatans and cracked brains, is an indication of the mental and moral infection which has been let loose upon the land, with Mr. BRYAN as its chief agent—let us hope, the unwitting agent.

THE WILLIAMSTOWN INSTITUTE.

The Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., within cooling sight of Mount Greylock, might very fittingly be christened "The Greylock Institute," for while it occupies the physical shell of Williams College in Williamstown during the long vacation it has no organic relation with that institution except in the fact that Dr. HARRY A. GARFIELD is the President of the college and the Chairman of the institute. In an interview published in yesterday's TIMES, Dr. GARFIELD disparages the comradeship of graduate students with undergraduates. He doubts the soundness of the policy which President WILSON advocated when President of Princeton and which was so far disapproved by the Princeton trustees that the graduate school was provided with a most stately shell a little way distant from the many-chambered dormitories and nautiloid lecture halls and laboratories of the undergraduates.

What has happened in the development of the Institute at Williamstown is aptly prefigured in the habit of a crustacean, which, having no carapace of its own, seeks the empty shell of a departed gasteropod, the one essential difference being that the undergraduate gasteropod always comes back in the Autumn to claim his shell, swept and garnished. The pagurian Summer tenant has then to vacate and seek Winter hospitality in Senate lobbies, international associations or lecture courses and find food at luncheon and dinner discussions of planetary affairs. With the establishment and development, however, of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations there will be a graduate institution which will give more than seasonal sustenance to the study of world politics. In this evolution of a permanent graduate school President GARFIELD may have the satisfaction of knowing that he has had an important pioneer part.

But whatever the particular function and accomplishment of the Page School, there will doubtless be a continuing need for such an institution as now has prospect of delightful Summer permanence at Williamstown in the "small college's" Winter quarters. That there is a public demand for courses giving information to the adult-minded about world problems is indicated not only by the application of college professors, diplomats, Government officials, army and navy officers, bankers, lawyers, business men and journalists from all parts of the country, but by the fact that similar courses are being initiated in other parts of the country, notably in connection with Chicago University. The conference out in Hawaii finding precedent in the Williamstown experiment should be of special significance because of the discussion of Pacific problems, in a place apart from both Continental coasts, but with both the East and West in mental view.

The announcement made today of the special lecturers and leaders of round-table discussions for this Summer at Williamstown gives promise of a conference as interesting and profitable as any that has yet been held. Count SKRZYNSKI, Poland's Minister of Foreign Affairs, will bring a first-hand presentation of European conditions from a new geographical and political point of view. Count CIPPICO of Rome will discuss a subject of prime interest, Fascism. Professor TOYNBEE, who has made a personal study of Near East problems, to the modification of some of his views formed at a distance, will lead discussions in that field. Several familiar voices will be heard again, and there will be others who can speak with authority about financial international relations and the efforts centring in Geneva looking toward international cooperation; but the voice which many are most eager to hear is that of Major Gen. Sir FREDERICK MAURICE. Altogether, to apply President GARFIELD's characterization of the general program of the Institute to that of this Summer's conference, it is "essentially humanistic and vital."

THE HE-VOLCANO.

The other day we had the pleasure of looking over a learned bibliography of Iowa literature. Not being candidates for the degree of Ph. D., we neglected to count the number of entries; but there are many distinguished names among them; and literature hasn't been submerged by the full, if now dwindling, stream of Brookhartian economics. It seems, however, that the choice and master spirit of Iowa writers, a spirit, indeed, that transcends State lines and is national, still is imprisoned, still waiting to express itself, consummately and cataclysmically, upon America, upon the world. From Des Moines, a capital that scorns its chief treasure, comes the voice of an authentic alchemist of thought, a born king of the marrowiest modern speech. It is entitled "When a Man Writes a Real Book." "I am looking," says this unvalued and invaluable genius, "for "a publisher with the necessary "amount of guts to publish a red-"blooded he-book." He apologizes superfluously for what prigs deem a coarse, intestinal phrase. It is dear to Mr. MENCKEN. It fills a necessary place in the political as well as the literary dialect.

The Real Book-maker unfolds the story of his evolution:

> In 1919 I first started to tell this damphool country where it was heading for. This first spasm was forty pages long and the title was "The High Cost of Bunk." * * * The next poke at the sleeping menagarie [sic] was with a club of 120 pages, revised bigger and better, called "Twentieth Century Thrift or a Busted Republic." The title alone should have waked up an alligator. This met the same miserable He-Haw as the first and, after being carefully reviewed by the office boy, the janitor and "Tilly," came back, like a mangy cat. * * * The next dose was called "Greased Lightnin'—or Mount Vesuvius on Wheels," and if anything ever deserved its name this was it. This was a truly meritorious thing and big enough for anybody to think about.

Publishers may have forgotten the heroic substance in the form; they may have been gulled by a style dear to Mr. SINCLAIR LEWIS and loved hopelessly by The American Mercury; anyway, they are notoriously a thick-headed "bunch." The Lone Fisherman of earth-shaking ideas wasn't dejected. "With this then new live "bait a new cast was made among "bigger and more highly endowed in-"tellectual domes * * * this new, "better and bigger-sized Athabasca "Blizzard was turned loose among "the big fellows," the Captains of Industry, Mayor HYLAN's catalogue of "interests," chambers of commerce, realtors, editors of economic and industrial publications. Pearls before swine:

> Did they wake up? Did they come out? Did they pinch themselves, sit straight up in bed and look in the glass? Hell, no. They had not written it themselves. "If we had wanted "such a book we should have written "one." That was their private reason. In reality not one of these 200 captains here referred to could write five pages on any subject that a modern twentieth century guy could possibly finish. I dare even any demitasse person to read five pages of this book and stop short of the end. So they threw this alarm clock out of the window and rolled over.

After five years of noble thought undiffused "the writer has produced a last, final, finished thing." Take it or leave it. This is the last chance:

> Sanguine, optimistic, enthusiastic or idiotic the writer may be thought, yet he knows he is right (and any Dago fruit-seller knows he is right—for they see it instantly), but he also knows when he has had enough. Not licked, but just had enough; and this is the last. If the country refuses to learn its lesson of thrift it can go to Hell. This either goes over or the writer is through.

Even in the accursed tribe of publishers isn't there some bold and luminous mind capable of clinching this last occasion of saving the country by showing that it is lost? "One well-known intellectual captain"—does he command The Nation or The New Republic?—swears that the neglected Des Moines Spinoza has found the true philosophy of these hell-bent United States. Is there one publisher, one philanthropist, one friend of the inutile and invisible Truth, with bowels of compassion and a brain of crystal? To him we speak. "Do you want to see this last He-"Volcano? Will you give it a square "deal? If so, please give me your "personal request."

"THALASSIDROMA."

American travelers who have visited Constantinople will remember chiefly the Church of San Sophia, the bazaars of Stamboul and the two American colleges looking across the narrow strait of the Bosporus into Asia. But some will remember the birds in seemingly ceaseless flight up and down, down and up, this strait, between the Black Sea and the Sea of Marmora, as if imprisoned in a trawler's net. Doubtless their flights are not as futile or purposeless as they seem to a stranger, who would guess them to be pelagic descendants of the land raven that never came back to the ark but went "forth to and fro." The inhabitants of that region, however, call them "lost souls," the transmigrant souls of human messengers who forgot or failed to perform their errands in their former incarnation and so are forever running these errands in their new incarnation as birds. They are undoubtedly a variety of petrel, somehow picking up a livelihood in their swift, low-skimming flights or pausing for food and rest in the darkness on some shore. But like CYRUS's men in the Anabasis, who when they caught sight of the "Thalassa," wished to march no more by land but ever by sea "as ULYSSES of old," so these birds seem possessed of a passion for travel by sea—Thalassidroma.

Now news comes from Constantinople that there are other Thalassidromic messengers passing up and down the Bosporus. In one of the two seas which this strait has tied together since ages before JASON made his expedition through it in search of the Golden Fleece, or perhaps in the strait itself, the American gunboat Scorpion, the station ship of Admiral BRISTOL, our representative in that part of the world, received a "short wave" message sent from the naval air station at Lakehurst, New Jersey. It is hoped, now that communication has thus been opened, word will reach him of America's appreciation of his service in this historic border city of Europe and Asia. When the Scorpion is equipped with a like radio set the Thalassidromic words will fly to and fro between Admiral BRISTOL's home country and that city, the sixteen hundredth anniversary of whose founding by CONSTANTINE may be celebrated in two or three years, even more swiftly than the birds can fly from the Marmora up to the ancient Euxine. The whole world has become Thalassidromic. Every one can have his personal Odyssey, even if he has to stay on land. So does the miracle of radio grow day by day.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

What Europe Thinks of Tennessee.

Nobody in Dayton and thereabout is likely to be moved at all by the comment on the trial in progress that is coming from England, but in the larger Tennessee towns there must be many people who suffer in their pride as Americans and as Southerners as they note the mingling of ridicule and contempt, with something of pity, that marks both the lay and clerical statements expressive of European opinion.

Most of the British critics include in their charges the one that Tennessee, by passing its law against the teaching of evolution, revealed that her citizens still are living in the Middle Ages, and one of them adds that in prosecuting a teacher of accepted truth the State is doing exactly in spirit, if not in deed, what the Inquisition did with far better excuse to other exponents of science.

Other Americans know that there is something of injustice in these long-distance characterizations—know that the Tennesseans are not so different from the rest of us that each group of them could not be duplicated in any part of the Union.

Foreigners cannot be expected to discriminate with accuracy between our several sections, nor have we any very good right to do so. Fundamentalism of the kind that has lifted its topmost blossom in Tennessee is an American product. So there is not a little strain in the smiles with which the North reads the reports from Dayton.

He Does Not Aspire to Martyrdom

There is something of relevancy, perhaps, though not much, and, anyhow, some real interest, in facts about the Scopes family which have been gleaned from SCOPES himself by EDWARD LEVINSON of The New Leader, a Socialist and labor weekly of this city.

Speaking of his family, SCOPES said of his father that all of his life he had been "a champion of unpopular causes." What the causes were is not very clearly explained in the interview, but seemingly the elder SCOPES has taken active part in every strike of railway employes beginning with the Pullman strike in 1894. Always he has been among the strikers, and the result has been a frequent moving of the family from town to town and from home to home. The son said that naturally he had imbibed, as he grew up, "the liberal thought to which my father gave such earnest devotion."

"I thought," he said, "I could, in my own immediate circle, do as much for freedom and the American people in a quiet and restrained way as my father had done in another fashion and at such great cost." In other words, young SCOPES has had no aspiration for martyrdom. He does not belong to any Socialist organization. As he put it, "I don't know what the term 'parlor Socialist' means exactly, but I think that is what I am."

All this explains several hitherto rather puzzling features of the case, and yet adds something to its mystery. The only certain outcome of the trial is that young SCOPES at its end will be about the best advertised teacher in the country, with nothing in the advertising that will be detrimental to him.

A Conversation in Heaven.

It sounds like a French invention, almost smacking of CLEMENCEAU himself.

At any rate, the story has been going the rounds on the Continent and has reached England. It is to the effect that President WILSON, traversing the golden streets of the New Jerusalem, encountered no less a person than MOSES. The following exchange then took place between the two:

"You are Mr. WILSON, are you not?"

"I am."

"I am very sorry for you."

"Why so?"

"Weren't you WOODROW WILSON, President of the United States?"

"I was."

"And didn't you issue the Fourteen Points for the settlement of the great war?"

"I did."

"Well, I am sorry for you, because they have done such dreadful things to your Fourteen Points."

"For the matter of that, I should advise you to go back to the earth and see what they have done to your Ten Commandments."

Much Time Lost at Terminals.

There is justification for the claim of L. D. GARDNER, the editor of Aviation, that this country now has the fastest mail service in the world, and that he proved it by sending a test letter from New York to Chicago and back again in just forty-two hours of elapsed time between mailing the letter here and its delivery here again.

That is a fine piece of work, of course, but one notices that the time of actual flight was only sixteen hours. It took twenty-six hours to get that letter over the few miles between the flying fields and the points of mailing and delivery at the two ends. In other words, in the air mail service, as in almost everything else we do, the problem of "terminal distribution" still is unsolved both as to time and expense.

That failure adds enormously to the "spread" between the prices received by producers and those paid by consumers, notably in the matter of all foods, but almost as much in merchandise of every sort. With airplanes as they now are, and requiring large fields from which to ascend and in which to descend, their points of starting and destination must be at considerable distances from cities, and to cover those distances much slower means of transportation must be used. Once in the air, the speed of these machines is far in excess of that of any other vehicle, but unfortunately they cannot either take on or discharge their cargoes of passengers or freight close to the real points of departure or arrival.

Seeks Paintings by Elliott.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Art Association of Newport is arranging a memorial exhibition of the works of the late John Elliott, to be held in August. As it is a difficult task in so short a time to assemble a representative group of the artist's compositions, the association wishes to make known that any person owning or having knowledge of the whereabouts of any work by this artist is requested to communicate with the Secretary of the Art Association of Newport, so that steps may be taken to borrow such work for the forthcoming exhibition.

Among other examples that we wish to trace is a small silver point drawing of the head of a little girl, once owned by the late Mrs. Sara Whitman; a small oil painting or a landscape with silver birch trees; a water color painting of a barnyard with a red tiled barn, made near Schalbalch; several colored pastel drawings, the originals of the illustrations of "The Great Sea Horse," and a book of fairy stories by Isabel Anderson, published by Little, Brown & Co. in 1910.

CREDITS DOHENY'S ACCOUNT

Writer Says It Reveals Typical Methods of Washington Officials.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The long public statement made by Mr. Doheny in connection with the matter of oil leases has undoubtedly created more comment than almost any other event happening recently. Some of the officials involved characterize Mr. Doheny's statements as bordering on "fiction," particularly the statements he has made relative to the doleful picture painted by naval officials relative to a pending war in the Pacific four years ago.

Without condoning any part of the oil deal, which may not have been to the public interest, it is my opinion that the navy bureaucrats scored a victory over not only Doheny but over Secretary Denby. To one who is familar with the operations of the Government bureaus, it is quite clear that bureau officials, particularly in the War and Navy Departments, will go to any length to get large sums of money to spend and to create the impression that the country will go to the dogs unless they get hundreds of millions to squander, and they will put out reams of propaganda which bears little semblance to facts. This campaign usually starts about July 1, and carries through the next Congress.

I do not know Mr. Doheny personally, but I did have occasion to observe him daily while the oil investigations were going on, and I would catalogue him as being somewhat gullible, and an array of "gold braid" officers of the Navy Department, with their wild war stories, could easily put over a "big one" on him.

The public statement made by Mr. Doheny follows so closely the methods employed by Government departments in their mad chase for millions of public funds to spend, that in my opinion these statements are not fiction but cold facts.

The responsibility for the naval oil reserve deals rests not on the shoulders of Denby, Fall, Doheny or Sinclair, but on the shoulders of Congress, which in a misguided moment and under unknown influences in 1920 passed an act which was so vague and so wide open as to permit almost any ramification desired. Under this act oil funds could have been used to build battleships, manufacture guns, or in fact do anything that might be desired by Government departments. The parentage of this act has been obscured and so remains.

A close-up of the Government departments seems to indicate that the main functions of the War and Navy Departments, particularly, are to prepare and spread propaganda which will result in influencing Congress to give them large sums of money to squander, and then, if they have any effort or energies left, they consider the matter of national defense, the matter of consideration being largely placed in the hands of swivel-chair officers who never heard a shot fired in battle.

The array of "talent" as shown by the names of the naval officials who inoculated Mr. Doheny with the war cloud virus of 1921 is very imposing to the man in the street (though it would not impress able men of other countries very strongly), and the writer can see very readily how he as well as Mr. Denby could fall victims to this false propaganda. First Killed in Spanish War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Edwin Emerson's letter denying that Sergeant Hamilton Fish was the first killed in action during the Spanish-American War an error was made in the letter or in the setting of the name of Ensign Worth Bagley, the naval officer killed in action off Cardenas in an American gunboat. The name appeared erroneously as Bagby.

MY FACE IS TO THE SEA.

O trees, O friends, you are my dear and comfortable loves,
You little grasses that I hear in growing,
And all you trim gray roads,
You small and shady paths, and all you blossoms,
You are my daily comfortable loves.
But I am weary of you.
Your leaves and your green blades are all so certain
In their appointed places.
Your stones grow stupid, and your fragrances—
They do not bring refreshing.
Always the cheery and complacent birds
Come home at night to the safe shelter of the nest.
Forgive me! But I weary of your constancies.
And I am sick for the inconstant Sea.

For so men call her, the inconstant Sea!
O myriad masks and shadows!
Maidens and mothers and all mighty men
Dwell in your ancient place.
And on your breast are stones and stars and suns.
Oh, I am sick for shores where ships go out!
Sand and no grass, rocks and no trees,
birds and no nests!
Gray gulls are calling me, and white sails beckoning.
I am shaken like small wind-blown waters
By a voice out of the deep that comes to me at night.

The hour is come.
O trees, I lay my cheek against your gray and rugged barks.
I love you, but I weary of your steady growing.
Dear grass, I press you, but my feet are swift and eager.
My face is to the Sea.

O Sea, I hear you. Your voice is as the tongue of my own mother.
Your waves sweep over me. They are her arms.
Your billows encompass me. They are her cool garments.
O Sea, where my rest is!
They call you restless, and know not what they say.
You are from the beginning, changeless in change.
The same and nevermore the same.
I am come back to you.
I am your child, your mist.
O stones upon the shore, my little sisters,
You whisper answers to me, lift white hands,
And I can hear your laughter.
You have not forgotten how, those aeons back,
I rolled you in my playing.

Time, stop a little!
Sleep and dream and make upon these waters
A small bright island in eternity
Where rest shall be, and a white peace for all the weariness
Of those small comfortable daily loves.

THE PURITANS HUMANE

They Shone by Comparison in Their Day, Writer Says.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has been some correspondence published in THE TIMES in regard to witch burnings in New England and in general about the cruelty of the early New Englanders. One also notices attacks on the Puritans apropos of what is called "some Puritanic notions" of the present time.

Now the fact is that the New Englanders and all the early inhabitants of this country were the most humane of the peoples of their times. There was less cruelty among the peoples that laid the foundations of the United States than among the other countries of the world.

The seventeenth century, in which occurred the prosecution of witches in New England, was a century distinguished by terrible cruelties. There was no burning of witches in New England or any other part of America. There was one witch in Salem put to death otherwise than by hanging. That was an old man who was pressed to death. Let us just give a few facts to illustrate:

In Schiller's "History of the Thirty Years' War" he thus describes the sack of Magdeburg in 1631:

"Neither innocent childhood nor helpless old age, neither youth, sex, rank nor beauty could disarm the fury of the conquerors. * * * No situation, however obscure or however sacred, escaped the rapacity of the enemy. In a single church fifty-three women were found beheaded. The Croats amused themselves by throwing children into the flames; Papenheim's Walloons with stabbing infants."

Andrew D. White, in dealing with the Thirty Years' War, which began in 1618 and ended in 1648, says among other things:

"The churches were drenched in the blood of the non-combatants and refugees; women were treated with every form of indignity and cruelty; * * * families tied together and burned in fagots; torture used to force revelations in regard to buried treasure; whole city populations put to the sword."

But we can come to a much later period. The great French historian, Le Bon, thus describes some of the scenes of the French Revolution:

"The massacres began as soon as the beast was unchained—that is, from 1789, long before the convention. They were carried out with all possible refinements of cruelty * * * to amuse the spectators."

The persecutions for witchcraft lasted much longer in Europe than in New England, the last execution in England being in 1716, in Wurzberg in 1749, and in Switzerland in 1782. The entire number of persons in Christendom put to death for witchcraft was not less than nine millions.

It is a curious fact that the most terrible legal punishments ever inflicted within the bounds of our country were administered by Judges and jury in New York City in 1741. I give the names of the Judges and of the members of the jury. The Judges were Frederick Phillips and Daniel Horsemanden. The members of the jury were Robert Watts, merchant, foreman; Jeremiah Latouche, Joseph Read, Anthony Rutgers, John M'Evers, John Cruger Jr., John Merrit, Adoniah Schuyler, Isaac De Peyster, Abraham Ketteltas, David Provoost, Rene Hett, Henry Beeckman Jr., David van Horne, George Spencer, Thomas Duncan and Winant Van Zandt. I doubt if any one would call this a New England Puritan group.

The Judges and jury sentenced fourteen negroes to be burned at the stake, and this sentence was carried out. One man remonstrated in regard to his own negro, whom he claimed could not have been guilty, as he was at home. This man's name was Rosevelt.

Any student of history must come to the conclusion that from the beginning of the settlement of the United States there was less cruelty and more consideration of human rights than among any other people. S. S. McCLURE.

Signers of the Declaration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Sunday, June 28, 1925, I notice an article by Evans Clark about the collections of autographs of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Mr. Clark describes a letter, purporting to have been written by Arthur Middleton of South Carolina, which he describes as "one of the most illiterate" of them, and of which he quotes the last half only. It does not seem to me possible that this letter could have been written by Arthur Middleton. I judge both by its context and by the fact that it speaks of a brother of Middleton.

Arthur Middleton was the eldest son of Henry Middleton, member of the First Continental Congress and for a time its President; and his only brother was Thomas Middleton, 1753-1797, who was thus only eight years of age at what purports to be the date of the letter. This brother could not have been the "spark newly returned from Travail!"

I would like to examine the letter. I take it for granted that the owner would wish to be assured of its authenticity.

Lauds Banton's Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial in today's issue concerning the activities of the District Attorney is but in line with the many expressions of commendation generally heard at the bar in connection with Mr. Banton's activities, and I am sure I voice the view of many of the members of my profession in saying that it is to be hoped so efficient an administration of the duties of an office of this character should command the approval of a united electorate on the same non-partisan basis as that of a judicial office.

The Discoverer of Lewisite.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES you credit the discovery of Lewisite to a Professor Gilbert Newton Lewis of Northwestern University. The fact, however, is that Professor W. Lee Lewis, head of the Department of Chemistry at Northwestern, is the discoverer of this deadly war gas.

As far as I know there is no Professor G. N. Lewis at Northwestern, and as a former student of Professor W. Lee Lewis I can vouch for the fact that he and not the first-named man is the inventor of Lewisite. MEYER CHISDES.

High Tax Rates in New Jersey.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I feel I must wrest from South Amboy the doubtful honor of having the highest tax rate in New Jersey. If Secretary Phinney of the New Jersey League of Municipalities will look closer into his records he will find Lyndhurst, which has a population greater than at least four of the towns mentioned with a tax rate of $6.13. Its rate has been greater than the present South Amboy rate for the last three years, being $5.71 in 1924 and $5.70 in 1923.

NEWPORT WOMEN TO OPEN GARDENS

Mrs. Howard S. Graham and Others Will Help Raise Fund for the Civic League.

CASINO SCENE OF ACTIVITY

Many Guests of Summer Residents Register There—New Yorkers Visit the Country Club.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 12.—Mrs. Howard Spencer Graham will open her gardens at Whetstone, on Easton's Point, in aid of the Civic League Tuesday afternoon. The gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barton Jacobs will be open on July 21, those of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James on July 28 and those of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Taylor at their Portsmouth estate, the Glen, on Aug. 4.

Mrs. Owen Toland and A. G. Wellman were the winners of the first week-end golf tournament, a tombstone handicap mixed foursome, at the Newport Country Club, taking the two silver cups offered by the Green Committee. Mrs. Toland and Mr. Wellman "died" at the bunker below the eighteenth hole. Eight other couples participated: Mrs. Charles S. Whitman and Michael M. Van Beuren, Dr. and Mrs. Victor Sorchan, Mrs. Carroll D. Winslow and Daniel Menocal, Mrs. Van Beuren and Cyril B. Judge, Mrs. Stuart Duncan and Dyson Duncan, Miss Betty Tailer and T. Suffern Tailer Jr., Miss Florence Loew and Joseph Harriman Jr. and Miss Katherine Lawrence and William F. Whitehouse. Dr. Roderick Terry has offered a cup for the best eighteen-hole gross score during July and August.

Among the visitors at the Country Club today were E. W. Lincoln of Barrington, R. I., and M. A. De Wolf of Bristol, R. I., guests of Marsden J. Perry; Newton Rae of New York, guest of Norman O. Whitehouse, and Colonel F. E. Evans, A. Maillot and J. Gordon Douglas of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer are expected at their Summer home on Harrison Avenue next Wednesday.

Mrs. Lawrence T. Paul was a luncheon hostess at Paulholme today.

General J. Fred Pierson gave a luncheon at the Gooseberry Island Fishing Club.

Vincent Astor made his first week-end visit of the season on the Nourmahal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle of Philadelphia, who will occupy Bellacre this year, will arrive Tuesday.

Those who registered at the Casino today were Blaise de Sibour of Washington, guest of Henry Howard; J. S. Marty of New York, guest of W. B. Gallwey; Miss Manting of Albany, guest of Mrs. King Carley; F. Murray Forbes Jr. and M. A. Pryce, guests of Grafton D. Cushing; George Ismay of London, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Valliance; W. B. Kip of New York, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Quentin Jones; James Lee of Boston, Newton Rae and F. Dudley Kohler of New York, and Miss Frances McKeever.

The Misses Helen and Florence Michell had a large gathering of friends at the home of their parents, Ochre Lodge, for their "hour of music," their first musicale of the season.

Miss Katherine Cortazzo gave a dinner at the La Forge this evening. Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gerard gave a dinner at By-the-Sea. Clarence W. Dolan was also among those entertaining.

A card of 36 net handed in by J. F. A. Clark on Ocean Links today broke by a single stroke the three-cornered tie for the silver golf ball offered by T. Suffern Tailer. J. Gordon Douglas with a gross of 39, tied T. S. Tailer Jr. for the gold ball. A record-sized crowd played the links this week-end.

Dinner Party for Miss G. Clifford.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 12.—Mrs. C. MacNulty of Sound Beach gave a dinner party for Miss Gladys Clifford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Clifford of Sound Beach, at the Port of Missing Men in Ridgefield Saturday evening. The guests included Miss Jane Dorman, Mrs. Edward B. Pierce, Mrs. F. T. Clifford, Miss Iris Clifford and Miss Cecelia A. MacNulty of Greenwich; Mrs. Ernest Austin of Stamford and Mrs. S. O. Sop of New York. Miss Clifford and Arnold R. Frost of Sound Beach will wed on July 22. The ceremony will be performed by Dr. L. W. Barney in the First Congregational Church. Mrs. Ernest Austin, sister of the bride, will be matron of honor, and Miss Iris Clifford, another sister, will be bridesmaid.

Dance at Greenwich Field Club.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 12.—A supper dance was given at the Field Club here last night. Among those who entertained parties for dinner preceding the dance were Mrs. George Ransom, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall C. Bacon, H. P. Kunhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Twachtman, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Pratt, Miss Mary Lanier and Reginald Roome.

Others who came for the dancing included George M. Pynchon, the Misses Croft, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grand, Mr. and Mrs. Roger S. Baldwin, I. M. Day, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Maxwell Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Julian W. Bishop, Walter Righter, Clement Cleveland, Walter C. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Yandell and Mr. and Mrs. Archer Brown.

Their Wedding a Romance of War.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 12.—A romance of the World War culminated in the marriage of Miss Eugenie Plattet of Dijon, France, and George Strobridge of New York City in Greenwich Saturday. The couple were married by Justice of the Peace J. J. O'Brien at his office. Mr. Strobridge, who was Lieutenant of the Thirty-fifth American Engineers during the war, met his bride while stationed in Dijon.

Elizabeth Boddington Engaged.

Mrs. Arthur Tressilian Boddington of 201 North Broadway, Yonkers, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Boddington, to George Hubert Armstrong of Yonkers. Miss Boddington is a granddaughter of the late Lawrence V. De Forest. The wedding will take place in November.

Lawn Party to Aid Army Relief.

A lawn party and treasure hunt for the benefit of the Army Relief Society has been arranged to take place at Hughesland, the home of Mrs. Martin B. Hughes at Bellport, L. I., on the afternoon of July 25, from 3 to 7 o'clock. The object of the society is to assist widows and orphans of officers and enlisted men of the regular army.

Mr. and Mrs. Halmi Go to Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Artur Halmi of 118 West Fifty-seventh Street leave today for an extended stay at Newport. Mr. Halmi will complete a portrait he is painting of the Countess Laszlo Széchényi and her daughter, Miss Sylvia Széchényi.

Mrs. Tiffany to Open Her Gardens.

Mrs. Charles Tiffany will open the gardens on her estate at Oyster Bay, L. I., in aid of the Wayside Home School for Girls, on Thursday afternoon from 2:30 to 6 o'clock.

BROKEN PIPEHALTS BATHING

Officials Order Swimmers From Water as Sewer Main Bursts.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 12.—Because of the breaking of a sewer main close to Hudson Amusement Park this afternoon seven thousand bathers were disappointed when city officials ordered them from the water. At first many refused to obey but when it was explained that bathing would be dangerous under the circumstances and arrest might follow refusal, they left the water.

Park Commissioner Louis D. Schulman when informed of the break notified Dr. Edward Codding, City Health Commissioner, and he ordered Commissioner Schulman to close the park and get all the bathers out of the water. It was expected that the break would be repaired over night but it had not been determined tonight whether bathing would be permitted tomorrow. That will depend upon Commissioner Codding.

MISS SARAH STARR BRIDE.

Wed to Charles H. Roland at Home of Dr. Nathan Krass.

Miss Sarah Starr, daughter of Hyman Starr of 370 Riverside Drive, was married to Charles H. Roland yesterday afternoon at the home of Dr. Nathan Krass, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, 225 West Eighty-sixth Street.

Mrs. Hugh C. Wallace Recovering.

PARIS, July 12 (AP).—Mrs. Hugh C. Wallace, wife of the former American Ambassador to France, who was bruised in an automobile accident yesterday, passed a satisfactory night. The doctors believe she will be able to leave the hospital in two or three days.

Mrs. Wallace's automobile was struck by a car belonging to the Uruguyan Minister. Shorty after the accident it was announced at the American Hospital that here condition was "serious, but not dangerous."

PERSHING LAUDS CAMPS.

Declares Work in Summer Training is Ideal Recreation.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—In the first of a series of six articles describing activities of the army during the Summer months given to The Associated Press by General John J. Pershing, he says in part:

"A large number of young men in the prime of life will be out of doors this Summer, devoting from two to six weeks of their time to military training. This military training began with the closing of our colleges and schools in June and will end about the middle of September, with July and August as the busiest months.

"Most of these young men in uniform will be civilians, spending their vacation periods in their country's service. We shall have the maximum number of civilian soldiers to receive military training since the World War. Prior to 1917 there was scarcely any of this sort of work. Our history has been one of unpreparedness with six important wars, not to mention the skirmishes involved in winning this continent from its original inhabitants; and the people seem determined to have a reasonable number of trained men available should another emergency arise.

"The various groups in this service will be assembled in some 460 camps for civilians on 240 military reservations, large and small, scattered all over the United States. The War Department is endeavoring to place these camps as close to all centres of population as possible and every effort is made to accommodate the training period to the time that can best be spared by civilians from office, shop and farm.

"Fortunately, the slack time in commercial life is most suitable for outdoor military training and for the coordinate development of a better citizenship. The Summer months, when almost everybody is able to get away from everyday work for two weeks or more, are the most available for a profitable vacation in connection with military training in camp. The sort of work done in these camps constitutes the most ideal recreation for men whose occupations keep them indoors during the Fall, Winter and Spring. Certainly no other vacation promises so much in health or in long life to either the individual or the nation."

WORLD STATESMEN COMING TO LECTURE

COUNT CIPPICO HERE TODAY

Alexander Skrzynski to Arrive Tomorrow for Conference With Coolidge Thursday.

A statement by Dr. Walter W. McLaren, executive secretary of the Institute of Politics, Williamstown, Mass., made public yesterday, announced that distinguished European visitors would begin to arrive in New York this week for the fifth annual session of the institute, which will open on July 23.

Count Antonio Cippico of Rome, Italian Senator and Fascist, who heads the foreign lecturers at this year's institute, will arrive with Countess Cippico on the Counte Rosso today. He will be met by Andrew Ten Eyck, assistant secretary of the institute. Count Cippico will give six lectures at Williamstown on "Italy and the Mediterranean Area" and will devote two to Fascism.

Count Alexander Skrzynski, Foreign Minister of Poland, who will speak before the institute on July 30, will arrive tomorrow on the Paris. He will go to Swampscott for a conference and luncheon with President Coolidge on Thursday. Count Skrzynski directed the debt funding negotiations with the United States last year, culminating in an agreement between Poland and this country, and has taken a prominent part in the deliberations of the League of Nations at Geneva as an exponent of the outlawry of aggressive war.

Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Curtis, Major Gen. Sir Frederick and Lady Maurice, and Professor Arnold J. Toynbee will arrive on the Carmania on Saturday. Mr. Curtis followed Viscount Bryce as British spokesman in the second session of the institute, in 1922. He will lead a general conference this year on "The Commonwealth of Nations." General Maurice, who was Chief of Operations on the British General Staff during the war and has just published a biography of Robert E. Lee, will conduct a round-table conference on armament. Professor Toynbee, an authority on the Near East, will lead a round-table conference on the Mediterranean area, with special reference to the relations between European powers and the Arabic-speaking peoples.

Announcement will be made in about a week of the names of the members of this year's institute. Numbering about 220, they have been selected by invitation to persons with special training or experience in international affairs. At the same time the institute will make public a final list of American conference leaders and special participants. The institute, as usual, will continue in session for one month.

PLAN PARIS-ALEPPO FLIGHT.

French Will Try Two Non-Stop Trips to Precede New York Dash.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 12.—Non-stop flights from Paris to Aleppo and then from Paris to Bagdad will be attempted by a new airplane now under trial in France as preliminary to a flight from Paris to New York.

The new machine, which has a 480-horsepower Renault engine and double controls, is being tried out at the Paris terminal aerodrome at Le Bourget, states The Morning Post.

Its first flight, from Paris to Aleppo, will be 2,000 miles. Should this succeed, the Paris-Bagdad distance of 2,500 miles will be attempted, and the distance from Paris to New York is only a few miles more.

Pilots who attempt the first flights will take turns at flying, which is the reason for the double controls. The French Government will probably help the plane constructors financially.

RAINBOW VETERANS GATHER

200 New York Men in Chicago for Reunion.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Two hundred New York veterans reached Chicago tonight for the seventh annual reunion of the Rainbow Division veterans, which will open tomorrow and last through Wednesday. Twenty-six States will be represented by delegates, and more than 900 men are expected from outside Chicago.

The Rainbow Division, known in the Army records as the Forty-second, because it was formed of National Guard units from all sections of the United States, was in every major offensive in which the American Army took part and had a large amount of trench duty before the open warfare started.

The division suffered 6,000 casualties at Chateau-Thierry in one week. Its greatest victory was in the Champagne. It will celebrate the anniversary of that victory Tuesday night.

TO MARK BASTILE DAY.

French Societies Here Will Celebrate Holiday Tomorrow.

The French national holiday, Bastile Day, will be observed in New York tomorrow by the organizations of French war veterans and all French societies, under the auspices of the Comité Général des Fêtes Nationales, 145 West Forty-fifth Street. The celebration will be under the patronage of Emile Daeschner, French Ambassador to the United States, and under the honorary presidency of Maxime Mongendre, French Consul General in New York.

The program includes a morning reception at the offices of M. Mongendre at 9 East Fortieth Street, and an entertainment in the evening at the Ninth Regiment Armory, 125 West Fourteenth Street.

GIRL RUNAWAY HYSTERICAL.

Removed to Bellevue for Observation—Sought Work in City.

Becoming hysterical yesterday afternoon while being detained by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, awaiting word from her parents in Carteret, N. J., Mary Choban, 16 years old, who had run away, was examined by doctors from Bellevue Hospital and removed to the psychopathic ward of that institution for observation.

The girl told officials of the society that she had left her home with her father's permission to work in Jersey City. Not liking her employment, she said, she decided Saturday night to come to New York. Unsuccessful in her search for work, she appealed to a family for assistance and was turned over to the society yesterday morning.

BRYAN AIM ASSAILED BY CATHOLIC EDITOR

Michael Williams Sees Attempt to Link State and One Faith in "Religion of Taxpayers."

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 12.—William Jennings Bryan no sooner issued a statement today denying that he had advocated putting God into the Constitution of the United States than he was charged with trying to force a State religion on the people of Tennessee. The charge was made by Michael Williams, editor of the Commonweal, a Catholic weekly periodical published in New York City.

In his statement today, Mr. Bryan said that this trial was "to prevent attacks upon the Bible and the introduction of irreligion or forms of religion antagonistic to the religion of the taxpayers," which in this instance is fundamentalism in the Protestant Church.

"Mr. Bryan's denial that he started on a crusade to put God into the Constitution is immediately followed by a statement to the effect that the purpose of the trial is to erect the "religion of the taxpayers," which, in Mr. Bryan's opinion, is Protestant Fundamentalism, into the State protected religion which can be taught in the public schools," said Mr. Williams. "If this it not an open and avowed intention to bring about a union between State and one particular form of religious belief, then there seems to be no sense in Mr. Bryan's words."

Not all Catholics are in favor of Mr. Bryan's views, said Mr. Williams, who frankly admitted that he wanted to offset the opinion expressed a few days ago by Patrick Henry Callahan, who came here to support Mr. Bryan in his fight against evolution.

"The Catholic Church is not committed to the anti-evolution ideas of Mr. Bryan, nor is it assisting him in his work at Dayton," said Mr. Williams. "Still less is it with him in his threatened attempt to write his views into the fundamental law of the country by way of another amendment to the Constitution.

"My own view of the matter is that most leading Catholics, both clerical and lay, are strongly opposed to Mr. Bryan on this issue, particularly in regard to his effort to lead a movement to write his religious views into the Constitution.

"As editor of The Commonweal, the leading intellectual organ of lay Catholics in the country, I am closely in touch with Catholic opinion, and I am certain that Colonel Callahan speaks only for himself and a very few others in supporting Mr. Bryan.

"Evolution is not a matter on which the Catholic Church has officially spoken, either for or against. Prominent Catholic clergymen and scientists, like Canon Dorlodot of Louvain University and Father Wasman, have written in favor of evolution; others like Dr. George Bary O'Toole and Father La Buffe have written against it.

"Many leading Catholics believe that far too many teachers and professors in high schools and colleges go far ahead of their textbooks and take advantage of their opportunities to impose their personal irreligious opinions on their pupils. This is admittedly an evil, but whether that evil should be checked by laws such as the Tennessee statute is quite another problem.

"I am confident that Colonel Callahan had no intention of giving the impression that in his support of Mr. Bryan he was competent to speak for the Church and for his fellow Catholics, but that impression has certainly gone abroad and will be resented and opposed, I am equally certain, by most intelligent Catholics, both clergymen and laymen."

GREECE EXPLAINS STAND ON EXCAVATION

Has Given Capps No Concession, but Will Allow Work by Any Competent Group.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Greece, July 12.—Competent officials of the Ministry of Arts and Public Instruction state that no definite concession has yet been granted to any American school for excavations in this ancient city, but that the Government is willing to grant one if Professor Capps of Princeton is successful in raising the necessary money or to any foreign school which can finance the undertaking.

The present scheme provides for very gradual work which it is estimated will last many years and require the expropriation of no more than four or five houses at a time. The question of rehousing the inhabitants, therefore, does not arise. It is proposed eventually to commence excavations in Aerolus Street near the gate of Agora to the west of Hadrian's Library where there are important ruins of Attalos's portico.

Professor Dorpfeld, Director of the German school, commenced excavations fifteen years ago from the east side of Theseion, where Poibile Stoa is supposed to have existed, but the work was suspended owing to a lack of funds. The opinion of Professor Sotirades is that excavations in this quarter should give priceless results. They may even lead to the discovery of portions of the altar of the twelve gods.

GREECE FRAMES DEBT LAW.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Greece, July 12.—A law based on a provisional agreement reached by the British Government and Tsouderos, the late Finance Minister, for payment of the Greek war debts, has been gazetted.

It authorizes the Minister of Finance and the Minister of Foreign Affairs to draw up provisional agreements with both the British and the French Governments regarding the war debts.

Article 2 authorizes the Government to sign an agreement for the definite payment of £396,000 due to Britain for material supplied in 1919.

Article 3 concerns debts owing to Greece by the French and British Goverments for damage caused by the allied armies in Greece before her entry into the war.

Fifth Avenue Church to Be Cleaned.

The outside of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, at Fifty-fifth Street, will be cleaned from the ground to the top of its spire. The church is built of brownstone. The work of building a scaffold around the church was begun last week, and it is expected that the renovating will take about two months. Sunday services will be continued as usual.

Distribute War Trophies.

The work of distributing several thousand tons of war materials captured by the American Army in the World War to all sections of the country began last night at the army base at Port Newark. The trophies include cannon of all sizes, rifles, shell casings, helmets and knapsacks.

JACOB VANDERBILT IS DEAD AT TACOMA

FORMERLY A BANK CASHIER

Had Lived in Retirement for Many Years—Is Survived by His Wife and Two Sons.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., July 12.—Jacob H. Vanderbilt, last survivor of the second generation of Vanderbilts after the family had attained financial prominence, died here on Friday at the age of 70. He was buried yesterday afternoon.

He was a son of Captain Jacob H., brother of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt. Mrs. H. G. Caesar and Mrs. James McNamee were his sisters. Born in New York, he lived there forty years, known as Jacob H. Vanderbilt Jr.

About thirty years ago he came to Tacoma and became assistant cashier of the Metropolitan Savings Bank and the Metropolitan Bank, of which his nephew, Philip Vanderbilt Caesar, was President. These banks were liquidated in 1901.

Two years later he moved to Steilacoom, a Tacoma suburb, and thereafter lived in retirement. He never was ill until twelve weeks ago, when a complication of diseases sent him to bed. On Thursday night he had a heart attack that ended fatally Friday morning. The funeral service was held Saturday afternoon at his nephew's home. Burial was in Tacoma Cemetery.

Mr. Vanderbilt married twice. His first wife was Miss Annie Hasard, member of a prominent Brooklyn family, who died forty-three years ago, when Robert M. Vanderbilt, her second son, was born. Twenty-six years ago Mr. Vanderbilt married Miss Carrie T. Little, daughter of Judge John W. Little of New York, who survives. She is a sister of Mrs. Philip Vanderbilt Caesar.

Both sons by Mr. Vanderbilt's first wife survive: Howard H. Vanderbilt, who is connected with a Seattle steamship agency, and Robert M. Vanderbilt, who is with the New York Central at New York.

CAPT. GARRETT, IRISH YACHTING EXPERT, DIES

Head of Royal Ulster Club's Challenge Committee—Represented Lipton on Resolute in 1920.

BELFAST, Ireland, July 12 (AP).—Captain Hugh L. Garrett, who was Sir Thomas Lipton's representative on the American defender Resolute in the last series of races for the America's Cup, that of 1920, died here today. He was Chairman of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club's Challenge Committee.

After Captain Garrett's return to Belfast, he laid stress in several speeches on the sportsmanship of the New York Yacht Club and the kind reception which yachting men of America had extended to the visiting yachtsmen.

Captain Garrett was a member of a firm of distillers and was a leading opponent of Premier Craig's prohibition policy.

In July, 1920, Captain Garrett, then Secretary of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, was the guest of the Sulgrave Institution at a luncheon at the Lawyers' Club in this city. In a brief address on that occasion Captain Garrett said that, although he of course would like to see the America's Cup return to England, he would prefer to let it remain in the United States unless the Lipton yacht was "the best boat on top of the water."

CARL MUELLER DEAD.

Illinois Republican Leader Was Author of Municipal Traction Law.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Funeral services for State Representative Carl Mueller, who died early today in his apartment at the Webster Hotel, will be held tomorrow afternoon at St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Representative Mueller had a stroke of apoplexy in Springfield on April 9. He was 63 years of age and for years had been one of the most widely known Republican leaders in the State. Four sons and his mother, Mrs. Ernest Mueller of Madison, Wis., survive him.

Carl Mueller's name is written into traction history and the long municipal ownership controversy in Illinois through his sponsorship of the so-called "Mueller act" in 1902. Under its authority cities are given the right to acquire, construct, own, operate and lease street railways.

John A. Sullivan.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 12 (AP).—John A. Sullivan, thirty-third degree Mason and Past Junior Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, died at the Dickinson Hospital here today, in his seventy-seventh year. He was a leading merchant of this city for fifty years.

Mr. Sullivan was associated with John C. Hammond, member of the law firm of Hammond & Field, with which President Coolidge was once connected, in the development of the Northampton Street Railway Company.

Mrs. Schroeder, Admiral's Widow.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 12.—Mrs. Maria Schroeder, widow of Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, U. S. N., died today at her Summer home in Jamestown, R. I., after an illness of several months. She was born in Washington and was a sister of Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright and Captain Dallas Wainwright, who survive her. Burial will be in Jamestown after a funeral service in St. Matthew's Church.

WM. HARTFIELD DIES; LEADER IN SHIPPING

General Agent for Three Italian Lines Was Decorated for His Services to Immigration.

William Hartfield, President of Hartfield, Solari & Co., 25 Broadway, one of the leading men in the shipping industry in New York City, died Saturday at the age of 62 at his residence, 27 East Seventh Street, Brooklyn, after a lingering illness. The ohly near relative surviving is his brother, Henry Hartfield. His wife, Mrs. Lillian Hartfield, died in 1915. Services will be held in the Masonic Temple, Twenty-fourth Street and Sixth Avenue, Manhattan, at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be in the family plot at Woodlawn.

Mr. Hartfield was general agent for the Italian Steamship Lines. For thirty years he had been one of the influential factors in the handling of immigration to the United States from Italy. With his partner, Commendatore Luigi Solari, he had represented three Italian steamship companies, the Navigazione Generale Italiana, La Veloce and the Italia. For his services to Italian immigration he was decorated by King Victor Emmanuel in November, 1911, as Chevalier of the Order of the Crown of Italy.

A native of this city, Mr. Hartfield was a charter member of the Italian National Club, a member of the Italian Chamber of Commerce, Centennial Lodge, No. 763, F. and A. M., Mecca Temple, Royal Arcanum, and the Whitehall Club. He was Secretary and Vice President of the United Marine Contracting Corporation and a director of the Walles Dove-Hermiston Corporation.

Burn in Your Brand

HAVE you burned your brand into the buying consciousness of the thirty million people who live out there on the brick country road—and who constitute the other half of the one big town that is America? Do they know concretely the merits of your product? Would they know your package if they saw it? Have they got familiar enough with it yet to call it by its first name? Or is your product just aimlessly straying into the farmer's hands, through sufferance of the dealer?

Already the volume of this business of yours which is just straying into the hands of the farmer through tolerance of the dealer may, in the aggregate, amount to far more than you realize. And were you to lose it through the sudden sales activity of competition, you might be seriously embarrassed—most manufacturers would have to close their doors and cease operating if they lost their farm business.

Protect what you have and eliminate this aimless straying by clinching sales control of your country market—burn your brand into the consciousness of the worthwhile farmer.

Out in Kansas there's a clothing merchant by the name of Jones. He carries a full line of a popular brand of clothing. One of his customers, who lives on the brick road a little way, was asked—"What kind of a suit have you got on?" "It's a Jones. suit!" he answered. In other words, the most valuable asset of the manufacturer who made that suit, the label in the coat, meant NOTHING to this buyer. All he knew about this suit was that he bought it of JONES. The manufacturer had not burned in his brand. He was doing business out on the brick road through the sufferance of Mr. Jones.

The small town dealer is anxious and willing to stock and sell branded merchandise. And that manufacturer who presents, through his own salesmen, a complete advertising campaign, laid down against his complete market opportunity—city and farm—and thus embracing ALL and not a part of the dealer's trading radius, will be talking a language that the dealer understands. He will increase the effectiveness of his advertising far greater, proportionately, than the increased cost involved.

If you are a successful manufacturer, you understand the meaning of sales control. You have applied it successfully to at least a part of your business. If it's good for a part of your business—it's good all the way.

Nowhere in modern merchandising has sales control been more intensively developed than in the circulation methods of Farm Life. A nation wide group of Local Agents, under the supervision of the circulation manager, sells the publication to worthwhile farm families throughout the United States.

As a result, Farm Life offers you more than a million farm families who own a greater percentage of automobiles than the national average, a greater percentage of tooth brushes than the national average —and whose responsiveness to advertising is, according to proved results, greater than the national average.

Only 28% of these families can be reached through any metropolitan newspaper. Less than 23% take any of the general magazines. Less than 16% subscribe to any other one farm paper.

You can not effectively reach these families except through Farm Life's pages

—but for only one-fourth of a cent per home, using whole pages in Farm Life, you can burn your brand into the buying consciousness of these buying leaders in every farming community in the United States. And after you get the leaders—THE REST WILL FOLLOW.

BUSINESS MEN URGE REJECTION OF HYLAN

GROUPS VISIT THE LEADERS

Support Promised to Any Suitable Democratic Candidate Other Than the Mayor.

J. I. STRAUS IS SUGGESTED

Republicans Delaying Selection of a City Ticket Until Democrats Decide About Hylan.

Groups of business men of the city within the last few days have joined the movement to prevent the renomination of Mayor Hylan by the Democratic Party, it was learned yesterday. They have visited Governor Alfred E. Smith, George W. Olvany and John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, and have urged them to name some other candidate for the good of the city, promising their support if a satisfactory man should be selected.

The effects of these visits is reported to have been decidedly adverse to the Mayor's chance of renomination. Some of the Mayor's opponents were said to regard the fight to sidetrack him as practically accomplished. No selection has yet been made, it was said, of the man who is expected to displace Hylan as the head of the Democratic city ticket.

Special efforts have been made by the business men opposing Hylan to influence McCooey, who so far has not declared against Hylan, although he has not committed himself to him. These business men, among whom are many who gave material support to McCooey's local Democratic tickets in the past, are said to have told the Brooklyn leader that re-election of Hylan would be a bar to the city's commercial development, and to have indicated that McCooey could expect no further support from them if he should aid in bringing about Hylan's renomination.

A similar movement has developed in Manhattan. Representatives of important groups of business men have seen both Judge Olvany and Governor Smith, and have urged the necessity of selecting some other candidate than Hylan if they hope to have the support of the business interests for the Democratic city ticket.

Suggested a Business Man.

Some of these business men have gone so far as to suggest the advisability of naming a business man as the Democratic candidate for Mayor, and the name of Jesse I. Straus, President of R. H. Macy & Co., has been put forward as representing the type of candidate the business men of the city would like to see elected Mayor. While the suggestion of Mr. Straus was said to have been tentative, it was reported to be receiving serious consideration.

Another development of more than ordinary interest was the report that friends of Mayor Hylan had written William R. Hearst informing him that matters were not going so well for the Mayor and suggesting that he return from California and give his personal attention to helping the Mayor to renomination and re-election. Mr. Hearst, who left for California about three weeks ago, was said to have believed at that time that Tammany and the Democratic organizations in the other boroughs would not dare refuse Hylan renomination. He has now been advised, it was learned, that his assumption at the time of his departure was not necessarily correct.

The departure of Mr. Hearst on what seems to be the eve of a battle for Hylan's political existence has led to rumors of a break between the two. Friends of Mr. Hearst denied this and said that in returning to California Mr. Hearst had merely followed his inclination and custom without particular reference to the political situation here. They asserted that Mayor Hylan would continue to receive the support of the Hearst newspapers, and that Mr. Hearst had meant what he said when he declared that he would support Hylan for re-election in any way the latter might wish to run.

At the same time, the absence of Mr. Hearst was said to be worrying Hylan's supporters. It is appreciated by them, if not by the Mayor, that Mr. Hearst's presence in the city is needed to keep some of the wavering party leaders in line for the Mayor.

Hylan's attitude is reported to have been different from that of some of his advisers. The Mayor, it was learned, has all along taken the view that he had such popular strength that Tammany would not dare to refuse to renominate him. He was said still to be unable to understand why the leaders of Tammany should wish to deny him renomination. According to the Mayor's viewpoint, he has "played the game" with the Democratic organizations in all the boroughs and is entitled to their support.

Friends of the Mayor were said to have advised him some time ago to inspire leadership contests in some of the Tammany Assembly districts where the present leaders are believed to be not strongly entrenched. The theory was that he might be able to force at least some of the Tammany district leaders into supporting him by threat of a primary contest. This advice was not followed, and the Mayor, on the contrary, has made every effort to keep on friendly terms with Tammany and with Judge Olvany, its leader. As a leadership fight involves an organization in every election district to put up candidates for members of the Democratic County Committee, who in turn elect the leader, the time for the Mayor's friends to promote any Tammany leadership contests was said to have passed.

A quiet movement to prevent Hylan's renomination is said to have been in progress since last January. Some of the party leaders were reported to have been convinced then that it would be inadvisable to name Hylan for a third term. McCooey, who was then consulted, is said to have replied that he was not personally interested in Hylan's renomination and would have no objection to joining other party leaders in the support of some one else whom he would regard as a good candidate.

Officially, McCooey is "uncommitted." He would prefer a candidate from Brooklyn and has two in Surrogate George A. Wingate and Arthur S. Somers. It is not believed that he would hold out against any strong candidate who might be presented by Tammany and who would be personally acceptable to him.

Both Judge Olvany and Sheriff Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader of the Bronx, are now classed as definitely opposed to Hylan, although neither has declared himself. Tammany has four serious candidates, Supreme Court Justices Robert F. Wagner and John V. McAvoy, Surrogate James A. Foley and State Senator James J. Walker. Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, who has been mentioned frequently, would be satisfactory to Governor Smith and independent groups, including the Citizens Union, but the prevailing sentiment in Tammany is that the candidate should be what is known as an "organization man."

The action of the members of the Queens Democratic organization in circulating petitions for membership in the Hylan Five-Cent Fare Club was taken to indicate that the organization Democrats of that borough under the leadership of Borough President Maurice E. Connolly intend to stand with Hylan until the last. Belief was expressed by some Queens Democrats that the petitions might be filed to nominate Mayor Hylan as an independent candidate if turned down by the Democratic Party for renomination. This belief was based on the final sentence of the membership petitions, which reads as follows:

"We hereby recommend him [Mayor Hylan] for election as Mayor and pledge ourselves to support him for re-election."

The general view, however, was that the membership petitions could not be used to place Hylan in the running as an independent candidate, although the pledge might prevent the signers from signing petitions for any one else.

Belief that Mr. Connolly will be a candidate for re-election as Borough President instead of trying to get a nomination for Supreme Court Justice was strengthened when it was learned that Assistant District Attorneys Peter M. Daly and James J. Conroy had become candidates for the Democratic nomination for District Attorney of Queens County, a place now held by Richard S. Newcombe, who would undoubtedly receive renomination if he desired it.

May Try for Supreme Court.

The report was that Newcombe would be a candidate for one of the three nominations for Supreme Court Justice to be made this Fall in the Second Judicial District. Connolly, who once ran for Supreme Court Justice and was defeated, was said now to aspire to reach the bench by being elected County Judge of Queens. There was said to be no thought in Connolly's mind of trying to displace County Judge Burt J. Humphreys, but his plan, it was said, was to try again to have the Legislature create an additional County Judgeship for Queens County, a bill for which was vetoed by Governor Smith.

The Republicans have made little progress during the last week in the selection of a city ticket and continue to postpone any serious consideration of candidates until it becomes evident whether the Democrats intend to renominate Hylan.

With the Citizens Union and other independent bodies, which have formerly taken the lead in fusion movements, reported to be willing to support a Tammany candidate other than Hylan, the outlook for a formidable fusion movement against Tammany has grown weaker in the event that Hylan is not to be the Democratic nominee.

The Democratic Conference, a body of anti-Tammany Democrats organized recently by Ernest Harvier, announced that it had completed an organization in each of the twenty-three Manhattan Assembly districts and was progressing with an organization in Brooklyn. It is the plan of the conference to start primary leadership fights against Tammany wherever possible and to work against the Tammany candidate, whoever he may be, in the election. The Democratic Conference leaders are said to be willing to fuse with the Republicans and have expressed belief that the election of a straight Republican ticket would be impossible.

Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel of the Citizens Union, said yesterday that his withdrawal as a member of the Publicity Committee of the Republican Advisory Committee had no significance and that no inference as to the position of the Citizens Union should be drawn from it.

"My action in accepting membership on the Republican Advisory Committee and its Executive Committee, of both of which I am still a member, was entirely personal and individual," Mr. Wallstein said. "In requesting withdrawal of my assignment as a member of the subcommittee on publicity I did so because I could not spare the time which I deemed to be essential to the work of that subcommittee."

Rockefeller Gives $1,000,000 Promised to Tuskegee Fund

A million dollars in securities has been turned over to the Hampton-Tuskegee Endowment Fund, it was announced yesterday by John D. Rockefeller Jr., in fulfillment of a recent pledge. The securities were delivered to Clarence H. Kelsey, Chairman of the committee, who will distribute them equally between the two negro institutions.

Mr. Rockefeller's contribution, it was announced, swelled the fund to more than $4,500,000. The goal is $5,000,000. More than half of the sum already subscribed has been paid in cash. Mr. Rockefeller's gift was said to have been prompted by the "sound work achieved by the two institutes in helping to solve the negro problem."

WANT MISS MATHEWS AGAIN.

Women Ask Olvany to Renominate Woman Register.

Several hundred prominent women, headed by Miss Elisabeth Marbury, member of the Democratic National Committee, have written to George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, urging the renomination of Miss Annie Mathews for County Register. Miss Mathews, who is co-leader of the Tammany organization of the Nineteenth Assembly District, has served one term and has the highest salaried public office held by a woman in New York City. Several candidates for the place have come forward recently. The most prominent of whom is Mrs. Anna Naughton, woman leader of the Sixteenth Assembly District. In urging Miss Mathews's renomination, Miss Marbury and her associates said:

"Miss Mathews has in the conduct of the office of Register during the last four years won the confidence and approval of the citizens of the City of New York. In a time of unusual activity in real estate, she has so managed the office that real estate instruments, more than 25 per cent. greater than ever filed before in the history of the office, have been recorded at less expense than has been required for the operating expenses of the office under previous administrations. Her courtesy, ability and devotion to the duties of her office entitle her to renomination for another term."

Signers of the petition for the renomination of Miss Mathews included, in addition to Miss Marbury, Mrs. John Enos Quinn, President of the Women's Democratic Club; Mrs. John Blair, President of the Women's Democratic Union; Helen A. Lau, President of the State Democratic Forum; Miriam Faitt, President of the Women's Democratic Club of Washington Heights; Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Chairman of the Democratic State Publicity Committee; Gertrude A. Walsh, President of the Catholic Daughters of America; Mrs. Victor Frederickson, President of the Wisconsin Women's Society; Bessye J. Bearden, President of the Women's Democratic League of the Tammany Hall United Colored Democracy; Katrina Ely Tiffany, regional director of the New York League of Women Voters; Sara McPike, President of the St. Catherine Welfare Association, and Sara Conboy, Secretary-Treasurer of the United Textile Workers of the World.

Also May Lavelle McDermott, President of the Women's Tenant League Association; Mrs. Schuyler Warren of the Woodrow Wilson Democracy; Mrs. Annie E. Poth, Secretary of the National Order of Foresters; Frances Perkins, member of the State Industrial Board; Celestine Valadon, Vice President of the Cayuga Democratic Club; Mrs. Mary M. Lilly, former Member of Assembly; Belle Norton, Deputy Sheriff, New York County; Miss Amey Aldrich, Mrs. George Gordon Battle, Juanita B. Halley, President of the Home Makers' Association; Mrs. Laura Prampin, President of the Women's Civic League of America, and Mrs. Anne O'Hagan Shinn.

SPEEDER KILLS GIRL, CRASHES INTO POLE

6 OTHERS DIE IN ACCIDENTS

Two Women Killed on Their Way to Church, One by Driver Whose License Was Revoked.

Henry Wolf, 30 years old, of Marengo Avenue, Holliswood, who has been convicted of speeding, speeded again last night. This time he killed a little girl in the street and injured his wife, himself and other members of his party. Broken with grief by what he had done, he confessed to the police at Hempstead that he had been driving faster than 25 miles an hour, and was locked up on the charge of homicide.

The slain girl was Sarah Kenney, 10 years old, of 51 Newell Street, Brooklyn, who was visiting with her friend, Esther Bourne, 13 years old, of 10,420 Franklin Street, Queens. They were crossing the street near Hempstead Road and 218th Street, Queens, when the Wolf car bore down on them. The older girl dodged and escaped, but Sarah was killed instantly.

Swerving after the damage was done, Wolf ran into a telegraph pole. He was badly cut by flying glass. His wife, Caroline, was taken to Mary Immaculate Hospital suffering from broken ribs. Henry Young of 920 Queens Village was taken to the same hospital suffering from internal injuries, and his wife, Theresa, suffered severe lacerations. Wolf was locked up in the Queens Station, where, the police say, he made his confession to Lieutenant Kolsen.

Six other persons were killed and many injured by automobile accidents in this city and vicinity yesterday. Two women were run down and killed on the way to church, one by a motor truck with defective brakes, the driver of which, the police said, had lost his license six months ago for recklessness. Several drivers in yesterday's accidents were arrested.

The unlicensed driver using defective brakes, according to the police, was Michael Bartelucci, 30 years old, of 2,438 Southern Boulevard. His truck hit Mrs. Viscenza Sasano, 65 years old, of 416 East 124th Street, and killed her instantly. Bartelucci was arrested on a charge of homicide.

Josephine Klingberg, 42 years old, of Irvington-on-Hudson, was on her way to church when a passenger bus struck and killed her on the Boston Post Road in front of the residence of Frank Fitzpatrick. William Parker of Tarrytown, operator of the bus, was arrested on a charge of homicide at the instance of Dr. Amos O. Squire, the Westchester County Medical Examiner.

Miss May James, 25 years old, of Salem, N. J., was killed instantly when two automobiles collided during a thunderstorm at Quinton, near Millville, N. J. She was thrown from her vehicle. Miss Mabel Coombs of Bridgeton suffered a fractured skull and severe injuries to the face and body.

Killed in Ride to Flee Heat.

Unable to sleep because of the heat, George Coles of Harrison Street, Rahway, N. J., got out his automobile early yesterday, called for his friend, James Healy, 26 years old, a World War veteran, of 138 Grand Street, and invited him to go riding to keep cool. Their car struck a tree on a dangerous curve in the Lincoln Highway near Lake Avenue. Healy was thrown out and killed.

Mrs. Sarah Kutler, 62 years old, of 524 Saratoga Avenue, Brooklyn, died in the Brownsville and East New York Hospital, Brooklyn, last night, from injuries sustained late in the afternoon when struck by a taxicab at the corner of Saratoga and Sutter Avenues, Brooklyn. Her skull was fractured. Herman Gordon of 1,477 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, was the driver of the taxi, the police say.

John Gordon of 8,650 Nineteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, a member of the news staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES, was injured last evening when his automobile was in collision with another machine, driven by a colored woman, at Greene and Clermont Avenues, Brooklyn, and overturned. Mr. Gordon was treated at his home by a physician. No arrest was made.

Flung from his seat on the top of a bus when it veered toward the gutter on Stamford Avenue, Mamaroneck, George H. Hillman, 55 years old, of Port Chester, was thrown against a telephone pole, fracturing his skull. He died within a few minutes. Hillman was an agent for the Volunteers of America.

Seven persons were injured, three seriously, when they were thrown from their seats on wooden benches which had been fastened on a small commercial automobile which was in a collision at Tremont and Washington Avenue, the Bronx. The three taken to Fordham Hospital were Benjamin Kraus, 22 years old, of 315 Mount Eden Avenue, suffering from lacerations and internal injuries; Esther Kraus, 22, of the same address, multiple contusions, and Alexander Goldstein, 15 years old, 1,749 Bathgate Avenue, fractured right ribs.

Herman Levine, 21, of 324 Utica Avenue, Brooklyn, driver of the car which hit theirs, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving by Policeman Isaac Haspel of the Bathgate Avenue Station, who said Levine tried recklessly to cut in front of a street car.

Michael Maroney, 32 years old, of 1,230 Franklin Avenue, the Bronx, was seriously injured early yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile at 168th Street and Boston Road, the Bronx. He was taken to the Bronx Hospital. Percy B. Coyle, 32 years old, of Main Street, Nanuet, N. Y., driver of the machine which struck Maroney, was arrested by Patrolman Hogan of the Morrisania Station.

Taxi and Auto Crash.

Five passengers in a taxicab were injured, two of them so severely that their removal to the Kings County Hospital was necessary, in a collision early yesterday morning between the cab and another automobile at Bedford Avenue and Clymer Street, Brooklyn. John Hewitt of 170 Bleecker Street, Brooklyn, operator of the automobile, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving, and Sidney Rosenstein of 379 South Fifth Street, Brooklyn, taxicab driver, was charged with violation of the Volstead act because of a bottle of wine which, the police allege, was found in his cab.

The injured passengers were Philip Schwartz of 469 Bristol Street, knee broken and ribs fractured; David Wiesenfield, Beach Forty-fifth Street, Sea Gate, multiple cuts and bruises; Miss Evelyn Brady of 1,963 Daly Avenue, the Bronx; Nathan Dillager of 159 Delancey Street and Herbert Eckstein of 47 East 112th Street, variously cut and scratched. The latter three went home after treatment by Dr. Greenberg of the Beth Moses Hospital.

Seven persons were injured, three seriously, when a truck carrying fifteen persons, on their way to Edgewater Camp, Throgs Neck, was struck by another automobile at Tremont and Washington Avenues, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon. The truck was overturned. Patrolman Haspil of the Tremont Police Station arrested Herman Levine, aged 23, of 2,324 Utica Avenue, Brooklyn, the driver of the other vehicle, for reckless driving. Many in the truck were clad in bathing suits, prepared for an afternoon of swimming.

Alexander Goldstein, 19 years old, of 1,749 Bathgate Avenue, was the most seriously hurt, sustaining a fractured rib. Benjamin Kraus, 22 years old, of 315 Mount Eden Avenue, suffered internal injuries, and his wife, Estha, 22 years old, was cut about the forehead. They were taken to the Fordham Hospital. The four others injured were treated and sent home.

Falls Dead Watching Son Win Ball Game; Begs for a Hit; Stricken as Player Responds

Special to The New York Times.

ROCKAWAY, N. J., July 12.—Watching as one of his sons hit a three-bagger that brought in three runs, winning the game, Mayor John Wills fell forward dead in his seat in the stand this afternoon. A heart attack, superinduced by the excitement of the game, caused his death.

Three of the mayor's four sons were playing on the home team. Inning after inning the score had remained tied, each side having made one run. Then came the crucial inning. A home team batter reached first base. The next man up singled and the first batter was safe on second. The third man to face the pitcher also hit out a single. The bases were full as young Wills stepped up to the home plate.

Gripping the sides of his seat as he leaned forward, the mayor besceched his son to hit. Young Wills was equal to the occasion. As the ball came over the plate his bat met it squarely. A resounding crack and the ball flew off to the outfield. The men on bases scampered home, and Wills was safe on third. But the crack of the hickory on the ball had hardly died away when it was seen that the father of the game's hero was stricken.

All play stopped immediately as a physician was hurriedly summoned. The doctor's efforts were futile, however. The excitement had proved too much for Mayor Wills's weak heart and he was dead.

The mayor was the leading banker of the town, being President of the Merchants' National Bank. He was a prominent member of the Masonic Order and also of the Royal Arcasum. He is survived by a widow and four sons, John Jr., Edwin, Turner and Dr. Stewart Wills of New Orleans.

4 PERSONS DROWNED, SEVERAL RESCUED

Girl, Attempting to Save Man, Dragged to Lake Bottom, but Is Saved.

PULMOTOR REVIVES TWO

Crack Swimmer Goes 2,000 Feet Out at South Beach and Sinks—Persons on Shore Powerless.

Four persons were drowned in waters near New York yesterday and a number of others had narrow escapes. Two of those rescued owe their lives to the pulmotor.

Louis Shapiro, 28 years old, of 72 Monmouth Avenue, Newark, and Sarah Siegel, 25 years old, 281 Belmont Avenue, Newark, were swimming together in Pompton Lake, New Jersey, when Shapiro was seized with cramps and went down. In trying to help him Miss Siegel went down, too, clutched in his grip.

Those on shore had not seen Shapiro sink, but they saw the girl struggling. Boats and swimmers went to her rescue and pulled her up from the bottom of the lake. After twenty-five minutes' work over her she recovered consciousness.

"Where's Louis?" she asked. Nobody knew. She told them that he had sunk first. Shapiro's body was found at the bottom of the lake. He was a former infantryman in the regular army.

Unable to stand the heat in an unsheltered rowboat in Newark Bay, Hurley Donegan, 19 years old, of 267 Neptune Avenue, plunged into the water, was quickly seized with cramps and sank. Thomas McErlean, 18 years old, of 94 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, Donegan's companion, could not swim. He shouted for help and rowed after the drowning man, extending an oar, which failed to reach him.

Leonard Aucadamo, 20 years old, of 131 West Fifty-fourth Street, dived from another rowboat and tried to rescue Donegan. Aucadamo wore himself out in the attempt and went down. He was saved by John Slisko, 20 years old, of 578 Avenue E, Bayonne. Donegan was drowned. His body was found several hours later by volunteer life savers.

Paralyzed After a Dive.

A crack swimmer attracted attention at South Beach, Staten Island, yesterday when he swam out far beyond the others. Some of those on the beach watched him until he was a mere speck about 2,000 feet out. Suddenly they realized he was in trouble. He splashed about for a while and then went down. He was too far out for any one to reach him. He did not reappear.

No one knew the swimmer, but his locker was located at the Simpico Bathing Pavilion. There was a blue serge suit, straw hat and other clothing, a gold wedding ring and a gold ring with a red stone, but no name to identify him.

While attempting to recover an oar which fell from his row boat in the Harlem River off the foot of 173d Street last night, Fred Garber, 50 years old, who had lived in a nearby boathouse, fell into the water and was drowned. Persons on the shore, seeing the accident, called the police on the Highbridge Station, but they were unable to recover the man's body.

Diving from the foot of West Thirty-fifth Street, Coney Island, James McCormack, 19 years old, of 273 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, did not come to the top. He was dragged ashore unconscious by a life guard and taken to Coney Island Hospital, where it was found that his neck was broken. He is paralyzed from the hip downward and is not expected to live.

Carl Wagner of 316 East Sixth Street, Manhattan, collapsed in the ocean at Coney Island off the foot of East Sixteenth Street and was rescued by Life Guard Thomas Riordan. He regained consciousness after Dr. Bonfield of Coney Island Hospital worked over him an hour with a pulmotor.

Guard Saves Girl at Coney.

Dorothy Casey, 17 years old, of 457 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn, went under while she was swimming at the foot of West Thirty-sixth Street, Coney Island. She was saved by Life Guard Messer.

Annie Fritz, 18 years old, of 18 Union Street, Brooklyn, was seized with cramps while swimming off Annadale Beach, Staten Island, and was rescued after a long struggle by her 13-year-old brother John, who nearly went down in the attempt. Other swimmers came to the rescue. The girl was unconscious. It took a pulmotor to restore her.

Moe Schneider, 22 years old, of 2,513 McIntosh Street, East Elmhurst, Queens, suffered an attack of cramps while swimming in Flushing Bay. As he was going down for the second time, several bathers in the vicinity, observing his predicament, went to the rescue and brought Schneider to shore. He was removed by Dr. Granoss to St. John's Hospital, Long Island City. His condition is not serious.

Abraham Rubin, 39, of 2,030 West Thirty-first Street, Coney Island, and his three children—Lillian, 12, Jack, 9, and Esther, 6, were pitched into the water of Big Lake, Prospect Park, Brooklyn, when their rowboat capsized yesterday afternoon. Rubin attempted to swim to the shore with the boy clutching the back of his neck, while the two girls struggled in the water near the overturned boat.

The accident caused excitement among hundreds on the water in small boats and other hundreds who witnessed the mishap from the shore. A score of small rowboats hurried to the rescue. In one of these was Patrolman Brassil of the Prospect Park Station, who plunged into the water and saved Lillian and Esther. Rubin and his son were picked up by another boat, and all four arrived on shore safely.

Hylan Back From Mother's Grave.

Mayor Hylan returned last night from a visit to his birthplace at Hunter, Greene County, where he went to inspect a new tombstone which he had had erected over his mother's grave. Except for his chauffeur, the Mayor made the trip alone in his automobile. He arrived at his home at 959 Bushwick Parkway, Brooklyn, a little after 10 o'clock and retired almost immediately.

TURNER IS QUOTED FOR SUBWAY LEVY

THIS CITY BLOCKED PROJECT

Head of Institute of Public Service Sees Voters Puzzled Over Expert's Recommendation.

Saying that it was no wonder the average voter had difficulty in understanding the transit question, William H. Allen, Director of the Institute for Public Service, quoted Daniel L. Turner, consulting engineer of the Transit Commission, in a statement yesterday as having favored the assessment method of financing part of the cost of constructing new subways in Detroit. This method of paying for part of the cost of new subways was proposed recently by Mayor Hylan's Board of Transportation, and Mr. Allen declared that the voters should consider it carefully in view of the fact that the expert of the Transit Commission, which is opposed to Mayor Hylan on subways, had suggested a similar plan for Detroit.

Mr. Allen said that Mr. Turner in his report to the Detroit authorities suggested that property in the vicinity of the proposed lines should pay three-fourths of the cost of the permanent railroad and declared that charging all the cost to the rider largely would destroy the usefulness of a rapid transit system. He said that Mr. Turner declared further that the fixed charges on only one-third of the total cost should be made a burden against fares, and cited as examples an increase of 104 per cent. in property values in upper Manhattan following subway construction, or seven times the cost of subway construction, and an increase of 94 per cent. in property values in the Bronx.

"By all the conventional laws of controversy, the consulting engineer to the Transit Commission, which claims the Mayor is responsible for delays in subway building and for politically profiteering with the five-cent fare issue, should be opposed to keeping a nickel fare at the expense of property holders," Mr. Allen said. "Yet, when stating social and financial principles to Detroit, he favors the very policy which his New York employers call moonshine for this city. No wonder New Yorkers see a subway dilemma of many more than two horns."

REVOKE SPEEDER'S LICENSE.

Authorities Chase Lawyer a Mile at Bradley Beach.

Special to The New York Times.

BRADLEY BEACH, N. J., July 12.—John Platoff, a Weehawken lawyer, spending the Summer at 506 Fourth Avenue, here, was the first automobilist to fall under the campaign of Mayor Frank C. Borden against speeders. Platoff's license was revoked today by Recorder Joseph R. Megill after police had testified that he was driving at the rate of 38 miles an hour through Main Street Friday evening and that they had chased him a mile before overtaking him.

Mayor Borden's campaign, announced yesterday, included the threat to impose jail sentences instead of fines on speeders. Recorder Megill discovered, however, that the law did not permit jail sentences for first offenders and so revoked Platoff's license instead.

It was evident yesterday that Mayor Borden's threat had curbed speeding. Motorists everywhere were cautious and though the police were on the alert no offenders were discovered. A half dozen persons on whom summonses were served last week will have their hearings this week, however.

The Mayor's pronouncement against disrobing in automobiles or on the beach also was heeded today, and no violations were seen.

WHITNEY IS CONFIDENT.

Jersey Republican Nominee Says He Is People's Candidate.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 12.—Senator Arthur Whitney, Republican nominee for Governor of New Jersey, expressed confidence of his election here today.

"I have no doubt of my election," he said, "and when I am elected I will give my full time to my office and will try my best to work for the interests of the people.

"I never doubted that I would win the primary contest, but I was much surprised at the size of the plurality I received. I had not expected such a splendid demonstration.

"I went through the campaign without a pre-primary promise. I am not beholden to any class or group. The people nominated me. I am their candidate; they will elect me and I will work for them."

SMITH AT SOUTHAMPTON.

Governor Visits National Golf Club and Attends Church.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMTON, L. I., July 12.—Governor Alfred E. Smith arrived at the National Golf Club last evening aboard the yacht of William Tod, the shipbuilder. Included in the party were the Governor's son, Alfred Smith Jr., and the latter's wife; also Mayor Griffin of Hoboken. Soon after arriving at the club the Governor and his party motored to Canoe Place Inn, where they stayed for a while.

The Governor attended services this morning in Southampton at the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and Mary. The Governor also called on Mrs. Charles F. Murphy. The party left the National Golf Club before luncheon. It is expected the Governor will return for a longer visit in two weeks.

SCHEPP ENLARGES PLAN TO AID BOYS

Five Annual Scholarships of $1,200 to $1,500 Are Included in His $2,500,000 Gift.

FOUNDATION IS ORGANIZED

Trustees and Officers Announced, With Pledge Required From Lads Who Will Benefit.

Organization of the Leopold Schepp Foundation, which is to administer the $2,500,000 gift made recently by Mr. Schepp to aid boys, was announced yesterday. The offices of the Foundation are at 185 Madison Avenue, and boys were advised to write there for further information.

"Since the first announcement," said a statement, "the scheme has been enlarged by the addition of five annual scholarships, to be awarded to older boys, amounting to $1,200 to $1,500 each, to meet the expenses of a four-year collegiate or professional course.

"The general purpose of the donor is to help boys to resist the temptation to gamble, to encourage good citizenry in the country of their birth or adoption, loyalty to parents and those in authority, observance of the Golden Rule, and fidelity to the religious beliefs and practices of their fathers, irrespective of race, sect or creed. Boys of 13, 14 or 15 years of age are eligible, and the faithful keeping of the pledge for a period of three years will entitle the Endeavorer, which is the name Mr. Schepp likes to apply to his boys, to a gift from the Foundation of $200.

"Mr. Schepp wishes to make it clear that the gift made to the boys is to be regarded solely as a means of advancing their education or starting them in business for themselves. Emphasis is, however, laid on the importance of keeping the pledge for its own sake rather than for the financial reward, and it is expected that many boys will wish to join the organization because of the moral support they will derive from the signing of the pledge."

Pledge to Be Taken.

The pledge, which has been approved by Mr. Schepp and adopted by the Board of Trustees of the Foundation, is as follows:

"Desiring to share the benefits of the Leopold Schepp Foundation, I hereby pledge my best efforts to be worthy of the aid and encouragement which it offers.

"First—To remember my accountability to my Maker, and endeavor with God's help to keep His commandments and daily seek His favor.

"Second—To be loyal to my country, to obey the laws of the land which I live in, or in which I may sojourn.

"Third—To honor my parents and all to whom honor is due.

"Fourth—To be honest in all my dealings and endeavor to observe the rule: 'Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them.'

"Fifth—To abstain from all intoxicating drinks and harmful drugs.

"Sixth—To avoid the practice of gambling in any form.

"Seventh—To shun evil companions and avail myself of such moral and religious influences as are within my reach.

"Eighth—To cultivate those manly qualities which will fit me for good citizenship and for an honorable life.

"If I am prospered in my career I shall count it a duty and a privilege to return to the Foundation what it has expended on my behalf, in order that it may extend like privileges to other deserving boys."

The trustees and officers of the Foundation are:

The Rev. George Alexander, President; Judge Elbert H. Gary, Justice Thomas C. T. Crain, Justice William N. Ferguson, Toronto; Edward W. Stitt, Howard Elliott, Florence L. Schepp, Vice President; Manfred W. Ehrich, Georgie Van Brunt Putney, Annie Ferguson Burke, Thomas Guthrie Speers, Leopold Schepp, Edmonds Putney, Clarence R. Nims, Anne Kissam Hays, Harry Belgard, Treasurer; John Berens, Assistant Treasurer; Philip Ritter, Director.

Mr. Schepp announced his gift in March. He is President of L. Schepp & Co., importers and preservers of cocoanuts, 169 Duane Street. He began his business career sixty-five years ago, peddling matches on a cash capital of 18 cents. He is said to have acquired more than $10,000,000. The foundation for boys is the outgrowth of Mr. Schepp's desire to be his "own executor."

FIREMEN FIND LIQUOR IN TENEMENT BLAZE

Two Men in Burning Apartment Arrested on Charges of Violating Dry Law.

Fire in the first floor apartment of the five-story brick tenement house at 262 West Forty-seventh Street last night resulted in the arrest on charges of violating the Volstead law of Amelio Belmonte, 25 years old, of 164 West Nineteenth Street, and Charles Montaurte, 24 years old, of 342 West Fortieth Street. The firemen turned over five gallons of alleged alcohol and other alleged liquors to the police, who made the charges against the only two occupants of the apartment.

A man who saw smoke coming from a window notified Patrolman Rogers of the West Forty-seventh Street station. Rogers forced his way through the smoke-filled hallway to a rear apartment, and said that after he had been denied admittance he forced open the door. He found the floor and rugs on fire and apparently the two men had been making an effort to put out the flames without sending an alarm.

After firemen had extinguished the flames they found broken bottles and containers of alleged alcohol which prompted them to furnish the information to Rogers. In his report the patrolman said the fire was of unknown origin.

FOG DELAYS CAMERONIA.

Docks in Afternoon After Notice She Would Not Get In Till Today.

Delayed by fog for several hours, the Anchor liner Cameronia did not reach her pier until 1:20 yesterday afternoon, and her passengers were disappointed because there was no one to meet them. The steamship had been expected to dock about 9 A. M., and relatives and friends of those on board began to arrive just before 8 o'clock.

Captain J. M. Chalmers, marine superintendent of the Anchor Line, who was in charge, gave orders to send away the baggage porters and the longshoremen and close the front doors on the pier, as he had received a message from the office, 25 Broadway, that the liner would not arrive that day. He also gave the information to the customs inspectors, but they had to get instructions from the United States Barge Office, and they remained. When everybody else had gone, a telephone message was received from the Barge Office that the Cameronia had passed Sandy Hook at 10:12 and would dock about 1 P. M. Only about five of the porters could be rounded up to handle the baggage. Captain Chalmers returned in his automobile in time to dock the ship.

100 Hurt in 4 Glasgow Riots At Battle of the Boyne Fete

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 12 (AP).—More than 100 persons were injured and fifty arrests were made in four riots late last night, the disturbances growing out of a demonstration in commemoration of the Battle of the Boyne.

Fifty thousand Orangemen participated in a parade which was attacked by opposing factions a little before midnight.

Bottles and missiles of all kinds were thrown indiscriminately, the riots continuing until large forces of police separated and dispersed the combatants.

10 DANCE AT CAFE; HOLD UP 40, ESCAPE

Seven Men Rob Patrons After 3 Women of Their Party Leave the Place.

COLLECT LOOT IN HATS

Victims Are Lined Up Facing Pistols as Bandits Collect Their Cash and Jewelry.

Seven well-dressed young men accompanying three women entered the Ulpia, a restaurant kept by Tullio Rennicci on the second floor at 236 West Fifty-sixth Street, near Broadway, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. They went to tables in the rear of the large dining room, where there were about forty guests, some dancing and some eating. They remained there for an hour, when the women left. Then the seven young men held up the restaurant, getting away with all the jewelry, money and watches of the patrons and robbing Rennicci's till of $150.

One of the young men, apparently the leader, paid the check, the others standing close to him. It amounted to about $8. The cashier's desk is near the door leading to stairs to the street. The man picked up his change and put it into his pocket. Before withdrawing his hand he said "O. K." and pulled out a pistol, adding sharply: "Stick 'em up."

His companions all drew weapons and lined the dancers and diners against the wall, hands in the air. Then the leader stationed one man at the head of the stairs, directed another to herd his victims away from three big windows in front and told two others to "go through the crowd."

With hats as collection baskets the collectors went to work. From one woman they got $100 besides rings and other jewels. Bills and trinkets came out quickly. Then the leader forced Rennicci to open his cash drawer and give him its contents. This done he took a last survey of the room and said again "O. K."

The seven went to the stairs and ran out. Rennicci hurried to a window and got there in time to see a big car pull out from the curb in front of his restaurant. He blew a police whistle and attracted Patrolman Joseph Glennon, who fired a shot after the car as it turned into Eighth Avenue. Detectives from the West Forty-Seventh Street Station were assigned to the case.

BOY PICKPOCKET SAYS MANIA CAUSES THEFTS

Ten-Year-Old Captive Admits 26 Robberies, Police Say—Victim of Sleeping Sickness.

Miss Frances McDonald, cashier in Luna Park, felt a tug at her pocketbook yesterday afternoon as she was walking in a crowd in Surf Avenue near Luna Park. She turned quickly and found a small boy in the act of robbing her. She seized him and called a policeman.

The tiny pickpocket not only confessed that he had tried to rob Miss McDonald, the police declared, but said that it had been his twenty-sixth adventure of the kind and the first in which he had been caught.

The boy is 10 years old. His name is Joseph Lavero and he lives at 287 West Fifteenth Street. At the Coney Island Police Station detectives bent almost double over their diminutive captive and listened to his series of confessions. According to the boy, his mother always scolded him and returned the purse and money, if she could locate the owner.

"Why do you do such things, Joe?" he was asked.

"Sleeping sickness," said the boy. He said he had suffered from this affliction and it had left him with a mania for taking purses. The boy was turned over to the Children's Society.

AUTO BANDITS BUSY.

Four Rob Two Men and a Garage but a Third Victim Escapes.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 12.—Four men in a red auto figured in three robberies and an attempted one in Hackensack and vicinity beginning at 2:30 this morning.

They first accosted Robert E. Van Allen, an inspector on the Hudson River trolley line. Van Allen, ordered to throw up his hands, refused and started to run toward a lunch wagon. The thugs fired, but Van Allen escaped uninjured.

At 3:30 John A. Kipp was held up at Richell Park and relieved of $65 in cash and his driver's license. The bandits gave him 25 cents to pay for cigarettes.

Next, Robert Duthie Jr., an auto dealer of 77 Union Street, Hackensack, was held up at Prospect Avenue and Essex Street and robbed of a diamond ring, $7 in cash and a check for $40.

The Bader Garage, on Terrace Street, was forced open, and Chief of Police O'Shea is certain the same marauders were responsible. David Bader, the proprietor, said several auto tubes, tires and accessories, worth several hundred dollars, were stolen.

Binghamton Recovers 19 Autos.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 12.—Nineteen automobiles had been recovered up to today by the Binghamton police in an extended investigation of the auto-thieving ring uncovered here last week. Chief of Police William T. Hunt estimates the value of the cars thus far recovered at $50,000. The last seven to be recovered included six sedans and a touring car. Guy J. Depew, a tannery employe, alleged leader of the gang, is held in jail under $2,000 bail. The cars were stolen from all parts of the State.

TO ASSEMBLE PROOF OF POLLUTION TODAY

PLANS NEW PLEA TO HYLAN

Praises War Department Action and Calls the Mayor's Answer an Attempt to Dodge His Record

CITES LETTER ON DISPOSAL

Park Body to Seek Injunction Against Construction Camps in Central Park This Week.

Investigators who have been collecting evidence of the pollution of the beaches in and near New York City during the past two weeks will submit photographs and preliminary reports to William B. Roulstone of 26 Exchange Place, Chairman of the Parks Conservation Association, today. The evidence which they have gathered, according to Mr. Roulstone, clinches the proof that the Hylan Administration has been responsible for the garbage that is being cast up at bathing resorts.

Letters to seventy-five civic organizations will be sent out by the Parks Conservation Association, urging each to adopt a resolution calling on Mayor Hylan to dump the city garbage at a point far enough out to stop beach pollution and to hurry the construction of sufficient incinerator plants to burn all New York City's waste.

"The War Department's letter and demand on Mayor Hylan is a splendid thing, and I believe it is the most effective thing that could happen to end the vicious practice of dumping the city's garbage where it litters the beaches, but we intend to press our own campaign on the same subject with the object of forcing action at all possible speed," said Mr. Roulstone.

"We are getting together the legal citations to back up the application which will be made some time this week for an injunction to prevent the Hylan Administration from filling one border of Central Park with construction camps, and we are collecting evidence from many beaches in order to make it impossible for Mayor Hylan to dodge the responsibility for fouling the beaches in this manner. The desecration of the parks and the desecration of the beaches are matters in which this organization is vitally interested, and they are both exhibitions of Mayor Hylan's indifference to the comfort and welfare of the people of the city

"Mayor Hylan's reply to the War Department, attempting to disclaim responsibility for beach pollution and alleging that he has been zealous in working for incinerator plants, is an attempt to dodge his own record. He is convicted out of his own mouth for lack of zeal in trying to solve the garbage problem by his letter to the Merchants' Association two years ago in which he refused to consider the substitution of incinerators in place of dumping in the ocean. His claim that he has tried to solve this problem is proved to be false by that letter, in which he told the Merchants' Association: 'You know very well that the proposition to which you call attention would take millions upon millions of dollars to remedy, and that we would not have any money left for municipal ownership and operation of transit lines and public schools.' The Mayor has been the reverse of diligent. During Mayor Hylan's seven years of retrogression the garbage disposal has grown continually worse, until it is today an outrage on the Summer resorts of New York and New Jersey. Instead of being diligent to remedy this evil, as he now claims, the Mayor has tried to stick to the policy of dumping in the ocean, believing that he could avert the anger of the sufferers at the beaches by claiming that it was the ships which littered the beaches with garbage. There is every evidence that this shocking condition has been caused almost wholly by New York garbage."

SILZER ADVISES ACTION.

Officials Here Should Produce Incinerators, Not Denials, He Says.

SEAGIRT, N. J., July 12—Following another denial by officials of New York City that it is garbage from the metropolis that is polluting New Jersey and Long Island beaches, Governor George S. Silzer at his Summer home here today declared that if officials of New York City would lend their energies toward completing incinerators to take care of the waste instead of denying that it comes to the beaches, the problem would be solved sooner.

Governor Silzer's statement follows:

"The people of New Jersey and those of New York along the Long Island shore are grateful to the Secretary of War for his prompt response to our appeal to stop the New York City garbage nuisance. New York City has had a temporary permit for seven years, but now they must realize that they cannot procrastinate longer. They will now have to get down to business and finish very promptly the incinerators necessary to dispose of their garbage or suffer the penalty of greater inconvenience.

"If the Street Department will lend their energies in that direction instead of denying that their garbage comes to the beaches, the problem will sooner be solved. I want to give one word of warning, and that is that we should not relax in our vigilance, or we will again be troubled with garbage.

"As soon as we find a repetition of the nuisance, the evidence should be gathered and laid before the War Department at once, so that careless inspectors or supervisors may be dismissed immediately, and replaced by more vigilant men.

"The War Department has given us assurance of permanent relief in its order to New York City to build incinerators and stop dumping garbage at sea. Our part now is to look after the temporary relief by preventing careless dumping. If more inspectors are needed, New York City should pay for them. If inspection be careless, then we should check it. We must in no circumstances relax our vigilance."

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 12.—Cyril H. Smack, Superintendent of the Seabright Beach Club, who has made a study of tides and garbage pollution at Seabright for many years, takes exception to the statement made by Mayor Hylan that passing ships, and not the city dumping at sea, is responsible for the trouble along the Jersey shore.

A few weeks ago Mr. Smack had boys gather up a stack of letters and theatre tickets that had been washed ashore with garbage and filed them with the proper authorities. These letters and theatre tickets, he said, bore New York dates from four to five days old when picked up.

Mr. Smack will write Mayor Hylan a letter tomorrow in which he will try to refute his statement of beach pollution.

WHAT IS THE PRESIDENT doing with his vacation? He doesn't swim, nor fish, nor golf, and tennis has no attractions for him. The chief outdoor sport at White Court is photography—not taking pictures but posing for them. This takes a good deal of the President's time. A busy wire tethers him to Washington and official business is always uppermost. What Calvin Coolidge said to Silas Bent when he "passed the time of day" with him at the "Summer White House" is reported. A picture is also reproduced.

THE PRINCE OF WALES, considered his country's "best commercial traveler," has now undertaken to "conquer" Latin America. Never before has a British sovereign or a Prince of Wales set foot on Latin-American soil, although two grandsons of Queen Victoria did touch the River Plate in 1880. P. W. Wilson tells of some of the "pomp and circumstance" which will greet the distinguished traveler and touches upon the "grave considerations" that impend as the heir slowly but surely approaches the throne of Great Britain.

THAT THE LANDMARKS of New York are transitory is vividly brought home in an article reviewing familiar objects in this kaleodoscopic city, which become antiquities in one generation, then vanish. The Greely statue, the Alexander Hamilton Grange and Poe's home are illustrated.

THE ELASTICITY of our vocabulary and its "stretching" possibilities is evidenced by the fact that radio alone has added 1,000 new words. The process adopted by lexicographers when new words are considered for admission is both interesting and informing. Since the days of Dr. Johnson, whose dictionary contained but 50,000 words, the language has increased 800 per cent.

IT IS A FAR CRY from the "tramp, tramp, tramp" of marching soldiers to the whir of wing and the calls of birds; but that is the contrast which may soon be drawn between the territory known as Camp Upton during the World War and the protected woodland it is to become. President Coolidge has signed an executive order creating the reservation a National Forest. Bertram Reinitz describes the past, present and probable future of the spot.

WITH THE RECOLLECTION of the "terrible and tremendous 'Christ'," by the American-born sculptor, Jacob Epstein, still upon us, our attention is held by another work from the hands of this artist, which has once more stirred London. This is the memorial to W. H. Hudson, American-born writer and field naturalist. The controversy over this panel is discussed, and the work pictured.

TO MRS. JOHN B. HENDERSON, widow of the Senator from Missouri, belongs the distinction of "succeeding where the great Napoleon failed." This is the observation of Axel Leonard Astrom, Minister from Finland, at a recent dinner in the Capital. With the completion of the new Italian Embassy, Mrs. Henderson is realizing a dream, parallel to that of "the man who so nearly became master of the world." Part of "Embassy Row" is shown, the Italian Embassy and the house built by Mrs. Henderson as a home for Vice Presidents.

THAT FOG IS STILL the fisherman's nemesis is demonstrated in the stirring tale of Thomas Flannagan, rescued from the schooner Rex, split by the Tuscania in a fog on Banquereau. "The Fog Warning," by Winslow Homer, is reproduced.

THE SCREEN

Cold Storage Egg Plays Cupid.

MARRY ME—From the play "The Nest Egg," by Anne Caldwell, with Florence Vidor, Edward Everett Horton, John Roche, Helen Jerome Eddy and others; directed by James Cruze. At the Rialto Theatre.

When Hetty Gandy (Florence Vidor) chose the epidermis of a new-laid egg on which to "name the day" in writing to a sweetheart who had just proposed, she laid the foundation for an amusing story. Hetty was to have named the day orally, but a telegram about a sick aunt sent her rushing away before breakfast from the farmhouse where the vacation romance had reached its flowering. Therefore, lacking notepaper presumably, she took an egg from the farmer's crate and wrote the date she proposed to march down the aisle to "Here Comes the Bride." She also added her name and address. The farmer's wife promised to give the egg to the sweetheart, but the farmer, unknown to her, put it back in its place in the crate, nailed the cover down, and sent the whole collection to the express station.

The story then halts for the number of years the producers think sufficient time for Hetty to be off with the old love and ready for a new, and still be considered a nice girl by the audience, and then she gets a telegram from John Smith, the finder of the fateful egg. Her old lover had the same name and she thinks it is he coming to marry her. So does the village. They all celebrate.

But it is another John Smith. What he wants Hetty to go to the distant city with him for is not to be married, but to testify in his suit against cold storage proprietors to the antiquity of the egg she has autographed. The aunt sees everlasting humiliation for Hetty if the village learns the secret, and makes them go off to pretend to be married. Hetty, she says, can come back in a week or two and say she found her husband was a confirmed drunkard and divorced him. The rest of the story shows why Hetty did no such thing.

What makes this photoplay doubly entertaining is that, though it is told by the machinery of farce, it is essentially a comedy of character. John Smith No. 2, when you first see him, is utterly impossible as a potential husband for Hetty. He is a young man with bad nerves, feeble circulation and "crank" aspirations. He carries a satchel full of medicines, some of which he is always taking, and his purpose in life is to jail all sellers of the food responsible for his bad health.

He is a purely farcical figure and the story is the story of his becoming human and their falling in love. The director made a mistake when he did not indicate the farce tempo and the real story at the outset, for the play started as though you were to take it realistically, and lots of people wasted time figuring out about the message on the egg and why the original sweetheart hadn't found Betty in all those years, and all that sort of thing, when it didn't really mean anything at all, as it turned out. If you see this picture, don't take too seriously what happens until you get well into the second reel. Then begin to enjoy yourself.

Edward Everett Horton, prominent in the film version of "Beggar on Horseback," does a beautiful job with his rôle in this picture and Florence Vidor is a worthy playing mate. Mr. Horton's part calls for his being eccentrically unhuman and plausibly human at the same time. With the help of the touches James Cruze, as director, has supplied, he succeeds admirably. The entire cast is very capable and it all results in an amusing story with something more overlaid which makes the picture out of the ordinary.

Two Plays in One.

THE WOMAN HATER—From "The Eleventh Virgin," by Dorothy Day, with Helene Chadwick, Clive Brook, John Harron, Helen Dunbar and Dale Fuller; directed by James Flood; "Alpine Paradise," scenic divertissement; "Alice Wins the Derby," a tabloid; two organ specialties by John Hammond; other musical numbers. At the Piccadilly.

Up to a certain point there is enjoyment possible in "The Woman Hater." The maximum dose might be prescribed as thirty to forty minutes. During that time you make the acquaintance of the characters played by Helene Chadwick, Clive Brook and John Harron, and you feel that although the characters are not particularly interesting, this actress and these actors are rather nice people and you hope they will get on in the world. Occasionally you perceive that they have this or that reason for entering a room or leaving it, and you gather that something or other is going on somewhere which must be the reason for their staying with you so long. But you do not object to that, because, as has been said, you sort of like them. You hope that whatever it is that is going on, it will turn out well for all three of them. There, of course, you show your ignorance, because if things were going well for all three of them, how could there be any play? To make a play at least one character must be having hard luck. Some dramatists insist on increasing the number. Some even include the audience.

However, we were talking about "The Woman Hater." You find Helene Chadwick playing a great actress, one of those "the toast of Paris" persons. "Men from all Europe crowded her drawing room," the title-writer informs us. But things are not as bad as they might be, for she has no lap-dog and somehow the director has omitted the usual prince of the blood who insists upon thrusting the usual priceless diamond necklace upon her.

Well, somehow the actress comes to New York and is on the point of marrying Philip Tranter (John Harron), a young millionaire, when his friend, Miles Faversham (Clive Brook), enters to try to break it up for the boy's mother. Faversham is the "woman hater." So in the end he marries her. The three get all mixed up and running back and forth to each other's abodes, but finally Faversham and she make up and embrace and you think it's all over and not so bad either. Then somebody must have thought of the word "pep." So they put the young millionaire behind a curtain with a revolver pointed at Faversham. She sees it, and so she begins to "act." She tells Faversham she never loved him, he recoils in horror and other emotions, and right there they begin a new play. But, having told about the first play, we will leave the other to the imagination.

And that is about all that need be said of "The Woman Hater," except perhaps that Clive Brook and John Harron do a lot better acing than you would think possible under the conditions. Helen Chadwick smiles and un-smiles very sweetly all along and surprises you most to death to think one of those "toasts of Paris" could be such a sweet girl. But when she breaks into the second play and begins to "act"—well, we have already noted our refusal to write about two plays in one review.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The name of the new comedy by Winchell Smith and George Abbott that John Golden will produce in the Fall has been changed from "A Straight Shooter" to "The Holy Terror."

A spectacular production of "Faust" will be made during the coming season by John E. Kellard, in association with George Backer, opening in Columbus, Ohio, on Sept. 17.

Louis Wolheim will return to the cast of "What Price Glory" tonight after a week's absence due to illness.

"Sunny" has been decided upon as the title of the musical play in which Charles Dillingham will star Marilyn Miller. Rehearsals begin on Aug. 3.

Marc Connelly is writing the book, Owen Murphy the lyrics and Jay Gorney the music for "How's the King?" which will open in Atlantic City in September, with Joe Cook featured.

Fay Marbe has been added to the cast of the forthcoming "Parisian Artists and Models," to be produced by William K. Wells.

"Something to Brag About" will open in Asbury Park on Aug. 1.

Methodist Episcopal Editor Declares Europe Surpasses Us.

ROUND LAKE, July 12.—The Rev. Dr. Henry H. Meyer, editor of Sunday school publications for the Methodist Episcopal Church, stated before the Round Lake Assembly today that he had "gradually and very reluctantly" surrendered to the conviction that the United States of America is behind Europe in religious education in at least three particulars.

Dr. Meyer, who recently returned from the Continent, says that in America the average Protestant child is not provided with the amount of religious instruction he would get in almost any Protestant community in Europe.

Two other sermons were delivered, one by the Rev. Benton S. Swartz, D. D., of Buffalo, Secretary of the Sunday School Council of Religious Education, and the other by the Rev. William H. Powers, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist Church of Ithaca.

Dr. Meyer said that in America there is no such body of trained teachers of religion as in Europe, and that the total program and work of religious instruction is not as well organized and administered here as there.

"At the same time," he pointed out, "it is evident that we are on the eve of a far-reaching forward movement in religious education, the extent and final program of which it is not possible to foresee. There is one need concerning the urgency of which all are agreed. This is the need for greatly increased and more united effort on the part of all the religious educational forces in this country in the interests of a more adequate program of Christian teaching in the days immediately before us."

The Rev. Dr. Powers gave as a definition of spiritual power the "conscious appropriation of divine energy to the faithful use of it."

Dr. Swartz discussed the use of talents.

54TH BRIGADE IN CAMP.

Replaces the 53d, Which Returns Home From Peekskill.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, July 12.—Major Gen. Charles W. Berry, Commander-in-Chief, and division officers of the New York National Guard saw the shifting of 5,000 State troops in Peekskill camp today as the Fifty-third Brigade of Infantry departed after two weeks' training and the Fifty-fourth Brigade arrived.

In the departing brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. Franklin W. Ward, were the 106th Regiment of Brooklyn, commanded by Colonel Thomas Fairservis, and the 105th Regiment from up-State, commanded by Colonel Ransom Gillette of Troy.

In the arriving brigade were the 107th Regiment of New York City, commanded by Colonel Wade Hayes and the 108th Regiment commanded by Colonel John Thompson of Syracuse. Brig. Gen. Edgar S. Jennings commands the brigade which was received by Colonel William R. Wright, post executive officer, and Colonel Allen Reagan, division inspector.

Twelve hundred militiamen of the 106th Infantry Regiment returned to their armory in Brooklyn today from Camp Smith. The men entrained at Peekskill at 9 A. M., arrived at the Grand Central terminal in Manhattan at 10 and there boarded an I. R. T. subway train which took them to the Franklin Avenue station, Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn.

Friends and relatives awaited them at the subway station and marched with them to the armory at Bedford and Atlantic Avenues. Colonel Fairservis lined up the regiment on the floor, complimenting the men on their work in camp, and then dismissed them.

FOG KEEPS PILOT ON LINER.

Forced to Come to This Port From Halifax on the Arabic.

The fog was so thick outside Halifax Harbor on Friday night when the White Star liner Arabic was leaving, that Tom Hayes, the pilot, could not be landed at Chebucto Head and was brought to New York yesterday. He said that he always enjoyed a free trip to this city, but did not enjoy the twenty-eight hours' ride back by train. He left for Halifax last night via Quebec.

Among the 265 passengers was Govan Muir, an English actor returning to play under the management of Al Woods. He said that seven of ten of the successful plays running in London were written by Americans. The cinema business was fairly good, but the theatrical outlook was not good, he said.

Peggy Shaw, a movie actress, also arrived on the liner.

BIG AUDIENCE AT STADIUM.

Well-Established Favorites Played by Philharmonic Orchestra.

A large audience attended the Philharmonic concert at the Lewisohn Stadium, City College, last evening. In the first part, Willem Van Hoogstraten, the conductor, gave well-established favorites, the overture from "William Tell," which won an encore; MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose," and Bizet's Suite from "L'Arlésienne," No. 1, that reaped a double encore. Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee," a scherzo from "The Tale of the Tsar Saltan," was played twice.

Respighi's "Sinfonia Drammatica" had its first hearing at the Stadium last evening. It could not compete with the wild measures of the "Ride of the Valkyries," which ended the evening.

Tonight Mr. Van Hoogstraten will conduct a Tchaikovsky program, which will include the "Pathetic" symphony.

Goldman to Give French Program.

The Goldman Band, under Edwin Franko Goldman, will play a French program at New York University campus this evening. Standard works by standard authors will be given, as follows:

Marche Lorraine .... Ganne
Overture—Phedre .... Massenet
The Swan .... Saint-Saens
Excerpts from Carmen .... Bizet
Overture—Mignon .... Thomas
Could My Songs Their Way Be Winging..Hahn
(Waino Kauppi, Cornetist.)
(a) Barcarolle—Tales of Hoffmann.... Offenbach
(b) Dance of the Golliwogs .... Debussy
Excerpts from Faust .... Gounod

Ruth St. Denis at Stadium.

Ruth St. Denis with Ted Shawn and the Denishawn Dancers are to give the program at the Stadium Concerts tomorrow night. In the event of rain an orchestral concert, led by Hans Lange, assistant conductor of the Stadium Concerts, will be given in the Great Hall of the College of the City of New York.

The alternate program for Tuesday includes Shubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, the "Blue Danube" waltzes, the introduction to Act 3 of "Lohengrin," Tchaikovsky's Andante Cantabile and the overture to "Tannhäuser."

Deny Attempt to Wreck Calles Train

MEXICO CITY, July 12 (AP).—The Federation of Railway Unions issued a statement today saying that President Calles had ordered the reinstatement of Foreman Gomez of the Palacios roundhouse, who was dismissed because of alleged lack of supervision in preparing the Presidential train last week. The federation says that the accident was not due to criminal intent, but was an ordinary occurrence, which could be laid to defective lubricants.

M. I. T. Gets Teacher From Turkey.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 12 (AP).—Dr. Charles Tertzaghi, head of the department of civil engineering in Robert College, Constantinople, has been appointed lecturer and research assistant in the department of civil engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, it was announced today. He will arrive in September.

MEUSEL AND JACKSON STAR

Make Homers With One and Two on Base—Scott and Bush in Closing Duel of 7 Innings.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

The Giants chased the end of the rainbow for sixteen innings yesterday and found only a pot of gold bricks. In the longest ball game of the year, played with rare foresight, on one of the warmest days of the year, the Cubs covered themselves with glory and perspiration and the Giants got a lot of healthful exercise.

Charley Grimm's double, with Jonathan Brooks on second, sent the Sunday crowd of 20,000 to the exits brooding bitterly. Jonathan pedaled home with the run that beat the McGrawmen, 9 to 8.

It was a classic of thrills and breathless situations. The Giants rallied gallantly in the eighth and ninth. Travis Jackson smacked a homer in the eighth which accounted for three runs, and the Giants bridged all further gaps in the next round by accumulating an even pair of tallies.

For a time it looked as if the thanks of a greatful city would have to be conferred on Mr. Gabby Hartnett, the reticent Chicago catcher. Hartnett, who can spill a few thousand words on any given subject, uncorked one of the most bizarre tosses seen outside a three-ring circus and allowed the Giants to tie the score.

Almost immediately a committee was appointed to buy the largest and best silver platter that could be found and decorate it with the keys of the city. It was felt that Mr. Hartnett was a real friend and should be given an engraved memorial containing appropriate sentiments.

It was in the ninth that Gabby erred on the side of generosity. Hack Wilson, at the beginning of the round, batted for Dean and received four straight bad ones. Rabbit Maranville used the hook on Tony Kaufmann and sent Guy Bush to the mound. To show how much of an improvement he was, Bush issued four consecutive wild ones to Young.

Giants Fill the Bases.

Frisch beat out a tap toward third, filling the bases. While Meusel was hitting into a double play Wilson scored and Young went to third, but with two out and the Giants still one down, it looked like the end of a wretchedly imperfect day.

At this seemingly hopeless moment enter Mr. Peter McLaughlin, the umpire. It had been a bad day for Peter. The Giants said he was terrible and the Cubs' opinion can't be printed. Hartnett had been complaining fiercely at regular intervals. When McLaughlin missed what looked like good strikes on Wilson and Young, Gabby frothed slightly at the mouth. He gradually worked himself up into a fine state of hysterics, and when Peter issued a sour decision with Kelly at the plate, Hartnett went completely into the clouds.

Grabbing hold of the ball and chattering in three languages at one time, including the Scandinavian, Gabby walked part way to the box, hauled back his arm and flung the pill over Bush's head. As the ball rolled toward second base, Young left third like a shot and slid over the plate with time to spare.

Manager Maranville was so infuriated that he walked in and gave Hartnett the finest dressing down ever seen on any ball field. For the next few minutes Gabby was just as popular with the Cubs as Peter McLaughlin was.

McGrawmen Take the Lead.

The Giants got a two-run lead when Meusel hit a homer against the upper right-field stand with Frisch on base in the first. The champs added another in the fifth, when Meusel tripled after Nehf had walked. A tough man, this Meusel.

However, in the sixth the Cubs tied it up. Heathcote forced Maranville, who had walked. Freigau singled, and then Arthur Nehf faced Jonathan Brooks, whose real name in the original Polish is John Brozek. In something like thirty-six games John has hit nine homers, and he was out for double figures, which he got when he slapped a line drive into the left-field belfry.

Jackson and Snyder chaperoned the Cubs toward two unearned runs in the so-called lucky seventh. Two were gone when Jackson heaved Adams's grounder low to first. Maranville spanked a two-bagger to left and Adams dashed madly all the way from first. At the plate Snyder was waiting with the ball, but he missed a lunge at the runner in some unexplainable manner. Inasmuch as Heathcote followed with a double and scored Maranville, the Cubs were now two notches ahead.

Walter Huntzinger relieved Nehf at the start of the eighth. He walked Brooks, otherwise Brozek; Grigsby singled, Grimm doubled and Kaufmann and Adam ripped off one-baggers. Dean, charging to the rescue, stopped the Cubs with a double play after three runs had been piled up.

Scott and Bush in Duel.

Preceding the Jackson homer in the eighth, Kelly and Terry singled. Old Jack Scott took up the pitching for the Giants in the tenth. After the Giants had tied the count in the ninth, Scott and Bush carried their duel along for seven more innings. The Bruin rookie had much the better of the argument, for the Cubs tapped Scott for a hit in every overtime round but the tenth.

Maranville doubled in the eleventh with one out, but didn't proceed further. Grimm did the same in the twelfth with two gone and the Chicagoans wasted two singles in the thirteenth.

The big blow-off in the sixteenth was started by Freigau, who singled to Kelly. Brooks, after forcing him, raced to second on Snyder's passed ball. Grigsby's fly made the second out, but Grimm's double broke up a nice party.

Hankus Pankus Gowdy, batting for Scott in the New York half, singled to right, but thought he was Nurmi and tried for second. After Hank was eliminated the Giants had nothing further to say.

REDS HONOR PAT MORAN.

Take Part in Memorial to Late Manager in His Home Town.

FITCHBURG, Mass., July 12.—The Cincinnati Reds, led to world championship in 1919 by the late Patrick J. Moran, came to their former manager's home town today and participated in an impressive memorial program. The Reds defeated Fitchburg, semi-pros, 9 to 4. Bohne of the Reds got two homers, one over the centre-field score board. A capacity crowd jammed into Crocker Field. The game was preceded by an address by David I. Walsh, former United States Senator, who praised Moran as a sportsman.

SHAWKEY IS SUSPENDED.

Yankee Hurler Set Down for Run-In With Umpire.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Bob Shawkey, veteran Yankee pitcher, has been indefinitely suspended by President Ban Johnson, following a run-in with Umpire Ormsby in St. Louis Friday, when he disputed Ormsby's decision on balls and strikes and was banished from the game.

Word of the suspension was received by the Yankees here today and indications are the suspension will run for ten days before Shawkey is reinstated.

ROBINS WIN IN 9TH ON TAYLOR'S HOMER

Sink Pirates' Ship, 4-3, When Catcher Hits for Circuit With Score Knotted.

WHEAT BREAKS TIE IN FIFTH

Gets Four-Bagger With Stock on Base—Losers Twice Even Count, Once on Cuyler's Homer.

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

Zach Taylor fired the shot that caused the Pirate craft to list at Ebbets Field yesterday. With the score tied and one out in the ninth, Taylor tossed a high explosive into left field. It hit the sun-baked turf and bounced into the vacant bleachers, where it burst with a bang and broke up the ball game. The final score was 4—3.

Some 15,000 sweltering fans were just beginning to settle back and enjoy the fireworks through the twilight when Taylor brought a sudden end to the battle. Ray Kremer, the Pittsburgh gunner, evidently had the range gauged perfectly, for after the fifth inning he hadn't allowed a hit past the infield. At the pace he was travelling the Robins appear as if they had their wings clipped.

Andy High was sent in to pinch-hit for Jitney Ford as the good ship Brooklyn started steaming into the ninth, but he went the way of his comrades. Taylor had given no evidence of carrying concealed weapons during the early innings when he came up to the plate, but he kept his bomb hidden until the crucial moment. When he finally hurled it the Pirate ship went down. It sailed at a low trajectory into left field, with the fleet Bigbee in hot pursuit. But he didn't reach it in time, and with one hop the ball nestled in the front row bleacher seats, their only occupant during the day.

The plank that the Pirates were made to walk teetered back and forth like a see-saw throughout the afternoon. Twice the Robins had their end well down when a Pittsburgher jumped on it and swung it back in the other direction. It was highly exasperating and perhaps Taylor had lost the spirit of the game and hit the last blow in anger.

Eddie Brown fired a ball into right field and Cotton Tierney poked one into left in the second inning. Both were doubles and added together they made four bases, which is just one run. That almost seemed enough at the time, but Cuyler came right back in the third inning and hit the ball over the fence in right centre field. If the pennants that hung listless in the heat meant anything, it was on its way to some place between Chicago and Philadelphia. Between those points there must be a worthwhile stop.

Cuyler Knots the Count.

It was Cuyler's tenth homer of the season, but it came with nobody on and only tied the score. That was temporary, however, for two passes and a single by Moore gave the Pirates another run in the third, and there they were sitting on the plank with the Robins waving their legs high in the air.

The ever reliable Zach Wheat was yet to be heard from, however, and he came into action in the fifth. With one out Dick Cox waited for a base on balls. Stock forced him at second and then Wheat was ripe. He found a left-handed driver among the Robins' pile of bats, and when Kremer teed up a ball on the outside corner of the plate Zach smacked it over the right-field fence. There was a slight hook on the drive, but otherwise it was perfect, and when Zack had completed the circuit of the bases, with Stock leaping ecstatically before him, the Robins again were ahead.

But then Cox started his little game of peek-a-boo with the sun, and the sun won. Gooch started off the sixth for the Pirates with a high fly to right field. Cox planted himself right under it and the scorers were marking down "f9" on their cards when Cox finally found it desirable to dodge. The ball fell safe, and before he had recovered his eyesight and the ball Gooch was resting on third.

Tiny Osborne weathered that disaster by some brilliant pitching and a flashy play by Stock on a hard-hit ball. But Cox continued his little game in the next inning, which was almost too much.

Cuyler gave him another chance as the inning opened, but again the Brooklyn fielder came off second best with the sun. This time he gained something of a moral victory by making a quicker recovery and he whipped the ball to third in what looked ample time to head off the runner. Umpire Klem saw it differently than the spectators and called Cuyler safe. That brought forth a shower of protest from the Robins, led by Tierney, who hurled his glove to the ground, stamped on it and did everything but chew the thumb off, and a shower of pop bottles from the grandstand. Neither made any impression.

Loftus Replaces Cox.

Barnhart evidently felt that Cox should have one more try, but the sun made it three straight, and Cuyler romped home with the tying run, while Barnhart pulled up at second. Manager Wheat then decided that Dick would have to continue his little contest tomorrow, preferably before the game starts, and Loftus was sent out to wrestle with the rays.

Osborne extricated himself again without further disaster, although the damage that already had been done was not his fault, and through the next two innings he faced only six batters.

The Robins were having their own troubles with Kremer, but Taylor's skyrocket finished the fight.

Osborne deserved to win, for he toiled through the tropical heat courageously. Only nine hits were the Pirates able to get off his delivery, and when it is considered that three of these were made by the sun it is evident how well he worked. Twice he left three Pirates roving on the bases and once there were two Buccaneers marooned. He issued six bases on balls, but, like the hits, he kept them well scattered. All in all it was a very fair performance for any day and a fine one for such as yesterday, when the general inclination was to bask in the breeze of an electric fan and do as little toiling as possible.

The fans didn't know whether to boo Cox or not when he was replaced by Loftus. They had their mouths all puckered up, but Fournier saved the situation by slapping Dick on the back and the jeers immediately turned to cheers.

Three Pints of Beer Daily Prime Beresford For Hoover Today, Who Trains on Water

LONDON, July 12 (AP).—Jack Beresford Jr. of England and Walter M. Hoover, the American challenger for the Philadelphia Gold Cup, will meet tomorrow at Putney in what is expected to be a stirring contest for that trophy. A few days ago Beresford defeated Hoover for the Diamond Sculls, and experts say that he has a distinct advantage over the American in that he is more familiar with the tidal waters of the Thames where the race for the Gold Cup will be rowed.

The men will face the starter at 6:15 P. M., and, win or lose, Beresford has declared his intention of returning the cup to the United States.

Beer as an aid to athletes in training is advocated by Beresford, while Hoover holds views to the contrary. English athletes have always trained on beer, while Americans have avoided not only malt liquor but pastries, tea, coffee and tobacco during the days at the training table.

Beresford drinks three or four pints of beer or ale daily, as do most of the English scullers in training, and he eats what he pleases, and smokes occasionally. Hoover believes in abstinence and adheres faithfully to the diet as prescribed for athletes when he went to school. The American takes a light breakfast and then eats but one more meal, chiefly of fruit, vegetables, eggs, cheese and whole wheat.

Both men are said to be in a splendid condition for tomorrow's race.

SENATORS' 2 IN 8TH CHECK BROWNS, 5-3

St. Louis Drives Coveleskie Off Mound in the Sixth, but Marberry Stops Attack.

ST. LOUIS, July 12 (AP).—Capturing the second game of the series, the Washington Senators interrupted the Browns' winning streak today, winning 5 to 3. Frank Davis was wild and donated three runs, with two walks, a wild pitch, a wild throw and a hit in the second inning. Coveleskie was knocked out of the box in the sixth when Jacobson singled and Hargrave doubled. Marberry then checked the Browns.

The Senators broke the deadlock by scoring two runs in the eighth, clinching the victory.

CROCKER TAKES TITLE IN CANADIAN SINGLES

Beats Scott of U. S. in Final—Third Set Goes 34 Games, Setting Tourney Mark.

VANCOUVER, July 12 (AP).—Willard Crocker of Montreal today had the double honor of holding the 1925 Canadian men's singles tennis title and winning the longest set ever played in the tournament by virtue of a victory in the final round yesterday over Wallace Scott of Tacoma, Wash., three sets to one.

After they had divided the opening two sets, Scott winning the first at 6—4 and losing the second at 9—7, the players established a new mark by playing thirty-four games in the third set before Crocker won, 18—16. Crocker then carried off the final set, 6—2. The champion, paired with Jack Wright of Montreal, also won the doubles title from Scott and Leon Turenne of Seattle, 6—2, 6—3, 0—6, 6—2.

Miss Marjorie Leeming of Victoria, B. C., won the women's championship by defeating Mrs. H. F. Wright of Ottawa, 7—5, 6—4. Partnered with Miss Tatlow of Vancouver, she also annexed the doubles title by a victory over Mrs. H. F. Wright of Ottawa and Mrs. Muir of Vancouver, 6—1, 6—1.

WEST INDIAN ELEVEN BEATS NORRIS'S TEAM

Sets New Metropolitan Record by Scoring 252 Runs for Loss of Only One Wicket.

Establishing a new batting record for metropolitan cricket by scoring 252 runs for the loss of only one wicket, the West Indian team of colored cricketers overwhelmed the white team that opposed them in the annual exhibition match at New York Oval yesterday. A. Simpson gave a brilliant exhibition of free hitting and easily passed the century mark, being not out with 160 to his credit when the innings was declared closed. He received valuable support from J. Simons, who was not out for 68.

The white team, captained by A. Norris, then went to the wickets and were easily disposed of for 76. E. G. Hull and T. Taylor alone contributed double figures. Holder of the West Indians captured 4 wickets for twenty-four runs.

Phillies Win Exhibition Game.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 12 (AP).—The Phillies defeated Eighth Ward, Lancaster, today, 5 to 3, in an exhibition game featured by six double plays.

Fort Hamilton Poloists Win.

The Fort Hamilton polo team yesterday defeated a Bay Ridge team 10 to 5 in a fast game played at the Fort Hamilton post in Brooklyn. The contest was for the benefit of the American Legion and was witnessed by a large crowd.

Pickups and Putouts

Peter McLaughlin umpired in a twilight league before he came to the National, and he was just beginning to get good when the game ended.

While running over first base in the fifteenth Jackson fell and wrenched himself. For a minute he couldn't move hand or foot, but revived quickly and might have kept on if McGraw hadn't insisted on Lindstrom replacing him.

The Giants got a bad break when Young's drive in the eleventh with a runner on first fell foul. McLaughlin thought it was fair, but old Cy Rigler walked out to left field and showed the very spot where the ball had kicked up the turf.

After snapping that toss over Bush's head in the ninth Gabby Hartnett wore the blissful look of a man sitting on a cactus plant.

Grimm stopped Terry's single with his eye in the twelfth. It was Grimm's eye and he could do just what he wanted with it.

The Cubs will be just as happy if they never see Pete McLaughlin again. The human semaphore gets on their nerves.

The teams couldn't have gone much longer without melting.

Maranville ordered Kaufman to take the air in the eighth, but the pitcher talked his boss out of it. Tony must be trying to reduce.

YANKS ARE BLANKED BY THE WHITE SOX

COMBS HERO IN THE FIELD

Gives Sam Jones Excellent Support, Contributing Eight Sensational Catches.

By HARRY CROSS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Teddy Lyons, an estimable young man from Texas, gave the Yanks a whitewash shower this afternoon, embarrassing Miller Huggins's carefree lads by a score of 3 to 0. Some 32,000 Middlewesterners sat in at the pitching picnic and approved of every ball that Teddy chucked. Five hits was the sum total of safe hits the Yank bats produced, and the hitting ambitions of Ruth, Meusel, Gehrig and the other sluggers were held in check.

Standing out among the few noteworthy things the New Yorkers did was the versatility of Earl Combs, the Tennessee school teacher, in centre field. Earl covered the middle terrace like a heavy dew and made catches off Kamm, Lyons and Falk which smacked of the uncanny. He had eight putouts, and not one was a cinch.

Sam Jones did the deceiving for the Yanks and made the Sox behave fairly well except in the fourth, when a single by Manager Collins and doubles by Hooper and Schalk eased a couple of runs over. The other unit came in the fifth on a perfect squeeze by Mostil and Collins.

Lyons a Bear on Defense.

The tossing contribution of Lyons was close to being a work of art. In no inning did two hits dovetail. He kept the hits wider apart than a couple of enemies. The only serious bruise to his service was promulgated by Combs, who helped himself to a couple of two-baggers.

Pee Wee Wanninger was the only Manhattan citizen who got a chance to see what third base looked like. In the third he single, went to second on Jones's sacrifice and arrived at the third corner on Dugan's grounder to third. Pier No. 3 was a dark secret to the other Yanks and they kept away as it if was quarantined.

The first big moment of the game came in the opening session, when Ruth arrived at the bat. The moment was not furnished by the Babe, however, but by Earl Sheely, who took his life in his hands to stop a bullet-drive from the Bambino's club. He stopped the ball, but how he retained all of his anatomy is a mystery. He not only corralled the ball but also got Ruth out in the bargain.

Earl Combs emblazoned the second inning with a highly sensational catch of Willie Kamm's Texas Leaguer. He ran a whole city block to nab the ball and nabbed it on the end of his index digit. It furnished the third out of the inning and was deeply disappointing to Bib Falk, who was on third impatient to score.

The Sox became alarmingly active in the fourth. Eddie Collins instigated the uprising by shooting a single to left and Sheely, trying to bunt, popped to Bengough. After Falk died at first Harry Hooper doubled to right, pushing Collins over. Kamm drew a ticket and Schalk punched a double along the left field foul line, scoring Hooper. Ted Lyons ended the bad news by hoisting a fly to Combs.

The Sox concocted a gorgeous squeeze play in the fifth. Mostil doubled to left and traveled to third on Davis's sacrifice. With Collins at the bat Mostil came tearing down the third base line as Jones was serving the ball, and Eddie lightly tapped it and Mostil romped over, Collins succumbing, Jones to Gehrig. A great play, the squeeze, when it works like that.

Yanks Artistic in Defeat.

Baseball clubs which can win ball games are no novelty in the national diversion, but few clubs can lose 'em as artistically as the Yanks.

It's worth going miles to see a boy like Combs perform. No matter what the rest of them are doing Earl is playing ball every minute from the first to the twenty-seventh putout.

Diminutive Benny Bengough has been doing a lot of fancy catching. Two foul tips collided in no gentle manner with the big toe on Benny's left pedal today and he hopped around on one foot like a flamingo.

Wallie Schang will join the Yanks in Cleveland and hopes to leave the soreness in his tossing hand home in Philadelphia.

ARMY POLO TEAM IS HERE.

U. S. Team Arrives Day Earlier Than Expected—Brings Ponies.

The United States Army polo team, which has been in England ten weeks, where it won the international army polo championship at Hurlingham, returned yesterday from London on the Atlantic transport liner Minnewaska looking bronzed and fit after their enjoyable vacation. Major L. A. Beard, the captain of the team, said they were all in the best of health. The twenty-five ponies they took away with them on the Minnetonka March 28 were down below on the 'tween decks and were equally fit.

Mayor Beard said: "We had a splendid time over there. The English are thorough sportsmen and treated us royally wherever we went. At the first match on June 20 at Hurlingham, which we won by 8 to 4, the King and Queen and the high officials of the army and navy were present. After we won the second match on June 24 the King sent a telegram congratulating the American Army polo team on its fine play."

The team is going to play a young army polo four at Rumsen, N. J., at the end of July and will then break up and the officers will return to their respective regiments. Major Beard was accompanied by his wife and family, and so were Major Arthur H. Wilson and Captain Charles H. Gerhardt. The other three members of the returning army were Captain Peter P. Rodes and Lieutenants John A. Smith and E. McGinley. The Minnewaska arrived last night ahead of time as she was not expected until this morning, and the friends of the polo players were not at the pier in consequence.

ENGLE AND KRAUSS TRIUMPH ON BIKES

Amateur Wheelmen Pedal Home First in Met. Senior Title Races on Ocean Parkway.

Fred Engle, Empire City Wheelmen, and Walter Krauss, New Crescent Wheelmen, were the winners yesterday morning in the two senior metropolitan championship cycling races, held on Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, under the auspices of the Amateur Bicycle League of America, for the purpose of selecting the State's representatives in the national amateur championships to be held in St. Louis in September. Engle showed the way in a one-third of a mile race in 53 1-5 seconds, outriding a field of seventy rivals.

Krauss pedaled to victory in the mile race for seniors, his time being 2:07 3-5. Under the point system employed by the officials in making their selection Engle and Krauss now are tied for the lead, each with five points. Two more races remain to be held. A ten-mile race and a five-mile unpaced race will be conducted next Sunday morning on Ocean Parkway.

In the junior competitions F. Turano, Century Road Club of America, made a clean sweep and clinched his selection as the junior to represent New York at St. Louis. Turano pedaled home in front of his fields in a one-quarter mile race, a one-third mile race and a two-mile event, finishing the morning's competition with the commanding total of 15 points. One event, a one-mile unpaced test, will be held next Sunday morning.

The summaries:

WESTERN GOLF OPENS TODAY

Evans and Johnston, Champions, Are Under Par in Practice.

DETROIT, July 12 (AP).—Most of the 150 entrants for the Western amateur golf championship tried out the Lockmoor course today and found it to their liking. Many were able to shoot close to the par 73, while a few broke the magic figure, including Jimmie Johnston of St. Paul, defending the title, and Chick Evans of Chicago, who has held the crown eight times.

These stars shot the 6,579-yard links in 72 each. Evans liked the first nine and scored it in 34, two under par, the first time he set foot on it. He eased up coming home and took 38. Johnston, who does not have to play in the qualifying rounds tomorrow and Tuesday, was slow in getting under way, going one above par 36 on the first half, but he clipped two strokes off perfect figures on the inner nine, getting 35.

GEORGETTI BEATEN IN RACE BY HORDER

Loses in Straight Heats to Australian Before 12,000 at N. Y. Velodrome.

Triumphs Over Goullet in Match—Moeskops Scores Victory Over Walthour.

Franco Georgetti suffered his first local cycling defeat of the current season at the New York Velodrome, and his second since his arrival here, three weeks ago, when he was forced to trail Harris Horder, speedy young Australian rider, in one of the mile match race features at the Kingsbridge saucer last night before a crowd of 12,000.

After a record of ten straight victories since coming to this country from Italy, the popular Georgetti sustained his first setback on an American outdoor track last Saturday night at Newark, and with his downfall last night before the speedier Horder experienced his second reverse.

To make the defeat more painful, Horder took his race with the Italian in straight heats. And in each heat it was the same story—that of the speedier rider gaining the jump going into the final lap and fighting off successive challenges by Georgetti over the entire last circuit in each heat. In the first heat Horder won by a length and a half. The Australian took the second heat and the match by five lengths.

Orlando Piani, Italian sprinter, thrilled the crowd with a victory in straight heats over Alf Goullet, veteran Newark rider, in their two-thirds of a mile match race. Piani experienced his keenest opposition in the opening heat when Goullet fought him right up to the tape before losing by inches. Piani score a hollow victory in the second heat.

In another match race feature, a mile test, Pete Moeskops, world's cycling champion for the past four years, out-rode Bobby Walthour Jr., and Ray Eaton, taking two of the three heats.

The amateur feature, a one-third-of-a-mile national championship race, witnessed the defeat of Paul Croley, the defending champion. The titleholder had to be content with forth position to Charley Winter, Century Road Club Association, who won the event and jumped into the lead in the race for the all-around championship, of which last night's event was an instalment.

Vincent Madonna, Italian pace star, rode to victory in the forty-mile national motor-paced championship race, the seventh of a series to decide the American motor-paced championship. The victory placed Madonna in front in the point standing with 18 tallies. George Chapman, defending champion, finished fifth, failed to score a point and was shunted from the lead to second position with 17 tallies.

Goodwin's R Class Yacht Wins New York A. C. Classic on Corrected Time.

DUCHESS FIRST IN HARBOR

But places Second in the Final Reckoning—Nueva Leads Power Boats in 100-Mile Run.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Special to The New York Times.

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., July 12.—Along about eight bells this morning Captain Walter Sullivan of the good sloop Duchess lolled back comfortably in the cockpit, lighted his pipe and smiled expansively at the rolling, treeless hills around West Harbor. Also the members of his Corinthian crew smoked and smiled contentedly. They figured they had a few smiles coming to them as they had finished first in the twentieth annual Block Island race of the New York Athletic Club which was started off Execution Light in Western Long Island Sound at 11 A. M., Saturday.

Captain Sullivan grew thoughtful for a moment. He was trying to figure out a nice location in his home for the handsome silver trophy which goes to the winner of the Block Island race. This contest is a run of 100 miles on time allowance and with all the other starters more or less hull down on the western horizon, Captain Sullivan didn't quite see how he could lose.

There was a sloop coming up to the bellbuoy outside West Harbor where the finish line had been established. Through their glasses those on the good sloop Duchess made her out to be the Mashnee, one of the old Buzzard's Bay thirties. Shipper Sullivan now felt even better. He had Mashnee beaten by a wide margin on time allowance. But there was a queer looking, Marconi-rigged craft sliding alone toward the buoy close astern of Mashnee. This was Mermurus, an R Class sloop owned by Charles A. Goodwin of the Middletown Yacht Club. This was the smallest yacht in the race, being 24 feet long on the waterline, and Duchess had to allow her exactly one hour over the 100-mile course.

The slippery R boat fanned along to the finish 33 seconds astern of Mashnee and squeezed inside her time allowance from Duchess by just 11 seconds, winning the race. When Captain Sullivan realized this tragic turn of affairs he was in the act of throwing his pipe overboard but was restrained by calmer members of the crew.

The three other yachts in the sailing division, the sloops Young Miss, owned by L. B. Schwarcz of the City Island Yacht Club; Mirage, a fast O boat owned by John F. Mahlstedt of the Larchmont Yacht Club and the schooner Eleemah, owned by Egbert Marham of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club, finished in the order named, but were not in the running on corrected time. The winner of the race, Mermurus, was formerly Hayseed VI, designed by Fred Hoyt and built by Nevins in 1923.

The six starters in the sailing division were fanned along by a light westerly breeze all yesterday afternoon as they sailed to the eastward through Long Island Sound. Through the night the breeze was still from the westward, but very light and puffy. The sea was of the millpond variety, the moon came up in the small hours and "a good time was had by all."

In the power-boat division of the race the winner was Nueva, a fast cruiser owned by T. W. Brigham of the North Fork Yacht Club, which finished the 100-mile run in 8 hours, 6 minutes, 52 seconds, corrected time. There were seven starters and the second boat on corrected time was Kemah II, owned by E. A. Jimenis of the New York Athletic Club, 8 hours, 22 minutes, 42 seconds.

W. W. McHugh's Bedouin was third, but almost 45 minutes behind Nueva on corrected time.

Murchison Beats Paddock and Both Fall In Ditch at Tape Before 15,000 in Paris

COLOMBES, France, July 12 (AP).—The American sprinters, Loren Murchison of Newark, N. J., and Charlie Paddock of Los Angeles, finished first and second respectively in the 200-yard dash, the chief event of today's big holiday meet, organized by the Club Stade Français. Murchison's time was 20 seconds flat, one second behind Paddock's world mark and one-fifth of a second behind the French mark, held by André Mourlon.

Murchison, seeing Paddock stumbling at the tape, tried to catch him and both fell into a ditch on a side of the track, but aside from a few bruises and scratches they were unhurt. A crowd of 15,000 was thrilled by the neck-and-neck finish of the Americans, Murchison having a bare two inches advantage over the Californian, who has been ill for the last month with influenza.

"We each won a 200-yard race on our trip around the world," said Paddock after the race, "so why should I worry?"

Murchison and Paddock will run again on July 14 at the Paris Suburban Stadium, after which Murchison will go to England for the 100 and 220 events of the English championships, July 18. Paddock will go to Stockholm and Helsingfors to fill engagements in Scandinavian meets.

The chief opponents of the French in today's meet were the members of the Lausanne Sporting Club. The Swiss runner, Martin, who was second in the 800-meter run of the 1924 Olympic Games, won the 800-meter race in 1:54 4-5, beating the French record. Martin intends to go to New York in September for games to be staged at the Yankee Stadium, Paddock and Murchison having urged him to compete. The Americans were jubilant over his success today.

Another fine performance was that of the French champion, Guillemot, who did the 3,000 meters in 8:45, or 2 4-5 seconds under his own record.

The stands of the Olympic stadium were filled with many Americans on holiday, and they rooted enthusiastically for the two fleet-footed bearers of their national colors.

QUIVER WINS RACE BY ONLY 6 SECONDS

Takes Larchmont Y. C. R Class Sloop Event From Fifi in Last 100 Yards.

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., July 12.—In a close finish after sailing a windward and leeward course of nine miles in Long Island Sound, off this harbor today, the R. Class sloop Quiver, owned and sailed by Commodore Philip R. Mallory of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, was the winner of the special R Class race, held under the auspices of the Larchmont Yacht Club, by six seconds over Harry L. Maxwell's Fifi. The race was sailed in light northwest airs, and the prize to the winner was donated by Commodore James B. Ford.

It was just the weather to suit the Quiver, which was very finely sailed in the streaky breeze by Commodore Mallory. Fifi, the new Maxwell sloop, raced in much improved form and 100 yards from the finish was the leading boat. A sudden shift in the breeze gave Quiver the advantage and she squeezed across the line with a few feet to spare over the Maxwell sloop.

125 WILL TEE OFF AT SHAWNEE TODAY

MACFARLANE IN THE FIELD

Diegel, Farrell, Ogg, McLean and French Are Other Stars Ready for 72-Hole Competition.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Pa., July 12.—One hundred and twenty-five golfers are assembled at Buckwood Inn tonight awaiting the start of the thirteenth Shawnee open championship tomorrow morning. Among them are some of the country's leading shot makers.

Willie Macfarlane of Oak Ridge, winner of the national open crown at Worcester last month, landed here last Wednesday and turned in some marvelous scores over the Shawnee Country Club course, which is located in the lee of the Majesty Buckwood Mountains and with the historic Delaware River forming one of the water hazards. Macfarlane left for Darien yesterday, but is due here tomorrow. That he is in something like the scoring mood that gained him the American open championship he has demonstrated by playing six rounds here, four under 4s. Considering that the par for the course is 74, it is taken as an indication that he will be hard to stop.

However, a strong field of players will pit their golf against Macfarlane during the next two days. First of all there is Leo Diegel of Glen Oaks, who captured the tournament honors after a play-off with Macfarlane last year. Diegel is one of the most brilliant golfers in the game today and, should he be in one of his scoring moods, he will give them all a merry chase.

Johnny Farrell, fresh from his triumphs in the Philadelphia open, is also on hand, as are such worthy competitors as Willie Ogg of Worcester, who held the title in 1921, the year before Farrell won it; George McLean, the Grassy Sprain professional who defeated Harry Hampton in the play-off for the title in 1923; Gil Nicholls, the 1913 winner; Emmett French of Youngstown, Ohio; Charles Hoffner of Philmont, Clarence Hackney, Atlantic City ace; Willie Kline of Garden City Country, Alex Smith of Westchester Biltmore, George Low, the Baltusrol veteran; Henry Ciuci, Joe Turnesa, Tommy Armour and John Golden to mention only a few of the more prominent.

In the field also is J. J. McDermott, who fifteen years or so ago was rated as a more promising golfer even than Hagen. In his heyday McDermott won the national open championship twice running, but along about 1914 he developed an illness which has kept him out of golf until this year, when he made his reappearance by playing in the Philadelphia open.

There are two well-known amateurs in in the field to dispute the professionals. One is Arthur (Ducky) Yates of Rochester. The other is Rodney Coltart, 18-year-old son of Frank Coltart, the Philadelphia Country Club professional. Young Coltart has shown great promise in golf this year, having been a semi-finalist in the interscholastic championship, the winner of the Overbrook invitation event in his home district and runner-up in the Philadelphia amateur championship.

The Shawnee event will be decided in seventy-two holes, thirty-six tomorrow and thirty-six on Tuesday. The course over which the championship will be played is a thoroughgoing test, measuring nearly 6,400 yards.

MACFARLANE WINS WITH FARRELL'S AID

They Beat Sarazen and Ryan by 6 and 4 in Formal Opening of New Wee Burn Links.

Special to The New York Times.

DARIEN, Conn., July 12.—Before leaving for Shawnee, Willie Macfarlane scored another victory in conjunction with Johnny Farrell here today when they defeated Gene Sarazen and Bill Ryan, 6 up and 4 to go, over the new Wee Burn golf club links in a 36-hole exhibition match. A gallery of more than 500 persons was present for the formal opening of the course and tramped the 6,388-yard route morning and afternoon to see Farrell make both rounds under par and Sarazen one round under the 72. The victors also won the best ball competition.

It was another case of rank ingratitude on the part of the invited guests, for Bill Ryan, playing on the home course before the home folks, could only get an 82 and an 85, while Farrell was occupying most of the limelight with a 70 and a 71. Sarazen stole some of the glory by equaling Farrell's figures in the afternoon after a 74 in the morning round. Macfarlane had a 79 for the first eighteen and a 73 for the last eighteen holes. By his excellent playing Farrell won two $50 prizes, the first for the best eighteen holes and the second for the best thirty-six.

Feathers at Oakland Tonight.

Featherweights will furnish the action tonight in the two twelve-round bouts at the Oakland A. A., Jersey City. The principals will be: Joey Silvers vs. Billy White and Ruby Stein vs. Harry Mulcahy.

BANTAM TITLE BOUT SET BACK FOR WEEK

Rosenberg Gains Postponement in Match With Shea Because of Injured Hands.

A postponement of a week was announced yesterday in the world's bantamweight championship bout between Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, the titleholder, and Eddie Shea, Chicago's Italian challenger, scheduled for Wednesday night at the New York Velodrome for the benefit of the Hunts Point Jewish Centre Building Fund. Instead of being held Wednesday night the contest has been scheduled for July 22.

The postponement was granted with the consent of Commissioner William Muldoon of the State Athletic Commission, at the request of Rosenberg. The champion returned to this city following his recent bout with Pete Sarmiento in Cleveland, complaining of being ill and with slightly injured hands. His illness and the condition of his hands retarded Rosenberg's training for such an important battle, it was stated in the champion's request for a postponement to permit him properly to prepare himself for the Shea struggle.

Out of the postponement, however, is likely to come a rule of the State Athletic Commission which will prevent champions or participants in important bouts of the future from competing in a match for a specified period in advance of the bout for which they are signed here. Adoption of such a rule, perhaps with a ten-day advance clause, is likely to be considered at the next meeting of the full commission.

The original program will remain unchanged except as to date, Matchmaker Lew Raymond announced. K. O. Phil Kaplan and Bobby Barrett are to clash in the eight-round semi-final. Mike Dundee, Rock Island junior lightweight, will clash with Johnny Drew of Worcester in another eight-round bout, and a third eight-round encounter will be between Abe Goldstein, former world's bantamweight champion, and Bushey Graham, Utica boxer.

MISS WILLS WORKS HARD.

Wins Practice Match in Singles From Landers at Forest Hills.

Helen Wills, women's national tennis champion, practicing in preparation for her Eastern tournament début in Boston this week, played two matches at Forest Hills yesterday on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club. In a singles match she defeated Charles Landers of the West Side Club, 7—5, 6—3. Pairing in doubles with Gerald Stratford of the University of California national intercollegiate doubles champion, she played two sets of doubles with Dr. George King and Fred Baggs. King and Baggs won the first set at 7—5 and Miss Wills and Stratford took the second at 6—2.

Miss Wills showed the ability to hit the ball as hard as her opponents. Her drives sped low across the net the full length of the court, and when the opportunity was presented she made her way forward behind them and volleyed with dispatch and at sharp angles. Landers kept her working hard in the first set and Miss Wills had to call upon her best tennis to win at 7—5. The West Side man fell off in effectiveness before Miss Wills's powerful stroking in the second and got only three games.

TWO TITLE BOUTS ON CARD TONIGHT

Berlenbach to Meet Marullo in Newark—Goodrich to Face Loayza at Queensboro.

Two title matches are on the schedule for tonight at metropolitan boxing clubs and promise plenty of action. Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, will defend his title against Tony (Young) Marullo, New Orleans contender, in a twelve-round no-decision battle at Dreamland Park, Newark, under the auspices of the National Sportsmen's Club, and at the Queensboro Stadium, Long Island City, Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo lightweight, and Stanislaus Loayza, Chilean contender, will battle through a contest scheduled for fifteen rounds as the final of the State Athletic Commission's lightweight championship elimination tournament.

Berlenbach will enter the ring favorite over Marullo, although the Crescent City lad is expected to give the champion a hard fight. The title will change hands only in the event of Berlenbach's being knocked out or being disqualified on a foul. A knockout provides also for Berlenbach's sustaining an injury which would prevent his completing the full twelve rounds.

A ten-round semi-final will bring together Jack Rapaport, South Orange welterweight, and Eddie Shevlin, New England veteran

Goodrich, because of his experience, is favored by some to beat Loayza in the final bout of the tournament to produce a successor to Benny Leonard. However, there will be many keen observers of boxing who will make the journey to the Queensboro Stadium prepared to witness an upset to the "dope." The Buffalo lad gained the final of the tournament through a disputed decision over Eddie (Kid) Wagner, a victory on a foul over Sammy Mandell, and a decision on points over Benny Valger. Loayza has battered his way past the opposition he encountered in the foreign section of the tournament, his latest victim being Cirilin Olano, Cuban entry, whom Loayza knocked out. The Chilean lightweight boasts the admirable qualities of being able to absorb a rival's punch and at the same time deliver an effective blow with either hand, and because of this ability he is expected by many to come through to victory.

The semi-final of ten rounds will bring together Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, former world's bantamweight champion, and Irish Johnny Curtin, Jersey City veteran. A six-round bout between Jack Hausner and Al Gordon, Philadelphian, and a fourround encounter between Rudolph Ott and Johnny Pincus, also are scheduled.

COURTOIS CAPTURES TITLE.

Scholpp, Also of N. Y. A. C., Fourth in A. A. U. Track Pentathlon.

PASADENA, Cal., July 12 (AP).—The Men's National A. A. U. Pentathlon Championship, held in conjunction with the women's track meet here yesterday, wan won by Paul Courtois of the New York A. C. He scored eleven points. Otto Anderson of the Hollywood A. C. was awarded second place, although he finished with the same number of points as Ted Lewis of the Los Angeles A. C. Each had twelve points. Fourth place went to Gus Scholpp of the New York A. C.

TWO 16TH'S OFFICERS WIN.

Knuebel and Kron Obtain Places on All-Infantry Rifle Team.

Two officers of the Sixteenth Infantry from Governors Island, Captain John H. Knuebel and Lieutenant Philip H. Kron, won places on the all-infantry rifle team at the annual national tryouts just completed at Camp Logan, Ill., it was announced yesterday at Governors Island. The all-infantry rifle team will take part in the national rifle matches on the range at Camp Perry, Ohio, in September.

Behr Yields to Bowman in Quaker Ridge Tennis Semi-Final

Gains Final in Quaker Ridge Tennis After Wearying Three-Set Battle.

TITLE MATCH POSTPONED

Worn Condition of N. Y. A. C. Star Causes Putting Off of Contest With Kynaston Until Saturday.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 12.—Returning from Syracuse this morning, Herbert L. Bowman, New Jersey State champion, reached the final round of the Quaker Ridge tennis championship on the courts of the New Rochelle Tennis Club. It was not, however, until he had gone through an exhausting struggle that lasted two hours and a half that he was able to dispose of Allen Behr at 7-5, 4-6, 6-1.

So worn was the New York A. C. man as a result of his train ride and the long battle with Behr, which was fought in a broiling sun, that he did not feel equal to meeting Percy L. Kynaston in the title round and the match was put off until next Saturday afternoon. Kynaston advanced yesterday when he defeated Francis T. Hunter. Bowman holds two legs on the Quaker Ridge Cup, while Kynaston has won the title once.

Behr has been playing so strong a game all season that it was expected that he would give Bowman a stiff fight today and he came up to expectations. Bowman has been traveling a strenuous pace, playing in tournaments every week and jumping from one city to another. After reaching the semi-final round of the Quaker Ridge championship he left for Syracuse, where he sought to win the New York State championship for the third time and take the Empire State Cup outright. Jerry Lang thwarted his hopes, defeating him in the final.

The strain of so much traveling told on Bowman and it was evident this morning that he was not any too keen. His strokes were lacking in their customary snap and he was unable to put the ball away. Against so thorough a court coverer and so steady a player as Behr he had the toughest sort of a task ahead of him and it required every bit of his reserve energy to resist Behr and prevent him from winning in two sets.

Behr kept on even terms with him throughout the first and second sets. Relentlessly he kept on top of the ball, putting it in the most unexpected places and making gets that were discouraging for Bowman. The New York A. C. man found that he often had to win the point several times before he was able to get it, so persistently did Behr get back shots that would have scored against almost any other player.

Bowman's service helped him and his ability to force his opening also counted in his favor. Behr was kept on the run continually, but he was equal to every demand in spite of the heat. The score went to 5-all in the first set and then Bowman broke through and took two games in succession for the set.

Behr gained an early lead in the second set, breaking through to lead at 4-3. Bowman was unable to even the score and games went on service until Behr had got 6 to the other's 4. Behr was warmly applauded by the gallery for his recoveries and the way in which he fought off Bowman's efforts to score winning shots. He did not have the pace or the length on his strokes that did the New York A. C. man, but his control was better, and by keeping the ball in play in one long rally after another he won the points on Bowman's errors.

The third set found Behr beginning to wilt. Bowman was tired also but not so much as was his opponent, who had been doing most of the running. While he got only one game in the last set, Behr made a better fight than the figures indicate, and a number of the games went to deuce. He did not have the finality that did Bowman, whose finishing shots brought him through in long rallies. The New York A. C. star played some of his best tennis in this final chapter and Behr was helpless to hold off his sharply angled drives, which found the openings in his court in persistent fashion.

Holland Beats India; Reaches European Zone Davis Cup Final

NOORDWIJK, Holland, July 12 (AP).—Holland has defeated India in the Davis Cup tennis competition and thus won the right to play in the finals of the European zone. In the third day's play today Diemer Kool, Holland, beat Dr. A. A. Fyzee, India, 7-5, 6-1, 6-4. Holland won the doubles yesterday, Kool paired with C. Van Lennep, defeating Fyzee and S. M. Hadi, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3. In singles competition the previous day Holland and India each won a match. C. Van Lennep, Holland, won a singles match today from Jugat Mohan Lal of the Indian team, 6-2, 6-4, 7-5. This gave Holland four victories while the Indian team has only one.

LANG LETS 3 RIVALS TAKE ONLY 3 GAMES

Long Island Tennis Champion Beats Frink, 6-0, 6-0; Karpf, 6-2, 6-0; Wolff, 6-0, 6-1.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODMERE, L. I., July 12.—Jerry Lang of Columbia University made his first appearance in defense of his Long Island team's title on the courts of the Woodmere Club today. Lang played through three rounds and gained his fourth bracket well ahead of the field. He wasn't inclined to be generous and allowed his three opponents a total of three games.

In the first round the Columbian defeated Charles R. Frink in love sets. Melvin Karpf was the most successful of the three, taking two games from Lang in the first set. Jerry decided he was getting reckless and took six games in a row for the second set at love. James Wolff was the next victim. Lang took the first set from him without dropping a game and allowed his opponent only one game in the second set. In all he won four love sets.

The first seeded player was eliminated in the person of Anton F. Von Bernuth of the Montclair A. C. Jerome Minster, who lays claim to no titles but who has proved to be a difficult trial horse for numerous metropolitan stars, put out the New Jersey player in the first round at 6-4, 6-3.

Cedric Major, whose victory over Dr. George King in the Eastern New York State championship and splendid showing against Manuel Alonzo in the metropolitan clay court championship brought him into the limelight, gave a stirring exhibition today and eliminated W. Dickson Cunningham at 6-1, 6-0. Cunningham rates among the best players in the Seventh Regiment Tennis Club, but he was completely at the mercy of Major, who advanced another round by defeating Robert Raymond, 6-2, 6-2.

Review--THE WEEK IN SPORTS--Outlook

TRACK AND FIELD

Britain's college athletic stars outdid themselves at Cambridge last Saturday, notwithstanding they were defeated, on the basis of American methods for deciding athletic meets, by a stronger Harvard-Yale team. From the English standpoint, where only victories are counted in a point score, the meet was a deadlock, since the visiting collegians tied their American rivals with six victories in a program of twelve events. Not even the wonderful racing of Douglas G. A. Lowe nor a surprisingly strong race by Arthur Porritt, one day of the ship which carried him to this country, could bring victory to the Oxford-Cambridge Squad. America had the balance and strength, and where the power is the spoils generally go. So it is that Harvard-Yale supporters and American followers of athletics generally are celebrating another international triumph for the homebreds and the fact that the Crimson and Blue wearers now are in front with four victories in the series of seven meets conducted since this athletic fixture began in 1899.

The British athletics have still another chance to score a triumph on American soil. They will engage the strong Princeton-Cornell team at Atlantic City Saturday afternoon, and they may do better than they did at Cambridge. Irrespective, however, of where victory perches, the overshadowing object of these meets will have been accomplished. Saturday's meet was the most keenly contested of any that have been thus far held between Oxford-Cambridge and Harvard-Yale. Not in the history of the fixture had the officials been forced to resort to the second place winners to determine the triumphant team. Even with this recourse America won only by a scant three points. But if it was one of the keenest and most closely contested, it was also one of the best conducted. Elaborate plans had been made in advance and these were carried through with clock-like precision to the satisfaction of 15,000 persons who forgot partisanship in the excitement of heated competition. Through the entire meet a pronounced spirit of clean sport and clean sporsmanship predominated, and this is what counts. It helps the good feeling between the nations.

Several upsets were furnished as well as many brilliant performances in a meet which held five record competitions. The chief upset involved the defeat of Bayes Norton by Miller in the 100-yard dash, but one almost as startling came with the victory of Billy Stevenson, American student at Oxford, in the quarter-mile run. It was a treat to the eye to see Stevenson, American champion four years ago, thundering down the stretch to victory when few in the crowd expected that he possessed the speed and racing stamina necessary. Lowe ran brilliantly in his record half-mile and gave his all later in winning the mile for the visitors. These three performances stood out in a meet which will long be remembered.

FISHING

To the job-jogger in his office or shop in New York City the thought of going fishing these fine warm July days probably seems like an idle fancy. Going fishing suggests far-off places—Florida or the Catalina Islands. "Fine warm July days," he snorts. "Abominable, sluggish, blankety-blank days." If he is a country-bred citizen, and everybody in New York is supposed to come from somewhere else, he probably has a fleeting mental picture of some brook or pool that he knew in his boyhood, sighs regretfully and spends his time off complaining about life in the big city.

As a matter of fact, there are all kinds of capital fishing in the vicinity of New York. This fishing can be reached overnight and a good deal of it is available on the Saturday half-holiday. Northern New Jersey and Southern New York streams provide plenty of trout and bass for the fresh water angler and the shore waters of Jersey and Long Island offer as extensive a variety of salt water angling as there is anywhere along the coast at this season. There are big boats that go out to sea and there are smaller boats that ply the bays and there is surf fishing. Even the big game fishing for tuna and swordfish has been available in the past week.

It is a little hazardous to say so confidently that there is plenty of fishing around New York in the face of the strenuous efforts being made to conserve the fish and game resources in this State. There appears to be a contradiction in the two. The reconciliation lies in the fact that such good fishing as there is can be attributed only to the work done by conservation societies and the State Conservation Commission.

Fishing and hunting these days depend on the vital issue of conservation. Without the enthusiasts who have carried the burden of what has been done, there would be no inland fishing at all. The Southern New York Fish and Game Association, for example, has saved bass fishing in the Croton watershed not only by ardently preserving the streams but by stocking them. The Anglers' Conservation Association is trying to stave off the inroads of commercial fishermen on the salt water. The New York State Fish, Game and Forest League, with 138 affiliated members all over the State, is another active organization.

All of these bodies need the support of every sportsman. They are doing a lot, but they need help. New York City is full of sportsmen who are not giving aid. They are associating fishing with far-off places or with their boyhood and forget that it is a close and contemporary thing. Good fishing has been conserved and planted for them right around the big city. If they will revive their contact with fishing, at least some of them will put their shoulders to the task of conservation, for that is the thing today which brings "The Compleat Angler" up-to-date.

TENNIS

The greatest invasion of American tennis courts begins this week. At Boston Gerald Patterson and John B. Hawkes of the Australian Davis Cup team are competing for the famous Longwood Bowl, and tomorrow, at the Nassau Country Club, Glen Cove, the Oxford-Cambridge tennis team, which has come over for its annual match with Harvard and Yale, will play the University of California. From now until September steamers will bring players to this country from all parts of the world.

The stage has been reached where the United States has become the mecca for every great tennis player. There was a time when American tennis fans envied England and France their privilege to see the world's best players, but the star of Wimbledon and St. Cloud has waned and another has risen across the Atlantic at Forest Hills. England mourns her failure to attract the great fields that made the Wimbledon championship in the past the classic event of tennis. By general consent our national championship has come to be recognized as the tournament conferring the status of world's champion upon the winner.

Here, at Forest Hills in September, will assemble the outstanding figures of tennis—Tilden, Richards and Johnston of the United States; Anderson and Patterson of Australia; Lacoste and Borotra of France; Washer of Belgium; Manuel and Jos Alonso and Flaquer of Spain; Harada, Shimizu and Fukuda of Japan; Wright and Crocker of Canada; Norton, formerly of South Africa, and perhaps the English collegians if they are able to stay long enough. There are only a few players of international reputation missing from this list and none that would have any chance of coming through so formidable a field.

Not only are the leading men players finding their way here but the women are also. From England will arrive shortly Miss Elizabeth Ryan, who learned her tennis in California and took a set from Mlle. Lenglen last year; Mrs. Dorothea Lambert Chambers, seven times winner of the Wimbledon tournament; Miss Joan Fry, England's nineteen-year-old girl sensation, finalist at Wimbledon this year; Miss Evelyn Colyer, whose grace and agility have made her an international figure in spite of her youth, and Miss Kathleen McKane, the deposed English champion. Later in the season Australia is sending her women's team here for two international matches.

To meet this invasion the United States will be able to call upon Miss Helen Wills, Mrs. Molla Mallory, Miss Mary K. Browne, Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, as strong an array as this country ever has been able to put into the field. Mrs. Mallory showed at Providence last week that she has not gone back since last year and is still a dangerous contender for the title. Miss Browne, Miss Goss and Mrs. Jessup are all worthy foes and team mates. Miss Wills will meet her first test of the Eastern season this week, but, from the form she showed in practice last week at Forest Hills, there is not much question that she will maintain her supremacy as the best player in this country. It is no easy task, however, that faces her in defending her title. The women's tennis season this year should stand out as one of the most notable of all.

SWIMMING

The English Channel, arbiter of the destinies of empires before and since the destruction of the Spanish Armada, will shortly be the means of deciding what some enthusiasts may think a far more momentous question. On its shores sit two swimmers, one a man, the other a woman, representing two great nations. Setsu Nishimura of Japan and Gertrude Ederle of the United States will soon dive into the vicious waters in an attempt to swim across.

Is the question which the rolling waters will decide, one of whether the man or the woman is the better swimmer? Not at all. Is it the problem as to whether Japanese or Americans are the more enduring? By no means. The issue soon to be settled, while a palpitating world of eaters waits the outcome, is that between vegetarian and meat consumer, for Nishimura will rely for strength upon vegetables and eggs while Miss Ederle, according to an interview with her reported in The Butcher's Advocate and Market Journal, will "Eat plenty of meat with a preference for thick juicy beefsteak."

After her swim from Sandy Hook to the Battery Miss Ederle was interviewed by The Advocate and said: "Yes, I eat meat. Without it I could never have hoped to have the strength and endurance that they say I have. I have no faith in food fads or fad foods." (Alas for poor Setsu who will subsist only upon hard boiled eggs handed over the side of an open boat!) "But meat I must have three times a day. I love it and eat lots of it, but what I must really have is a thick juicy beefsteak, medium done with (what heresy is this?) plenty of green stuff and vegetables."

Since the days when Nebuchadnezzar first ate grass and a clumsy neophyte upset an altar fire in China, thus making roast pork out of what was merely a sacrificial porker, efforts have been made to poll the supporters of each side of the controversy. Restaurant owners took a census of the favorite dish of New Yorkers recently and found it was corned beef and cabbage. But this was craven straddling, with a mouth in either camp.

A veil of subtle Oriental darkness cloaks the backers of Nishimura in the present contest, though doubtless every chicken fancier and truck farmer in both hemispheres is giving him moral support. Bravely and with banners flying, however, come the butchers of America, rallying behind Miss Ederle, juicy beefsteak and warming pork and mutton, with the following battlecry. "The Advocate feels with every butcher and every American that she will do what she attempts and joins them in their hopes and best wishes for her success."

TURF

There was a general shuffling of the racing cards last week. With the close at Latonia there was a brief recess in the Blue Grass State until the sport got under way at Raceland. However, the new Coney Island track had its grand opening and the Kentucky stables had only a short shift across the border to the Cincinnati course. Hawthorne's fifty-eight-day meeting is in full swing, while the local scene has changed from Long Island to Westchester County. This month the high-water mark in American racing will be reached, with twelve courses devoted to thoroughbred sport in operation in the United States and Canada. It will be illuminating to note the effect which this competition will have at Empire City and Saratoga. Raceland and the smaller mid-Western tracks, with reduced purses and no stakes of importance, will take care of a great number of inferior animals. Raceland is enjoying a lengthy entry list for its seven-race cards. Coney Island had comparatively small entry lists for its first week, which may be accounted for by the general shifting of stables East and West. Empire City for its first four days was severely handicapped by weather and track conditions.

From one point of view the meeting of the Queens County Jockey Club, which closed last Tuesday, was eminently successful. The patronage was excellent, the attendance figures exceeding those of a year ago. The racing was not so satisfactory, with outcroppings of rough riding and unpleasant form reversals. The meeting was not supported as it should have been by the horsemen. It is unfortunate, but nevertheless true, that the smaller tracks are at the mercy of a certain number of trainers, who can make or break a meeting. It would be a fine thing for racing if owners of important stables held firmer hands on the reins. There were twenty days of racing at Aqueduct, with 122 races contested, there having been two days on which seven races were billed. The total number of starters was 1,016, an average of a fraction over eight to a race. This is small in view of the fact that in numerous cases races for cheap horses with top-heavy entries were split to fill a card when races for better horses failed to fill. The original entry for these 122 races totaled 1,377. There were 361 scratches, which means that each day on an average between one-quarter and one-third of the total number of entries were withdrawn. On only three days was the track other than fast, and on those occasions it was good, so that changed track conditions were no excuse. The figures offer convincing testimony as to the manner in which the racing public is flouted by the whims and manipulations of the trainers.

BASEBALL

The old theory that New Yorkers go to a ball game merely for the pleasure of rooting for the visiting firemen received a terrific jolt last week. On the only two days when the Pirates were permitted by the weather man to gambol with the Giants thousands of blasé citizens yelled themselves purple, red and green in the face, indulged in a light attack of hysteria, tore their Summer headgear into shreds and left the park with their collars looking like wads of saturated paper.

Now, this is not the picture that has been painted of New York baseball crowds. As every schoolboy knows, they are bored and languid. They peer with a glazed eye at the most valorous deeds of the darling Giants. They express not the least regret when the other team tears into their favorites for seven large runs. Along about the sixth inning they succumb entirely to ennui and depart yawning.

This picture was something akin to the truth one or two years ago, but it is a gross caricature at present. The same persons go now as then. In fact, there is no change at all in the character of the crowd. The great change has come in the sort of ball team that Mr. John J. McGraw is turning loose on the field nowadays.

A few years ago the Giants were machinelike and so were the crowds. The Giants rolled on every day like a steam roller in third speed. You could always sit back safe in the knowledge that at about 4:43 P. M. by the town clock the McGrawmen would uncork a rally and stroll off to the clubhouse with the game. There was just as much of a thrill of uncertainty about watching them as there was about getting up in the morning to see if the sun would rise.

Now the Pirates have come up in great strides and the Giants aren't the team they were—maybe strong enough to win the pennant again but not so strong that they can breeze along. Being in second place has made a difference. When the Giants get behind in the third inning now, Mr. Fan has a sinking feeling that they may stay there. Hence his exultant emotions when they go ahead.

It's perfectly clear. Connie Mack once had a perfect machine and scrapped it because the fans stayed home and played pinochle. Now both Philadelphia and New York are going crazy over the pennant races. The baseball crowds want to be frightened as well as amused.

YACHTING

The R Class sloops had a good light weather race off Larchmont yesterday and Commodore Mallory's Quiver again showed that she is a wonder in this sort of going. With faint breezes blowing and the Sound a millpond surface the Mallory sloop, which was designed by Starling Burgess and built last year for a member of the Eastern Yacht Club, ghosts along in almost uncanny fashion when there is little or no breeze. In the light weather which has prevailed recently the Quiver has done well, and it is not likely that she will have a superior in this interesting class when the breeze is of the feathery variety.

Racing yachtsmen generally were pleased by the fact that Harry L. Maxwell's Fifi did so well in yesterday's special event for the Ford prize. The finish was a close thing, Quiver fanning across the finish line only six seconds ahead of Fifi. These two fought it out over the nine-mile windward and leeward course, although at the half-way mark Doress, the new sloop designed by John G. Alden for Commodore Robert Law Jr. of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, was the leading boat. Doress, which made her first start on Saturday, is sailed by Burton Hart and seems to be very speedy off the wind. She should be a strong factor in the class.

It would naturally be a keen disappointment to so enthusiastic a racing helmsman as Harry Maxwell to have so finely turned out a craft as Fifi show poor racing qualities. Fifi seems to be somewhat temperamental, but will undoubtedly show her true form after a few more races. There are other sloops of the new class which have not shown startling ability in the racing game so far, but the season is young, and they should not be condemned hastily. Manhasset II, the new Hoyt-designed sloop built by Wood for the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club syndicate, has yet to win a race. Secret, the light green Gardner boat, built for Harold Tobey of the Larchmont Yacht Club, does not seem to be a world-beater up to the present time.

The only one of the class to show fine racing qualities consistently, blow high, blow low, is Donald Cowl's Ardette, which already has half a dozen victories to her credit. Mr. Cowl and E. P. Alker, the racing skipper of the Ardette, are sitting just now on top of the world—at least the yacht racing world—and stand a fine chance of capturing the championship in the class. Ardette was designed by C. D. Mower and was the first of the new R boats to come out this Spring.

GOLF

Over on the other side of the water there is being waged a war against the practice of conceding putts in match play, a practice which, it is claimed by many, is not only taking much from the game of golf but also giving rise to much bad feeling.

In almost every tournament it is no uncommon sight to see one player concede his opponent a three or four foot putt and the question invariably arises: "What will you give him for the hole?" If his ball was within four feet of the hole after he had played three strokes, does he get a 4 or a 5? There is no doubt but that a four-foot putt is more often missed than it is holed, yet the putt was conceded and there is nothing to do except credit him with a 4.

It is this practice that may be held accountable for many of the low scores made in match play and it is a practice that is contrary to the definition of the game of golf.

The code of the Royal and Ancient recommend that players should not concede putts. It would be a good thing for the game and for all concerned if there was adopted a rule which made it necessary to hole out all putts, no matter if there was only an inch between the ball and the hole.

It would tend to improve putting and at the same time it would relieve players from the embarassment of being obliged to concede a putt that might easily be missed. There was one well-known golfer who used to have the reputation of conceding putts of three or four feet and then, all of a sudden, force an opponent to hole out one of six inches or less. There was a psychological reason back of it. Oftentimes it served to unnerve an inexperienced opponent. Many condemned the act as unsportsmanlike, yet it was simply using the privileges which the rules allow to best advantage. Having been conceded several putts of length and then being forced to drop one of less than a foot is disconcerting. Not only that, but it gives rise to bad feeling.

It would be a great help if the United States Golf Association were to make it a rule that in all tournaments held under its jurisdiction the game of golf should be played as the rules specify it should be played. This could be done by ruling that every putt, no matter how short, should be holed out, unless, of course, one player is so far out of the running as to render the holing useless.

WANDERERS DEFEAT HIBERNIANS BY 3-2

NELSON WINS THE GAME

Puts Over Winning Goal Near Close of Game After Tying the Score.

Despite the presence of Patsy Gallacher of the famous Glasgow Celtics, the all-star soccer team, playing under the colors of the Brooklyn Hibernians, suffered defeat by the score of 3 goals to 2 in a exhibition match played before 3,000 soccer fans at Hawthorne Field, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon. At half time the Hibernians were leading 2 goals to 1, thanks to brilliant work on the part of Crilley of the Indiana Flooring Company eleven, who shot two goals.

The Wanderers, who changed the line-up slightly for the second half, played a strong uphill game to victory, Nelson scoring the two points necessary to win, while the defense successfully held the Hibernians in check.

A penalty against Robertson of the Brooklyn Wanderers, who stopped McGuire's shot with his arm, yielded the first goal after twenty minutes, Crilley taking the shot. The Wanderers evened up within five minutes as Gray took the ball down on the right and centred it to Nelson. The latter passed to Curtis, who scored. Five minutes later Gallacher headed to McKenna, who passed to Crilley, and the Hibernians once more had the lead.

After twenty minutes of play in the second period Nelson, who had gone to centre in place of McDade, equalized for the Wanderers off a fine pass by Yule on the left. Seven minutes later a foul was given against Wilson of the Hibernians and Yule's free kick was neatly turned in by Nelson for the winning goal. The Hibernians forced two corners after that, both on the left, but these were cleared.

The line-up:

WANDERERS (3).		HIBERNIANS (2).
Smith	G.	Shaw
Marshall (M'Millan)	R.B.	Wilson
Robertson	L.B.	Izzat
Morris	R.H.	W. Gallagher
Shortt	C.H.	Kelly
Hosie	L.H.	Cox
Nelson (Hogg)	O.R.	J. Gallagher
Gray	I.R.	Gallacher
McDade (Nelson)	C.	Crilley
Curtis (McDade)	I.L.	McGuire
Yule	O.L.	McKenna

Goals—Curtis, Nelson (2), Brooklyn Wanderers; Crilley (2), Hibernians. Referee—T. Cunningham. Linesmen—R. O'Halloran and T. Johnson. Time—Halves of 45 minutes.

RICHARDS WINS IN DOUBLES.

He and Throckmorton Beat Vandeventer Brothers at Rye.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., July 12.—Vincent Richards and Harold Throckmorton won the invitation doubles tennis tournament at the Rye Country Club today, defeating two teams. They gained a place in the final by putting out Ralph Baggs and Arthur Cragin at 6-3, 6-4 and in the concluding round defeated Philip and Ludlow Vandeventer of Plainfield, N. J., after four hard fought sets. The score was 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, 11-9. Baggs and Cragin had gained a place in the semi-final through the default of Dr. George King and Seiichior Kashio, while the Vandeventers reached the final on Saturday.

LOTT RETAINS TITLE.

Beats Saglowski in Tri-State Tennis Championship at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, July 12 (AP).—George Lott, Chicago, retained his tri-State singles tennis championship today by defeating J. Soglowski, Indianapolis, in straight sets, 6-3, 7-5, 6-1. Miss Marion Leighton, Chicago, won the ladies singles championship and added another victory to her string of tennis triumphs by defeating Miss Clara Zinke, Chicago, 6-3, 6-2.

Lott, paired with Tom McGlyn of Philadelphia, won the men's doubles from Holden and Emerson, Cincinnati pair, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Hollander Takes Tennis Final.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSLYN, L. I., July 12.—Clifford Hollander won the tennis championship of the North Shore Country Club today. In the final round of the tournament he defeated George Bijour, 9-7, 6-1, 6-1.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Security and Commodity Prices Generally Higher on the Impetus of New Fall Business.

The developments of last week, as they unfolded from day to day, were so important in themselves and in the bearing they may have on the future at home and abroad that the week may well be called one of the most important of the year, despite the fact that it is midsummer, when financial news usually is at its lowest ebb. The developments included a grain report which forecasts a bumper crop of corn and a moderately heavy crop of wheat; a considerable stirring on the part of buyers with Fall commitments in hand; an increased upward trend in prices for many commodities; further gains in our remarkable stock market (interrupted by a decline at the end of the week), and finally, and probably more important than any of these, details of the announcement of the plan of Finance Minister Caillaux to completely rehabilitate the French financial system, in connection with the plans of France to repay her war obligations to this country.

Such a budget of news is unusual for a single week in midsummer, when naturally the disposition is to postpone definite developments in favor of holidays. Generally speaking, the markets of last week were good. On four successive days in the early part of the week new high figures were established for the averages on the Stock Exchange. Favored corporate shares in such important lines as the automobile industry, rubber, public utilities and building lines now are at approximately their highest point of the year, and in a great number of instances the maximum quotations of the week were the highest at which these shares have ever sold.

It is important and worthy of comment that neither the stock nor commodity markets appear excited or to any great degree under the influence of intensive speculation. The excesses of the early part of the year seem to have been replaced by entirely calm and dispassionate markets, in which the buyers meet the sellers on a wholly sane basis. Such markets are quite unusual for midsummer. It is a fact, however, that the lethargy which was evident a fortnight ago has entirely vanished and has been replaced by a degree of confidence on the part of buyers which very likely will be evident in corporate reports six months or so hence.

In one direction, at least, an extraordinarily large crop is anticipated by the Department of Agriculture for the Fall; that is in corn, in which a crop of more than 3,000,000,000 bushels is anticipated. This will represent (if the forecast proves correct) the third largest corn crop in history and an out-turn of approximately 650,000,000 bushels larger than last year. Of course, too much dependence is not to be placed upon a midsummer crop report. Nevertheless, there is very great promise in the agricultural outlook for the Fall. Prices, too, give indication that the return to the farmer will be greater this year than last.

The business of the country, as measured by most dependable barometers, is progressing at a moderately faster pace than a month ago, but still it reflects a great many irregularities, cross-currents and complexities. Car loadings and bank clearings maintain the same high pace which has been evident for the past three months. Bank clearings, for instance, as calculated for the entire month of June, were 19.6 per cent. above June a year ago, and for the full half-year approximately 15 per cent. greater than for the first half of last year. Car loadings are running consistently, week by week, ahead of the same period last year and just under the "million-car" figure. This certainly must be classed as optimistic testimony. On the other hand, such an important indicator as the unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation continues to show a decided decline.

In many important industrial directions "brighter" conditions are evident than a week ago. Most of these developments in themselves may be construed as a plain forecast of increased activity in the Autumn. There is by no means any "scramble for goods" going on, but at the same time buyers seem disposed to protect themselves against possible price advances in the Fall rather than to take their chance with the market. One line in particular shows remarkable stability both in forward business planned and in operations under way. That is the building line. As viewed from the standpoint of building permits alone, the gain in June over the same time last year amounted to 27.4 per cent.

The British Board of Trade's report on England's foreign trade in June, which was published yesterday, probably reflected an abnormal import total and one not likely to soon be repeated. There was obviously a rush of goods into England to escape the McKenna duties, which went into effect July 1. Silks, automobiles and other articles, which now pay heavily under the new tariff, were shipped into England in vast quantities just before it went into effect. Imports reached a total of £110,980,000, an increase of £6,710,000 over May, and of £22,480,000 over June of 1924. With two exceptions, those of January and March, when wheat and cotton were being imported in great quantities, the total has not been surpassed this year. The British exports increased by £9,200,000 from May, but were within £2,510,000 for the same month of last year.

Maintaining 1920 Standards of Income

under 1925 market conditions, often necessitates a degree of speculative risk not sanctioned under conservative investment principles.

The wise investor will confine his purchases to investments where security of principal and prompt payment of interest seem assured.

BRITISH BANK RATIO HIGHEST SINCE 1916

Money Market Has Paid Upward of £30,000,000 to Bank of England This Month.

DUTCH GOLD IS RECEIVED

London Attributes Cut in French Rate to Preparations for Rubber Loans.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 12.—The week's return of the Bank of England shows some notable features and changes. The reserve placed at £33,405,986, is the highest since March 20. The ratio of reserve to liabilities, calculated at 25.7, is the highest since August, 1916. The week's increase of £2,682,863 in reserve was due to a decline of £1,423,735 in note circulation and an increase of £1,259,128 in gold holdings.

Since the beginning of the month the money market has paid upward of £30,000,000 to the Bank of England. Consequently Lombard Street was pleasantly surprised at this news. The balances are above normal. London has not, however, yet got accustomed to taking into account the effect of the gold influx on credit extension. Another £2,000,000 in gold was received last week by the Bank of England from Holland, making £4,000,000 altogether brought from that country since the restoration of the gold standard. The Bank of the Netherlands is employing the proceeds of this gold in buying bills of exchange.

Buys South African Gold.

The Bank of England also bought £405,000 South African gold, sent recently to repay loans maturing in London. It is understood that a portion of this gold is still lying in London awaiting purchase. The Bank of England's buying price is 77s 9d per standard ounce, equivalent to 84.89s per fine ounce. The present open market price is 84s 10½d, or 1d below the price established when the free gold market was restored at the end of April. The fall was caused mainly by slackening demand from India, which is now satisfying its reduced requirements by taking sovereigns from the Bank of England direct. The reduction of the open market price has diverted certain continental purchases made by the Bank of England to the open market. The Bank as yet is unprepared to pay ¾d per ounce difference between its minimum buying price and that quoted in the open market.

French Exchange Fluctuates.

French exchange continues to fluctuate widely. Our market is not misled into thinking that the reduction in the French Bank rate to 6 per cent. from the previous rate of 7 per cent. implies improvement in the situation, which, in fact, is worse than when the rate was advanced last December. The present reduction was obviously designed to create a favorable atmosphere for new loans in the rubber industry and the rubber shares are booming.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £297,336,995, as compared with £293,501,031 one week ago, and £292,278,234 two weeks ago. Circulation is within a bare £45,000 of the highest point of the year to date, which was £297,381,400 on Jan. 3. The lowest was £281,165,517, on Feb. 28. The highest was £368,331,000, on Dec. 22, 1920.

HOLLAND REVISING FOREIGN CREDITS

Movements of Gold to and From London Reflect New Dutch Policy.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—Holland's credits abroad, mainly in London, heretofore represented by balances, are being revised and actual gold is being substituted. This explains the recent movements of the metal to and from the Netherlands. On June 26 England shipped 10,000 sovereigns to the Netherlands, on July 1 another 10,000 was received, and again on July 7 6,000. These shipments were not of much importance. On July 7 the Netherlands shipped 1,000,000 sovereigns to England, making a total for the last two months of 37,000,000 guilders.

The last shipment was accompanied by an increase in holdings of foreign exchange by 5,000,000 guilders, increasing the balances abroad by 7,000,000 guilders. The total Dutch gold in the last twelve months now aggregates 88,000,000 guilders, reducing the note circulation by 90,000,000 guilders, thus influencing the Dutch price situation.

The index number of wholesale prices as of April, 1925, was 166, against 185 in October, 1924. All the Dutch gold movements are of small consequence in the resumption of gold payments, as sterling exchange since April 29 has been within a narrow margin of the "gold point."

LONDON, July 12.—Gold imports by the Bank of England for the week aggregated £2,411,000, of which £2,000,000 was from Holland and £411,000 from unstated sources. Exports aggregated £189,000, Chile taking £13,000, Holland £6,000, India £163,000, with £7,000 to unstated destinations.

ITALY TO ATTRACT FOREIGN CAPITAL

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to The New York Times.

ROME, July 12.—The ministerial crisis has been purely technical and non-political in character. The fiscal policy proposed by Finance Minister de Stefani won universal applause, but the discordant and incoherent measures of the stock exchanges on the discount rate and on interest rates on Treasury bonds so much disturbed the markets that the Fascisti themselves demanded his replacement with a practical man like Volpi. De Stefani proved chiefly a theorist in this field.

Nevertheless, he was able to announce a budget as of June 30 with a 209,000,000 lire surplus, this being the first surplus since 1911. It will now be possible to revise the policy hitherto followed toward foreign capital which has not been especially tempted in its search for suitable investments in Italy owing to the heavy fiscal burden. It is confidently expected that Volpi will strengthen the budget by the adoption of carefully planned measures for the revaluation of the lira and that gradual improvement in the financial situation is anticipated.

The country welcomed the selection of Volpi as Finance Minister very enthusiastically. He has the reputation of being a first-rate business man, a clever diplomat and a zealous official. Even the Opposition press express approval of the new Minister's plans for national economy, while the stock exchanges show by their behavior that they had accepted the appointment with cordial confidence. The new Finance Minister has already expressed complete confidence and optimism in the Italian financial and economic situation.

In considering recent movements of the exchanges it is necessary to distinguish between specific fluctuations of the lira and fluctuations common to all currencies. The phenomenom of an internal panic in the lira can be considered overcome while international causes having a depressing influence on both the franc and the lira still exists. Among these which directly or indirectly influence it at the moment are the German exchange prices, the threatened failure of the guarantee pact, and complications in Morocco. It is difficult under such conditions for the franc and the lira to regain the positions of a few months ago while the markets are characterized by ample and not very reassuring fluctuations.

If the first actions of Finance Minister Volpi re-establish complete confidence at home and abroad, it is possible that the lira may break away from the franc, achieving a specific improvement. The Italian financial situation is now better than the French, while good Italian harvests have helped in the revaluation of the currency.

ADVANCE CONTINUES IN AUSTRIAN SHARES

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 12.—The Vienna Boerse began the week with a sudden and general rise of quotations due to the fact that the decline in the franc and the lira had been checked. The lack of business on the German Boerse has awakenend interest there in Austrian shares whose dividends amount to 8 to 10 per cent. in a perfectly stable currency.

There has been other developments of the week which have created a favorable impression. One of these was the rearrangement of the affairs of Herr Bosel, a prominent after-the-war financier, about whose financial situation unfavorable rumors have been current. He induced a Swiss financial group to participate in his industrial undertakings with new capital of $5,000,000, so that the danger of a sudden fall in the respective shares in which he was interested by a forced sale has been avoided. These factors altogether produced a sudden general rise by 10 to 25 per cent., in some cases even 40 per cent.

The greatest sensation was caused in financial circles here by the public opposition to this rise by the President of the Austrian National Bank. He not only publicly opposed it, but actually succeeded in stopping it for the moment by not reducing the bank rate from 11 to 10 per cent., as had already been announced. It is supposed that this interference by the National Bank was caused by City circles in London, particularly officials of the Bank of England opposing any strong speculative movement here on the grounds that it would be dangerous to the general economic situation in Austria.

Despite this interference, the upward movement in securities is obviously not yet over. This is explained by the notorious undervaluation of many Austrian shares as compared with their high dividend yield.

LONDON, July 12.—Anxiety over the coal and railway labor situation is overshadowing the markets generally. Summer slackness in business also is appearing, but the week closed with a more confident tone in most markets on the efforts of the Government to seek a way out of the impasse. The passing of the half-yearly monetary stringency also has been a factor, while the markets generally are healthier after the shake-out of weak speculative positions.

BERLIN, July 12.—The official crop index for July 1 shows a slight deterioration due to the June drought, but the condition is above the average and much above the condition of July, 1924. In general a very satisfactory crop is expected. According to this index, which classes "2" as good and "3" as medium, the condition of Winter wheat is 2.4, Spring wheat 3.1, Winter rye 2.5 and Spring rye 2.9. Other leading crops all register as better than medium.

Central and European crop reports are mostly satisfactory. The official estimate for Hungarian is 1,500,000 metric tons, against 1,403,000 tons in 1924; rye, 668,000 tons, against 561,000 in 1924. Poland's crops are calculated by President Grabski as 25 per cent. in value above 1924, and predicts a big increase in the exportation of food. Latvia reports Winter wheat and rye the best for years, but the condition of Spring sowing is medium. Crop prospects in Lithuania are good.

The Russian wheat and rye reports are favorable. The index for the whole Soviet Federation on the basis of "3" medium and "5" good, is Winter wheat 3.3, against 2.6 in 1924; Spring wheat 3.5 against 2.7, Winter rye 3.2 against 2.8, Spring rye 3.7 against 2.8. The Government nevertheless is obliged to organize a league for four central Provinces where the crop has been a complete failure. The Commissariat of Agriculture says that the total grain crop is 3,300,000,000 poods (approximately 36.07 pounds to the pood). Total export will be 250,000,000 poods. Finance Commissariat Sokolnikoff declares that the crop will exceed 1924 by about 800,000,000 poods, the crop for 1924 being 2,564,000,000 poods.

Hungarian Crops Large.

VIENNA, July 12.—Central European harvesting reports are unanimously very favorable. The rains of the last few weeks brought well-nigh record harvests in most districts. Especially in Hungary do the results seem excellent, both as to quantity and quality. The estimated yield of wheat there is 7 per cent. higher than last year's, and rye 15 per cent. higher. Twelve to fourteen hundredweights of wheat and rye are forecast per acre.

The harvesting prospects of Yugoslavia are very good. Czechoslovakia expects a good middling harvest. The Neue Freie Presse says: "If we are not mistaken, Europe is likely to provide itself this year with its own supplies." Wheat prices in Budapest continue to decline. As during the last few months, very few orders have been given for overseas stocks of corn; the supplies in middle Europe are about exhausted so that the export countries of Hungary and Yugoslavia must first cover their own wants before resuming exports.

Italian Outlook Is Good.

ROME, July 12.—European crop forecasts are considerably above the previous ten-year average. Italian crops generally are good. The Bulgarian area under cultivation is 10 per cent. greater than last year. The acreage planted in Algeria, Morocco and Tunis is 23 per cent. greater than the five-year average. The plentiful crop now being harvested in Rumania has induced the Government to lift the ban on cereal exports.

In Italy Premier Mussolini has taken the initiative in agitating increased cereal production. This move has been welcomed with the greatest enthusiasm and an intense propaganda to induce peasants to adopt methods of intensive cultivation are soon to be started.

European Crops Favorable.

AMSTERDAM, July 12.—The European crop situation remains favorable. The Hungarian corn crop this year is especially good and the out-turn of rye will show a large increase.

Morgan Exchange Credit Reported to Be Still Intact.

PARIS, July 12.—The Bourse has been firm during the last week. Speculators who had lost courage for a time regained confidence. There has been a very sharp rally in French exchange, and this strength developed without apparent intervention or artificial support. Exchange rates tend to become stabilized naturally around present levels. It is certain, however, that the Government would intervene and check any exaggerated movement in either direction.

The Morgan credit recently established for the benefit of France in the United States is still intact, and any trifling intervention recently has been effected with other reserves of exchange held by the Treasury.

New York Banking Offer to Caillaux Reported, Subject to Washington Approval.

BANK RATE CUT EXPLAINED

Reduction to 6 Per Cent. Is Expected to Aid Government Finance Plans.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to The New York Times.

PARIS, July 12. — Finance Minister Caillaux is said to have received an offer from bankers in the United States for a loan of $100,000,000 or more, but it is not learned whether the operation has been concluded. Moreover, it would need the approval of Washington. If the proposed loan is accepted it would be used with the $100,000,000 Morgan loan for stabilizing the franc more thoroughly and preparing the way for currency reforms included in the plans of the new Finance Minister.

The stabilization of the franc can, naturally, only be considered when the interallied debt question is settled. The composition of the delegation to America to discuss this settlement is as yet unknown.

Reduction in Bank Rate.

The reduction of the bank rate from 7 per cent. to 6 per cent. on last Thursday had been long expected. The previous raising of the rate to 7 per cent. was criticized because the effect was bound not so much to lessen resources of the public and the market as merely to turn away money demands from the Bank of France and direct them to the Treasury. This is what happened: Instead of borrowing at the Bank of France, banks and others requiring cash presented matured defense bonds. Certainly the higher bank rate may be set down as one cause of the Treasury's embarrassment. The reduction to 6 per cent. will improve matters.

It would also be illogical to maintain a higher bank rate just when the State is issuing a 4 per cent. loan. Lowering of the rate will have no influence on exchange, the rate for loans meaning little to speculators. At any rate, it was characteristic that the announcement of a lowered rate coincided with an improvement in the franc.

Although the subscription list for the new loan as proposed by Finance Minister Caillaux does not open until July 20, it can be said that it has already been well received by the public. Theoretically the subscription is reserved to conversion of defense bonds, but as the subscription lists to these bonds remain and the latter can be converted regardless of the date of maturity, any one can subscribe to the purchase of defense bonds as though with cash.

No Money Scarcity Expected.

These subscriptions are not expected to produce a scarcity of money on the market. The bank return shows bills discounted decreased by 75,000,000 francs, whereas loans against securities increased by 44,000,000. The Treasury paid 300,000,000 francs to the bank, reducing the outstanding advances to 27,400,000,000. Circulation increased 694,000,000 and private deposits decreased 604,000,000.

In order to judge properly the week's return, that of the previous week should be consulted. It is shown in this consultation that the increased circulation was much less than it should have been considering the heavy borrowing of the State from the bank. On the contrary, circulation fell less than might have been expected and a balance was again struck through "sundry accounts." These apparent anomalies certainly arise from the lateness with which branch bank returns appear in the balance sheet.

One thing is certain, the Bank of France circulation is still below the former limit and the 6,000,000,000 francs by which the maximum was raised are still intact.

GERMAN BUSINESS IMPROVES

Steel Trade Furnishes the Principal Dull Spot.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 12.—Business in Germany is improving with the exception of the steel trade, which is increasingly dull. The report of the Federal Credit Corporation declares that industrial production has now reached the pre-war level allowing for losses in territory, and predicts an era of intensive competition owing to Germany's inability to absorb production.

The report estimates Germany's invisible exports for the first five months of 1925 at 150,000,000 marks and her receipts from foreign loans and foreign investments, the return of capital and sales of foreign exchange at 2,600,000,000 marks. These receipts, totaling 2,750,000,000 marks, enabled her to plan for an import surplus of 2,119,000,000 marks and for 431,000,000 in free reparations deliveries, the total to give 200,000,000 in credit for foreign buyers.

PREFERS AN ENGLISH LOAN.

Head of Australian Manufacturers Objects to Borrowing in America.

By Wireless to The New York Times.

ADELAIDE, Australia, July 12.—It would be far better to borrow money from England, said Sir Samuel Perry, President of the Chamber of Manufacturers, commenting today on the proposed Australian loan in America. If the money were obtained from America, he said, it would give that country a not altogether desirable hold upon Australia, and it was only natural that the United States would expect a quid pro quo. This would be bound to affect manufacturers to some extent.

There was no doubt, he added, that it would suit the United States to lend money to Australia.

LONDON PREVENTING GOLD WITHDRAWALS

Opposition to Transfer Given as Reason for Australian Loan in New York.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 12.—Financial circles are distinctly disturbed by the prospect of a diversion of colonial borrowing from London to New York. It is unknown how far this policy will be carried, but considerable difference of opinion exists concerning its worth. Regarding the pending Australian loan in New York, the circumstances are somewhat unusual. Australia requires this money for maturing internal loans. The proceeds, therefore, must be remitted to Australia, and as Australian exchange is still very much against London the operation would involve large gold withdrawals from this centre. The only alternative was to make the issue in New York.

Had there been no risk of gold withdrawals in connection with the loan it would undoubtedly have come to London. In thus forcing our colonies to borrow outside of England the somewhat doubtful admission is made that the gold standard requires much greater support than was generally believed to be the case. The embargo on foreign loans has existed by tacit consent for some time, but colonial loans are now being placed in the same category.

The gold standard can only be regarded as effective when all borrowers can come to London without restriction. Within recent months there have been plain indications that our investment resources have been insufficient to meet the full colonial requirements. Consequently all colonial loans offered in London in recent weeks have been undersubscribed by the public while the market has suffered serious congestion. The bulk of this undigested stock now, however, has been absorbed, and the stronger condition of the gilt-edge market accounts for the opposition to the policy of rejecting an Australian loan.

The special character of the loan, however, is partly responsible for the decision. While colonial borrowings will be deferred as long as possible, it must not be thought that London is definitely closed to such loans.

STRIKE ON BERLIN BOERSE INEFFECTIVE

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 12.—The one-day strike on the Boerse was clearly a protest, although an ineffective one, against the proposed terms of valuation of German securities. Boerse officials proclaimed the stoppage of trade and declined to quote all Federal, State and municipal bonds, declaring that the Reichstag's action is a deathblow to public confidence in general, in view of the fact that for months past both Government parties had repeatedly proclaimed the 50 marks per 1,000 rate as definitely settled.

Private dealings in the Government loans have brought about considerably lower prices. The war loan is quoted at 32 pfennigs per 100 marks nominal. The last official quotations on July 7 for the war loan was 38.5, the 4s were quoted at 48.75, the 3½s at 47.25 and the 3s at 68.75, all in pfennigs.

Practically all stocks have declined sharply on the Boerse during the last week and the tone is weak.

STUDY VALORIZATION PLAN.

Austrians Seek to Keep the Question Out of Politics.

VIENNA, July 12.—The German plan for valorization of mortgages and pre-war stocks is being followed here with great attention, as the Austrian Government is awaiting the result before taking similar measures. It is thought in financial circles here that these policies of revaluation must not be allowed to become political contentions. This is apparently what has occurred in Germany.

Hitherto Austria has confined itself to a purely charitable support of the owners of small devaluated pre-war fortunes, and all plans provide for only a gradual valorization of pre-war debts up to 50,000 schillings. The sums required are not to be found in the normal budget, but are derived by special taxes payable by those who doubtless profited directly from devaluation during the period of inflation.

BERLIN, July 12.—The Reichsbank report at the end of June shows some rather remarkable changes during the preceding half-year. The gold reserve rose from 759,609,000 marks to 1,061,717,000 marks. Discounts fell 2,064,094,000 to 1,691,467,000. The note circulation rose 1,941,440,000 to 2,474,416,000, and deposits declined from 821,865,000 marks to 564,446,000. The circulation of all currencies rose from 4,274,000,000 to 4,790,000,000.

Bankruptcies for the first half of the year numbered 4,274, against 1,184 in the same half of 1924.

NEW BONDS DATE FROM 1920

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 12.—Bankers and Boerse experts declare unanimously that the Reichstag Valorization Committee's reduction by 50 per cent. of the meagre compensation granted to a majority of German bondholders will seriously damage the nation's credit abroad. It is believed that this has been emphasized because this proposed action is being applauded by its initiators on the ground that foreigners will be the chief sufferers. It seems quite evident that the latest amendments to the "Private Debt-Public Debt" valorization bills are directed against foreign interests.

Already the Public Debts bill had completed the third reading, and was considered definitive on the following terms: Paper mark bondholders are classed as "old" if they acquired their bonds before July, 1920, and "new" if they acquired them later. Of the 70,000,000,000 marks, the nominal amount of bonds outstanding, 50,000,000,000 have been acquired by present holders since July, 1920, and, therefore, are classed as "new" holders. Old bondholders will receive for every thousand paper marks nominal of their present holdings 50 reichsmarks nominal of the new loan redemption bonds. These bonds will be amortized gradually before 1956, the holders getting thereon 150 per cent. premium in all, or 125 reichsmarks for every 1,000, and also getting simple interest at 4½ per cent. between now and the date of such amortization.

In addition, destitute "old bondholders" will get personal pensions. New bondholders, as has been defined, would get 50 reichsmarks nominal of the new loan redemption bonds for every 1,000 marks of present paper mark holdings, but these would bear no interest, carry no premium, and would not be amortizable until the reparations had been paid.

Nevertheless, the Socialists have continued to agitate against even such treatment of "foreign speculators" as too generous. They have launched a movement reducing the new holders' compensation to 25 marks per 1,000, and the Reichstag committee unexpectedly sanctioned this amendment.

RUBBER SHARES RISE IN DUTCH MARKET

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, July 12. — The Dutch stock market has been featured by a sharp rise in the rubber shares owing to favorable news from this industry. Prices for crude rubber continue to show an upward tendency. Most companies which had sold a large part of their production in previous years at relatively low prices are becoming rid of these contracts and will be open to better terms in the near future. Moreover, dividends are being announced from time to time.

The feeling on the Amsterdam stock exchange is optimistic, and higher quotations are anticipated. Our market was very sensitive to the diminution in London rubber stocks from 29,482 tons as of Jan. 1 to 5,424 tons as of June 22. Moreover, rubber consumption for 1925 has been estimated at 540,000 tons, against a production of 135,500 tons in the first four months. A very important factor in the Amsterdam market is that the public has been buying freely, something which has not happened for many years. The Serbadjudi rubber shares, for instance, advanced 50 per cent. in a fortnight to 290.

Much attention is paid here to the meeting of the American Rubber Association and to the possible American competition which may develop for Netherlands Indian rubber. In Amsterdam it is believed, however, that control can be retained, as new rubber estates take five to six years to reach a state of production. If Americans really want to own and cultivate rubber estates it is suggested here that they might attempt careful acquisition of existing companies, which are considered by many still much below their present and future value.

Rubber Boom in London.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 12.—Rubber shares are booming and it is impossible to forecast the limit to which rubber prices may be forced. The short interest for this month is pronounced. It appears to be spread over August and September and may possibly extend to the end of the year.

American consumption for June was estimated at 35,000 tons, with imports of but 31,000. If this rate of consumption is maintained during the usually busy months of October and December, American consumption in 1925 should approach 420,000 tons. Under present conditions this rubber can not be supplied. Consumption must, therefore, be reduced by whatever means American manufacturers consider best.

COTTON RECOVERS ALL LOSS IN PRICES

CONCERN IS FELT FOR CROP

Western Section of Belt Lacks Rain, While Moisture in East Is Excessive.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 12.—Cotton regained during the past week all the loss in price suffered as a result of the Government acreage and condition report of the week previous; in fact, the October position on Wednesday advanced to 23.61, or 7 points above the highest price which prevailed before the publication of the report on July 2. Considering the large acreage as well as the other highly bearish features of the report, the recovery of prices the past week has been rather remarkable.

Just before the Government report was issued the October position was trading at 23.52 after having been as high as 23.54 a little earlier that morning. During the comparatively brief period of the session remaining after the Government estimates became known the price for October dropped to 22.30, or 124 points down from the high of the same day. Such a decline, while considerable, was really a smaller response to the bearishness of the bureau report than might have been reasonably expected. Far more remarkable, however, has been the recovery which has since taken place.

Short Interest Built Up.

The fact that the long interest had been pretty thoroughly liquidated in advance of the Government report and that a sizable short interest had been built up through selling on the bearish character of the acreage planted as well as the indicated yield undoubtedly helped the recovery in values by creating a rather strong technical position. Thus when shorts sought to take profits they found contracts scarce and prices went up easily enough.

The recovery was undoubtedly helped by more or less speculative buying by Wall Street operators and others. The long prevailing drought in the Western part of the belt and the great lack of subsoil moisture have naturally created the belief that the crop could not have failed to suffer from such adverse conditions. The excessive heat of the past week in all parts of the West and even in portions of the central belt has not failed to be injurious to growing cotton particularly with an absence of subsoil moisture.

A majority of stations in Texas have reported temperatures over 100 degrees practically every day the past week and at some places the maximum temperature reached 112. An even greater percentage of the stations in Oklahoma reported 100 degrees and over, running as high in instances as 110. Arkansas has reported 100 degrees and over from a moderate percentage of the weather stations in that State.

Weather Conditions.

While rains fell during the week at over half the stations in Texas the moisture has been insufficient and in cases of light showers probably more damage than good was wrought. While many reports emanating from Texas still claim that in spite of the drought the State as a whole will produce a large if not a record crop this year, traders have found it difficult to place much credence in face of the fact that the greater portions of the central and southern districts of the State have received no relief, as yet, from even moderate rains.

While the absence of rain in the West has been the main cause of anxiety the past week, many are also beginning to fear that the Eastern half of the belt is receiving more rain than could be wished. This fact has aroused fear that the boll weevils will get a good start and prove exceedingly damaging later on while the crop is nearing maturity. A combination of weevils in the East and drought in the West would be a situation that would not make for lower prices.

FISHER'S INDEX RISES.

Commodity Price Average Is 159.3% of Pre-War Level.

NEW HAVEN, July 12.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices last week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 159.3, which compares with 158.9 a week ago, 159.5 two weeks ago, 158 three weeks ago and 156.9 four weeks ago. The highest weekly average reached this year to date was 164.4 on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any point reached in 1924; the lowest was 154.1 on May 2. Last year's high point was 156.7 on Dec. 27; its lowest, 142.3 on June 29. The highest percentage since the war was 247, in May, 1920; the lowest 130, in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number as cabled for the past week was 151.5, compared with 151.4 the preceding week, 149.6 two weeks before, 149.8 three weeks before, and 150.5 four weeks before. The average of 149.6 on June 27 was the lowest point reached this year to date; the highest was 166.5 on Jan. 10.

CROPS IN GOOD SHAPE.

Wheat Is Beginning to Head—Corn Promises Bumper Yield.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Reports from the Northwest say that it is a race between the weather and the crop as to whether there will be serious damage from black rust in wheat. It has appeared on the stems in the Fargo district and is to be found in scattered areas in North and South Dakota.

The crop is beginning to head over a large part of the four Northwestern States, and in the Northern and close to the Canadian boundary it is either headed or in bloom. It is also headed in part of the Western Canadian provinces, where reports are in the main favorable.

The promise in corn is for the third largest crop on record. But the estimates show only 2½ per cent. more than last year, while the trade has figured on about 5 per cent. increase.

Corn has done well in most sections with high temperatures; scattered showers have been favorable for rapid growth. Moderate damage has resulted from the crop being caught in the tassel in parts of Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas, where temperatures ranged 100 and above for several days the past week.

Conditions, however, are above the average and reports are that only an August drought and extreme heat wave can seriously damage the crop.

General Electric Orders.

Gerard Swope, President of the General Electric Company, announces that orders received by the company for the three months ended June 30 amount to $66,468,992, compared with $71,219,984 for the same period of 1924, a decrease of 7 per cent. For the six months of the present year orders total $150,315,228, compared with $144,707,887 for the first half of 1924, an increase of 4 per cent.

*"How Willys Turned Losses Into Millions of Profit"

Suppose you were in debt twenty million dollars. How bravely could you face it? Could you stage a herculean come-back as John N. Willys did? He never flinched—just "rolled up his sleeves" and got busy. Post-war troubles piled up a $20,000,000 deficit for Willys, well known motor car manufacturer. But prodigious efforts have paid off the debts, and now 1925 promises PROFITS of $20,000,000. Read this article, vividly written by B. C. Forbes. It abounds in rich inspiration for every one in business.

HUNGARIAN LOAN READY.

Offering of $10,000,000 Bond Here Expected This Week.

Speyer & Co. have concluded negotiations with the Hungarian Government covering a $10,000,000 Hungarian consolidated municipal loan. Public offering of the bonds is expected early this week.

The loan will carry the approval of the League of Nations Commissioner who is supervising Hungarian finances. Recent reports from Hungary have indicated marked improvement in the country's financial and commercial position. The present borrowing will be made jointly by a number of the more important cities in the country and the proceeds will be devoted principally to extensions and betterment of public utility and other revenue producing systems.

Representatives of Speyer & Co. have been negotiating in Budapest for some time concerning the loan and several forecasts of the offering have reached Wall Street. The loan is part of a large volume of Central European financing which was expected to be offered in the New York market following the $15,000,000 City of Berlin loan recently put out by Speyer & Co.

SLUMP IN STEEL HAS BEEN SLIGHT

AUGUST RISE TALKED OF

Buying Has Been Liberal of Late and Stocks to Liquidate Are Low.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 12.—The report of steel ingot production in June, just compiled by the American Iron and Steel Institute, furnishes the final evidence as to the mildness of the decrease in steel mill operations as compared with the slump that was just ending at this time last year. The report shows an average production in June equal to 71 per cent. of estimated capacity, while June of last year showed a rate of 47.5 per cent. In each case the start was from a 93 per cent. operation in March.

There has been only a slight further decrease to date, and there is now good reason to believe that July will not show an operating rate below 65 per cent., if indeed as low, while last year the rate went down to 41 per cent. for July before the upturn occurred. Whether this year's upturn will occur as early as August is not yet certain, but there is practically no doubt in the trade that it will occur soon.

Such a belief is based upon current appearances that with the possible, or perhaps probable, exception of the railroads, there will be no substantial decrease in steel consumption in the second half of the year, while the record of production in the past six months and the lightness of stocks at the present time show that even with a moderate decrease in consumption the production of steel will have to increase over the present rate.

During the first half of the year the steel industry operated at an average rate of 83.3 per cent. of estimated capacity. Stocks are now light, possibly lighter than on Jan. 1, hence consumption has equaled production, and steel consumption has such momentum that, barring unforeseen circumstances, it will be heavy in the second half of the year. Even a 10 per cent. decrease in consumption would require a 75 per cent. average for mill operations in the second half of the year, a substantial increase from the present rate.

As to the Steel Corporation's report, showing 3,710,458 tons at the end of June, there is represented a decrease during June of 339,342 tons, against decreases of 396,768 tons in May, 416,996 tons in April and 421,297 tons in March; the preceding seven months had shown increases. The decreases preceding June's represented orders falling off much more than shipments. There is no definite evidence that orders were either smaller or larger in June than in May, and it may be taken that they were substantially the same, a trifle under 50 per cent. of capacity, the June shipments being about half way between 70 and 75 per cent. of capacity. In a period of declining operations shipments of finished steel naturally run somewhat above production of ingots, there being a lag in the decrease.

All the circumstances point to an early increase in the volume of buying, and there is no particular reason to suppose that this will not occur this month. The common notion that July is necessarily a lighter month in market activity than June is not well supported by the precedents.

The steel mills have fared so well lately in the matter of orders, which have kept up much better than a year ago, that they are not thinking as much as usual about "sentiment" among buyers. The sentiment has obviously been unfavorable for three or four months, yet the buyers have bought, on account of necessities, and there must be little if any stocks left to liquidate. The mills therefore are thinking about requirements, which, with the heavy consumption of the last six months, must continue large when the general business indexes are by no means unfavorable.

That there is a better sentiment among steel buyers, however, is noticeable. Some large buyers have asked mills whether it would be advisable at this time to make some forward purchases, but the mills naturally reply that it would be better to make the purchases outright, take deliveries and carry the stock. Steel mills do not care for contracts as they formerly did.

WHEAT ENDS WEEK WITH 11 CENTS GAIN

Statistical Position of the Market Everywhere Is Regarded as Strong.

MILD RUST-DAMAGE SCARE

Wheat's Strength Helps Corn to 7-Cent Gain—Oats and Rye Also Rise.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The Spring wheat crop in the American and Canadian Northwest is moving toward maturity at a more rapid rate than usual, with temperatures above the average in the Dakotas and Montana and with black rust being found on the stems in the vicinity of Fargo west of Jamestown and in South Dakota, particularly around Aberdeen. Crop experts say that the weather of the next ten days or two weeks will determine the size of the crop. It is in a critical condition where both heat and rust can do considerable damage.

There are sections, however, where no rust has been found and the crop in the Western end of the Dakotas has not been reported on as hurt to any extent. There has been some damage in Alberta, Canada, and the report of 343,000,000 bushels for the two Western Provinces against 250,000,000 bushels last year is regarded as relatively too low. The crop is earlier than usual, and it is expected to get through without any material injury.

In addition to the crop scare, there is the strong statistical position in the wheat market, both in the United States, Canada and abroad, with a close adjustment of supplies to requirements and with prospects for European consumers beginning to use the new crop as soon as it is available because of the scarcity of old wheat.

The bearish reports of Russia's surplus and export sales are considered part of foreign propaganda to enable them to buy wheat at lower prices.

The Government report and the carryover in the United States give us a small exportable surplus and places the farmers of the United States in a stronger position than in recent years.

There was evidence of broadening of the trade at the close, with the big advance in all markets on Saturday. Farmers are beginning to sell wheat a little faster. The weekly movement statistics suggest an increase in the visible for the week; otherwise statistics are expected to be bullish.

Wheat closed with prices the highest of the week, showing gains of 11 cents over the low of the previous week, with a net advance of 9@12½ cents, July leading. Corn is up 1¼@7¾ cents, oats 1⅝@3⅝ cents and rye 6@6½ cents.

It has been popular to sell corn short of late in expectations of a crop of 3,200,000,000 bushels, which the Government report was expected to show, but its failure to materialize upset the ideas of the trade and brought a good advance based largely on short covering. Stocks are decreasing at a good rate, and the movement is light. Some damage to corn in parts of Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma, from extremely high temperatures, is alleged.

Oats and rye have followed in the wake of other grains and prices moved up. Oats in Iowa are reported to have been damaged by scorching weather and indications are for a shorter crop. Rye is being rapidly moved out of Chicago, and 1,000,000 bushels will begin to load for Eastern shipment Monday.

Primary receipts of wheat for the week this year were 7,589,000 bushels, last year 6,925,000. Wheat shipments this year were 4,774,000 bushels, last year 3,659,000.

Corn receipts this year were 1,665,000 bushels, last year 3,581,000, and shipments this year 2,585,000 bushels, last year 2,623,000.

Universal Pictures' Earnings.

The Universal Pictures Company, Inc., reports net earnings of $1,071,000 for the six months ending May 9, an increase of 32 per cent. over net earnings of the predecessor company for the first six months of 1924. After deduction of preferred dividends this amount is said to be equivalent to $3.52 for the half year on the outstanding common stock. The company was organized on Jan. 10 of this year.

SOME INDUSTRIES GAINED IN JUNE

Silk, Wool and Tin Did Better Than in May—Output Cut in Steel Ingots and Pig Iron.

BUSINESS FAILURES FEWER

Customs, Bank Clearing and Bond Prices Rise During the Month.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Early reports to the Department of Commerce on business conditions in June show increases over May in some principal industrial indicators, such as self-deliveries, wool receipts at Boston, deliveries of tin, shipments of new locomotives, receipts of turpentine and rosin at Southern ports, and in the number of patents issued by the Government.

Decreases occurred, however, in the production of steel ingots and the output of pig iron and shipments of iron ore through the upper lake ports.

Trade and financial indicators showed increases over May in the sales by the two largest mail-order houses, the amount of customs receipts, bank clearings and bond prices.

Business failures decreased, both in number and liabilities. So did sales by five-and-ten cent stores, postal receipts, corporate issues, fire losses and the amount of the public debt.

As compared with the monthly average of 100 in 1919, the business indicators for May and June of this year and those for the corresponding months of 1924 were announced by the Department of Commerce today to have been as follows:

	1924 May.	1924 June.	1925 May.	1925 June.
Pig iron production	103	80	115	105
Steel ingots production	94	74	123	114
Locomotive shipments	50	65	43	49
Unfilled orders	49	40	35	30
Postal receipts—
Fifty largest cities	141	128	149	147
Fifty industrial cities	114	104	123	121
Mail order sales (two houses)	92	91	99	103
Ten-cent store sales (four chains)	175	163	191	188
Commercial paper interest rates	78	72	71	71

Compared with June, 1924, early industrial indicators showed increases in the production of steel ingots, the output of pig iron, deliveries of tin, shipments of iron ore, receipts of turpentine and rosin and the deliveries and stocks of silk, while the receipts of wool at Boston and shipments of locomotives declined.

Trade and financial indicators showed increases over a year ago in the sales by mail-order houses and five-and-ten-cent stores, business failures, both in number and in liabilities, customs receipts, postal receipts, bank clearings, bond prices and fire losses, while decreases occurred in new corporate issues and in the gross public debt.

STEEL PRICE ADVANCE DUE.

Mills, Firm Against Concessions, Await New Buying Wave.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 11.—While steel buyers have no occasion to replenish stocks on account of fear that mills will not be able to make prompt shipments in the future, or the railroads be unable to handle movements expeditiously, they can not by any means be sure that prices will not advance in some lines. Steel prices have been declining or softening in one spot or another practically continuously since February, but the declines have been very moderate considering the keenness of the competition. There has been much resistance to decline, the mills showing more courage, with the exception of the sheet mills, than has often been exhibited in a period of declining mill activity.

Steel buyers may easily infer from the record that if demand should place the mills in somewhat better position in the next couple of months, the mills would be able to advance prices. Accordingly there may be a mild buying movement. A repetition of the somewhat excited activity of last November and December is not to be expected, nor do either sellers or buyers desire a repetition of that performance.

On the whole, the finished steel market has been steadier in the past two or three weeks than at almost any time since the downward turn developed late in February. In some quarters it is even argued that the market is somewhat firmer, reference being made in particular to appearances of there being a turn in sheets.

The only poor outlook at the moment in the matter of steel consumption in the second half of the year lies with the railroads, but even in that quarter inquiry has lately increased. Fabricated steel bookings in the past week or two have been light, but this is attributed to the holiday, and the average of bookings in the past sixty days runs distinctly ahead of the average in the earlier portion of the year.

Oil production continues the decline that started at the beginning of June and drilling prospects are very good. Buying of oil country tubular goods is heavy. The agricultural implement and automobile trades are both doing well.

Pig iron, coke and scrap show no new developments. They are firm and quiet, with prospects in each case that the next turn will be favorable.

BEEF HIGHEST SINCE 1920.

Hogs Also Reached a High Mark Last Week.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Beef steers and hogs sold at the highest prices the past week since 1920. The top prices on heavy steers were $13.65 and on yearlings $13.75; the average for the week, $11.80, being 5 cents higher than that of the previous week and compared with $9.15 last year. While beef cattle advanced for the choicer grades, the common and in-between grades were 25 cents to $1 lower, with ample supplies. Hogs at one time were off $1 a hundred on the best light, with a sharp recovery and strong close. This week's average of $13.60 advanced 40 cents over the previous week and compared with $7.10 last year.

Sheep and lambs, after a big break, closed only 25 to 50 cents lower with the average of lambs $14.95, a break of 80 cents for the week but a gain of $3 over last year.

Sheep averaged $6.85, a loss of 30 cents from the previous week and compared with $5.25 last year.

Cattle receipts for the week were 53,400; last year, 59,650. Hogs this week were 120,000; last year 220,234. Sheep receipts for the week were 73,700; last year 93,149.

Estimates for this week are cattle, 60,000; hogs, 125,000; sheep, 65,000. Last year's receipts were cattle, 71,000; hogs, 203,000; sheep, 59,000.

Polish Sugar Tax Revenues.

Revenues from the Polish sugar tax during the first quarter of 1925 amounted to 10,472,000 zlotys, according to advices received by Dillon, Read & Co. Revenues derived from the sugar tax are pledged to secure the $35,000,000 Polish Government loan brought out here February last.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

OFFERING OF $2,000,000.00 HUDSON RIVER REGULATING DISTRICT CONSTRUCTION OF THE SACANDAGA RESERVOIR—SERIES A. 4½ PER CENT. BONDS.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the State Comptroller, No. 158 State Street, Albany, New York, until 1 P. M. Eastern Standard Time, Tuesday, July 21, 1925, for all or any part of $2,000,000.00 Hudson River Regulating District Bonds for the Construction of the Sacandaga Reservoir. The bonds are dated July 1, 1925, bear interest payable semi-annually on January 1st and July 1st, and are coupon bonds with privilege of registration as to principal. The bonds will bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum (4½%) per annum and both principal and interest are payable in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness at the New York State National Bank in the City of Albany, New York. These bonds are issued by the Board of the Hudson River Regulating District pursuant to the provisions of Article 7a, Section 464 of the Conservation Law of the State of New York, for the Construction of the Sacandaga Reservoir in the Counties of Saratoga, Fulton and Hamilton and mature serially fifty $1,000 bonds on July 1st in each of the years 1926-1965, inclusive.

These bonds are part of a total authorized issue of $9,000,000.00 to be issued in two or more series as may be required and will be known as Series A. These bonds are a charge upon and shall be payable, principal and interest, from the bond fund of the Hudson River Regulating District, and payment thereof, is secured by an assessment levied against the public corporations and parcels of real estate benefited by the improvement, such assessment being payable in 40 annual installments.

These bonds are exempt from taxation and are legal investments for savings banks and trust funds.

These bonds shall not be construed in any event as bonds or indebtedness of the State, and the State shall not be obligated to pay the principal or interest therefor.

Each bid should be enclosed in a sealed envelope marked, "Proposal for Bonds," and must be accompanied by a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company, for two per centum (2%) of the face value of the bonds bid for, payable to the order of Comptroller of the State of New York, for security for the performance of such bid and as liquidated damages in case the successful bidder fails to take up and pay for the bonds. The bonds cannot be sold at less than par and accrued interest. Purchasers will be required to pay accrued interest from July 1, 1925, to the date of delivery of the bonds.

The legality of the bonds has been approved by Mr. John C. Thomson, Attorney-at-Law, No. 120 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.

VINCENT B. MURPHY,
State Comptroller.

Dated June 25, 1925, at Albany, New York.

UTILITY FINANCING TOPS OLD RECORD

JUNE TOTAL AT $69,495,500

Largest Issue Made by Engineers Public Service Corp.—Most Offerings Are Long-Term.

The electric power and light companies established another new high record in financing in the first six months of 1925 with a total which public utility, experts believe significant of future progress.

During June new offerings of stocks, bonds and notes, exclusive of local sales of securities to customers, of the electric light and power companies over the country amounted to $69,495,500, which compares with $106,987,500 recorded for the same month of last year. While this is a decrease, it is more than offset by the gains shown in preceding months, which, with the June figures, give a total of nearly $598,000,000 for the half year. This compares with $457,500,000 raised through new offerings in the same period of last year, and is an increase of more than $140,000,000.

Virtually all of the June financing by utilities was long-term, the largest being that of the Engineers Public Service Corporation, the new company organized by Stone & Webster, Inc., and associates to acquire the Gould controlling interest in the Virginia Railway & Power Company and its subsidiaries. This issue consisted of 200,000 shares of preferred stock in the form of allotment certificates offered at $100 per share, half being payable on the date of purchase and the remainder subject to call by the company, but no call to be made before Jan. 1, 1926.

Twenty-eight companies participated in the June financing. The average yield of the utility offerings for June was 6 per cent., against 6.42 per cent. on May offerings, in common with a similar trend in the high-grade industrial bonds.

The significance of the six months total is found by company officials in the fact that it represents a large increase over the first half of last year, which was itself a record. The total of all utility financing last year approximated $1,200,000,000, including electric power, gas and street railway offerings. This year, basing the estimate upon the increase of the first six months, it is expected the 1925 figures for the electric power and light companies alone will approach the total of all utilities last year. With even a billion of new financing, the electric power and light companies will have established another record.

Additional significance is said to attach to the length of the maturities of current power and light offerings, which shows the advantages derived from financing when money rates are relatively low and the intention of the utilities to continue their policy of expansion. Some of the largest issues sold to the public last month, with the maturities, were as follows: Detroit Edison Company, $8,000,000 refunding gold bonds, Series B, thirty years; New Orleans Public Service Company, $5,000,000 first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, Series B, thirty years; Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company of Baltimore, $9,000,000 first refunding mortgage sinking fund gold bonds, Series F, forty years; Great Western Power Company of California, $6,300,000 first and refunding mortgage sinking fund gold bonds, Series D, thirty years; Central Illinois Public Service Company, $4,600,000 first mortgage and refunding gold bonds, Series D, twenty-five years; Illinois Power and Light Corporation, $5,000,000 first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, Series B, twenty-nine years; Southwestern Public Service Company, $3,500,000 first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds, Series A, twenty years; El Paso Electric Company, $3,000,000 first mortgage gold bonds, Series A, twenty-five years, Catskill Power Corporation, $2,500,000 first mortgage gold bonds, Series A, thirty years, and Northern New York Utilities, Inc., $2,125,500 first lien and refunding bonds, Series E, thirty years. There were many smaller issues, and a number of sizable preferred stock issues whose maturities are indefinite.

The bond yields from the June offerings range, on the basis of the offering prices, from 4.97 in the case of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company of Baltimore sinking fund gold bonds, priced at 100½, to several bond issues yielding up to 7 per cent. in the case of shorter maturities.

WESTERN TRADE SLOWS UP.

Lull Is Called Seasonal and the Outlook Is Good.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—More favorable reports are coming from the steel industry with a larger tonnage being booked in the Chicago territory, where mills are operating at 78 per cent., a loss of only 2 per cent. in a dull season week. The future is regarded as more favorable with heavy consumption and a steadying of values, with indications of Western makers of steel sheets following the advance of $2 a ton made by Eastern mills.

Railroads are placing more orders for cars and rails. The automobile industry is said to be absorbing about 75 per cent. of the finished steel output. Chicago pig iron interests have 400,000 tons sold for shipment during the third and fourth quarter. Production has been decreased by the closing of one independent furnace for repairs, but the bulk of the stacks in the Chicago district are in operation.

A small improvement has occurred in the coal situation, with a clearing up on good percentage of the car lots held at Middle West mines.

A slowing up in the wholesale and retail dry goods and general commodity trade was no more than seasonal, yet the road sales and shipments by wholesalers exceeded last year's, while with the retailers, one of the leaders reports aggregate sales are about even with last year.

Money in the West is in good supply and the condition of banks as shown by the recent official statements, suggests plenty of funds for present and Fall demands. The Chicago banks are having more deposits and resources than at any previous time.

The Seventh Federal Reserve Bank's statement shows good decreases in gold reserves, loans and deposits for the week, with an advance in ratio of reserve of 2.2 per cent., to 77.2.

Call money ranged during the week at 3¾ to 4 per cent.; time funds, 4 to 5½ per cent., while commercial paper is 3¾ to 4¼ per cent.

The one significant thing about the general trade situation is that collections are good.

Fertilizer Industry Outlook.

In a review of business conditions affecting the fertilizer industry Charles H. McDowell, President of the Armour Fertilizer Works, says: "The outlook for the American fertilizer industry for the current year is exceptionally good. During the year just ended operations have been conducted on a more profitable basis, and there are indications that the industry as a whole is in more substantial condition than at any time in the last decade."

MODERN LOCOMOTIVES FOUND LESS EFFICIENT

Retarded Availability Laid to Refinements and Increased Hauling Capacity.

The performance records of steam engines over a considerable period of years indicate that the refinements and the increased haulage capacity developed in recent years have retarded the availability of the locomotives for service, according to the report of the committee on electrical rolling stock at the 1925 annual convention of the American Railway Association.

These performance records further indicate, it is said, that whereas the simple type of locomotive used some twenty-five years ago was available for service approximately 75 per cent. of the time, the modern steam locomotive seldom produces an average of more than 45 per cent. While obviously, it is added, the addition of appurtenances and refinements, all of which improve the operating performance of the unit, will increase the amount of attention necessary to keep the locomotive in running order, yet the decrease in service rendered cannot all be charged against such refinements.

"It would seem likely," says the report, "that a large percentage of this inefficiency may be due to a deficient understanding of the possibilities of the modern locomotive, with its larger grate area, boiler dimensions, general increase in proportions, and therefore greater margin of capacity as compared with designs of former years. Were these possibilities fully appreciated, then there would seem to be no logical reason for not providing and utilizing those facilities necessary for the prompt performance of shop work and thus obtain the maximum mileage performance.

"While it may appear inappropriate to dwell on deficiences of the steam locomotive, nevertheless it is upon these deficiencies that great stress is placed by the opponents of electrification when the latter is under discussion. Such deficiencies should be taken into consideration by any road contemplating electrification. An outstanding advantage of the electric locomotive is the high percentage of serviceability as compared with the steam locomotive. Yet we cannot consistently compare them unless provision is made for full utilization of the serviceability of which the modern steam locomotive is capable."

UNITED LIGHT EARNINGS.

Net for Last Fiscal Year Increased to $14,638,154.

The statement of earnings of the United Light and Power Company for the twelve months ended May 31, 1925, shows gross of 35,171,092, against $34,128,483 in the same period last year. Net earnings were $14,638,154, against $13,542,253 for the same period last year, and surplus available for depreciation and common stock dividends amounted to $4,647,835, applicable to the 391,424 shares outstanding.

The statement of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation, the company's principal subsidiary, for the twelve months ended May 31 shows gross earnings of $21,730,638, against $21,370,160 in the same period last year. Net revenues were $9,781,282, against $9,187,239 last year, and surplus before charges for depreciation amounted to $3,659,203. The United Light and Power Company owns 97 per cent. of the common stock of the Continental Gas and Electric Corporation.

COTTON SUPPLY DWINDLES.

South Sees No Menace in Large European Stocks.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 12.—The unmarketed supply of cotton in the South is rapidly dwindling, and were it not for the comparatively liberal stocks in Europe the season might easily end with a very moderate carry-over. Yet the large stocks in Europe need not be considered a menace.

Before the great war it was customary for Europe to carry quite liberal surplus stocks of cotton. This custom was allowed to lapse during the period following the war, but is now being revived.

TO ERECT BANK BUILDING.

Syndicate Buys Land for Ten-Story Structure in Washington.

A syndicate organized by Albert O. Hagar, President of the City Central Corporation of Boston, has acquired by purchase twelve parcels of land with the buildings thereon in the financial district of Washington, D. C., opposite the United States Treasury Building and Riggs National Bank.

The present buildings will be demolished and a new bank and office building of ten stories will be erected in accordance with plans drawn by Coolidge, Shapley, Bulfinch & Abbott, architects. It is estimated that the total cost of land and building will be about $6,000,000.

RAIL TAXES CLIMB TO MILLION A DAY

EXCEED DIVIDENDS PAID

Revenues Amount to $5.80 of Every $100 of Operating Costs—State Governments Get 80%.

Many railroad men are devoting attention to railway taxes, which they say have been steadily increasing until in 1924 the bill reached nearly $1,000,000 a day, an increase of $20,000 a day over 1923.

For three successive years, it is said, and for four years out of the last five the taxes paid by the steam carriers to the State and Federal Governments has exceeded the amount they have distributed to their stockholders in dividends. The taxes paid in 1924, $340,342,067, they add, not only exceeded those of any previous year but represented an increase of 187 per cent. over those paid in 1913, while the dividends paid were less than those in 1913. As compared with 1923 there was an increase of $8,426,608, or 2.5 per cent.

In 1913 the cash dividends paid by the railroads amounted to $322,300,406 and the taxes paid in that year only $118,386,859. In 1920 the dividends amounted to $271,731,669 and the taxes to $301,034,923. In 1923 the dividends aggregated $296,073,048 and the taxes $331,915,459, and in 1924 the dividends amounted to $310,221,064 and the taxes to $340,342,067.

According to a statement by the Bureau of Economics the average daily tax bill of the railways in 1924 amounted to $929,896 and out of each $100 of operating revenues received by the road $5.80 went for taxes, as compared with $4.40 in 1923. Of the $330,342,067 paid in taxes in 1924, $73,367,510, or about 20 per cent., went to the Federal Government, a reduction of nearly 5 per cent., as compared with the year before, while $265,945,732, or nearly 80 per cent., went to the various State Governments. In thirty-five States there was an increase of more than 7 per cent., while in only thirteen States was there any decrease.

In commenting on this situation many call attention to the transfer of funds raised by railroad taxation in many States to highway aid, which encourages motor transportation and consequently cuts into the passenger revenues of the steam carriers.

The investment house of Case, Pomeroy & Co. in discussing the situation says:

"The intent of the Transportation act is to establish a general rate structure which will allow the railroads to earn a return of 5¾ per cent. on their tentative valuations. In establishing a general schedule of freight rates, the Interstate Commerce Commission must take into consideration all expense factors which have a bearing on the railroads' net income. Taxes must, therefore, be absorbed in total freight rates and are thus passed on to shippers and consumers as an integral part of the price of all commodities shipped by freight.

"The railroads of the United States are performing a necessary public service. Efficient transportation is necessary to general prosperity and even to the very existence of those who live in our big cities. The railroads must continually expend large sums for the upkeep and extension of their properties in order to keep pace with the increasing needs of the growing population.

"A railroad that is overburdened with heavy taxes cannot preserve its credit or earn sufficient surplus to enable it to expand its facilities with the growth of the territory it serves. The general welfare demands prosperous and growing transportation systems so that the life blood of trade and commerce may continue to flow without restraint."

COMMODITY PRICES.

Sharp Bulge in Cash Grains—Metals dnd Lard Higher—Sugar at New Low.

Cash grains proved the feature of last week's trading in the wholesale markets. Advances running from 2½ cents to slightly less than 10 cents were registered in the principal options, corn, rye and oats all closing strong, while wheat, No. 2 red, the new option, reported a comparably higher price compared with the old grade.

Of the twenty articles in the subjoined list, ten advanced, five reacted and the same number was firm and unchanged, compared with the previous week's finals. Middle West lard went to a new high on the improvement in the grains, the metals also revealing a decidedly forward swing. Cotton and butter were strong. A new low for refined sugar, at 5.35 cents, was the most marked decline of the week, losses elsewhere including coffee, eggs and family beef. Evenness prevailed in mess pork, iron, steel billets and printcloths.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities, in the New York market unless otherwise noted, were:

SAYS BIG OIL GAIN IS IN HEAVY GRADE

Standard of California Points Out Decline in Light in a Review of Trade.

NO INCREASE IN GASOLINE

Stocks of This Commodity Dropped Heavily in April, Bureau of Mines Reported.

The Standard Oil Company of California, in a review of the petroleum trade, points out that all the increase in the production of crude oil in the United States during the past six months was due to the larger flow of oil from fields producing heavy grades of petroleum, while there was a sharp falling off in the output of light-grade oil with large gasoline content. Calling attention to the fact that the recent increase in output has been due to Smackover field in Arkansas establishing a high record for the country, and the increased activity in the Inglewood field in California, the company says "ordinarily a growth in production of this magnitude could not be looked upon without considerable concern as to its effect upon the oil markets of the country, including the market for that primary product, gasoline.

"But it happens that this new production consists mostly of heavy oil, with small gasoline content. So marked is the preponderance of heavy oil in the current supply that it is no longer possible intelligently to consider the oil situation in terms of total production of crude oil alone. The gross volume of oil must be divided into two parts—light with large gasoline content, and heavy with its small gasoline yield."

Pointing out that the production of light-grade oil is declining and heavy crude production increasing, the company says: "Were the situation reversed, with the supply of light high-gasoline-content oil predominating, there would be a great increase in the supply of gasoline. But this is not the case, as is shown by a very interesting report just issued by the United States Bureau of Mines. This shows that in April, in the face of increasing crude oil production, stocks of gasoline decreased 1,187,000 barrels. A decline during April is most unusual. The customary performance is for stocks to increase until May or June, when increased consumption causes drafts on stocks. This is the first April since 1918 showing a decline.

PORTLAND BANK MERGER.

United States National Buys Ladd and Tilton.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 12 (AP).—The Ladd and Tilton Bank of Portland, the oldest financial institution in the Pacific Northwest and second oldest on the Pacific Coast, with assets aggregating $25,927,112, was sold yesetrday to the United States National Bank of Portland. The transfer is to be effective at once.

As a result of the deal the United States National has become the largest financial institution north of San Francisco and west of Minneapolis. Its combined deposits amount to $59,000,000.

E. B. MacNaughton, Vice President of Ladd and Tilton an active representative of Charles Pratt & Co., New York, owners of the Ladd and Tilton Bank, in explaining the sale said that the Pratt interests feel they are too far away to continue active direction of the bank here.

Charles Pratt, deceased founder of the company, which is only a partnership, was for many years Treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New York.

TO SELL BISHOP & BABCOCK

Deal With New Company Voted by the Stockholders.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 12 (AP).—Stockholders of the Bishop & Babcock Company voted yesterday to sell the business to a new company after Common Pleas Judge A. J. Pearson had denied a minority stockholders' petition for an injunction against the sale. The company manufactures soda fountain equipment, heating and other supplies and is capitalized at $4,000,000.

The new company, known as the Bishop & Babcock Manufacturing Company, will be headed by A. G. Bean, Elyria, Ohio; Walter C. White, President of the White Motor Company, Cleveland, and Walter Teagle, President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

ARGENTINA TO ISSUE BONDS

Issues to Pay Costs of New Railway Construction.

Under date of May 10, the Bank of London and South America reports that the President of the Argentine Republic has recently authorized the Minister of Finance to emit railway bonds, with the object of defraying the cost of construction, improvement and maintenance of railways belonging to the Union. Such bonds will be issued periodically in payment of work executed, and will be for the value of one conto de reis each, bearing 7 per cent. per annum and redeemable within ten years by annual drawings at par, or otherwise by purchase in the open market. A special fund to meet interest and amortization of these bonds will be established by imposing forthwith an additional tax of 10 per cent. on all passenger and goods tariffs.

West's Rail Traffic Improves.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—An improvement in the traffic on Western railroads has been made in the last ten days; an excess over the same time in June and in July last year is apparent, with increases ranging up in some instances to 14 per cent., as compared with a year ago. Southwestern railroads were favored with a better grain movement than of late. The movement of coal and oil is in excess of last year's. The car and locomotive supply has never been as good as at present.

Trust Company Appointment.

William Robert Wilson, President of the Guardian Trust Company of Detroit, of which Edsel Kord is a director, announced the appointment ysterday of Rudolph E. Hofelich as trust officer. Mr. Hofelich comes from the legal department of the Ford Motor Company.

SHOT THROUGH DOOR, DIES.

Unwelcome Guest at Party Kills Woman From Hallway.

A gunshot wound in her abdomen resulted in the death yesterday in Harlem Hospital of Mrs. Eliza Matthews, 32 years old, a colored woman, of 10 East 132d Street.

Mrs. Matthews was wounded about 4 o'clock in the morning in the apartment of her sister, Mrs. Belle Murray, on the second floor of the biulding in which she lived. She had been attending a birthday party, when five shots were fired through the panel of the door from the hallway by a man who had been refused admittance. The police are searching for him.

ONE MAN CAN CONTROL STATEN ISLAND TRAINS

Huge Automatic Electric System Is High Engineering Achievement, Says W. H. Easton.

The electrical system by which the trains of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway are operated represents a high development of the engineering art, according to W. H. Easton of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Virtually all of the complex machinery which supplies power to the trains is automatic and all of the numerous combinations which must be effected in order to take care of the demands of power are made without human intervention.

There are five substations on this system, each of which takes care of certain divisions on the line. Each feeds power into its portion of the line in direct proportion to the demands upon it. If, for example, no trains are operating, as in the early morning hours, the substation is shut down. As soon, however, as a train runs into the division and requires power, the machinery in the substation automatically starts, closing down as soon as the demand is past.

At all times the machinery in this substation is protected automatically against any emergency, such as an excessive demand for power, heating in any of the bearings, breaking in the connections, &c. If such conditions occur, the substation automatically tries to clear the trouble. If not successful, it closes down and sends a signal to headquarters for immediate attention.

While this machinery is said by Mr. Easton to be almost human in its operation, it cannot take the place of human intelligence, so that super-imposed upon the automatic system is a supervisory system which places every detail of the operation of the substation under the control of the local dispatcher at the St. George station. At this dispatcher's office information on every detail of operation is automatically recorded, so that the dispatcher knows what is going on in all parts of the system. In case of trouble or a heavy rush of traffic, he assumes control of the entire system, and by means of push buttons and switches is able to make any necessary changes in the operation of the machinery.

Thus the entire system is under control of one man. However, he exercises for the most part supervision of operations, and is only occasionally compelled to take actual charge.

HOLDS POLICEMAN AS 2 RUN.

Automobile Thieves Escape—Third Man Held for Aiding Them.

While arresting two automobile thieves in front of a garage at 519 Madi- man Winters of the Hoboken police was son Street, Hoboken, last night, Patrol- seized by a third man, who held him until the prisoners escaped, according to the report he made at police headquarters.

Winters brought in Joseph Russo, 22 years old, of 415 Adams Street, Hoboken, who was held on charges of disorderly conduct and aiding and abetting the escape of prisoners. Russo was attended by an ambulance surgeon for a deep scalp wound, which he said Winters inflicted with his club.

Winters said he had heard the watchman of the garage, who had been on the street outside the building, shout at two men who had just driven out of the garage in an automobile. The men stopped the automobile, got out and ran away. Winters caught them after a short chase. Then Russo appeared, according to Winters.

MATERIAL PRICE SAG SLIGHT IN BUILDING

Six-Year Readjustment Process Follows Closely the Course Taken After Civil War.

WAITING MAY BE COSTLY

Building Material Manufacturer Basing 1926 Supply Largely Upon 1925 Demand.

Building material price movements between now and next Spring rank close to the probable cost of labor in the calculations of the investment builder of 1926, writes Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Building material prices today are, roughly, half way between the pre-war, delivered on-the-job price and the peak post-war level of 1920. It is curious to note, also, that about six and one half years have elapsed since the influence of the World War first became noticeable upon basic building material prices and that following the Civil War thirteen years elapsed before basic building material prices actually returned to pre-war levels.

Considering the vast difference between underlying conditions affecting building construction in the readjustment periods following the Civil War and the great war, respectively, it would not be conclusive to base forthcoming events upon what transpired in this country more than half a century ago.

Nevertheless, the fact that modern building material price readjustment has so far followed, not only statistical reaction, covering post-bellum days, but also in point of elapsed time, gives strength to the current belief that nominally pre-war normal conditions in the building construction industry are still as far away as 1932.

Recent events in the material and labor departments of the building industry have had a tendency to upset the calculations of prospective builders as to what would happen if they withdrew from actual construction work for the remainder of 1925. No great reduction of building material prices has followed and, so far as the public knows, nothing has been contributed toward getting a lower scale of wages for building trades employes next year and beyond.

Pointing to the statistics of the day, the wage earner is aware that he is well employed as a group; that national permits granted for building construction are 7 per cent. greater than they were a year ago, and New York City, despite the decline in plans filed between the first half of 1925 and 1924, reports a gain in building permits granted of 8.8 per cent. There is no vast surplus of building trades labor to draw upon in carrying out a nation-wide construction plan greater, even, than that of last year.

There is nothing in current statistics or in general building construction trade economics, up to the present time, at least, to sustain the belief that the further withholding of actual building construction work will gain for its projectors either lower building material acquire the false idea that the bottom costs or lower wage costs.

It would be more beneficial to the actual building projector if he were to proceed with his operation, because, by so doing, the building material manufacturer, who operates his mill largely upon current market demand, will not then has dropped out of building construction demand and, incidentally, the demand for his products.

If he curtails material supply, and in an unprepared state he should be confronted next year with an overwhelming demand, what has been gained in building material price reduction will be lost in premiums late comers into the market might have to pay for deliveries. Conditions quite similar to those in the making at the present time, superimposed by a shortage of coal, such as that which is quite within the range of possibilities this Autumn, produced the last premium-paying situation so well remembered in the building industry.

So far as the construction industry in New York City is concerned, recent labor disputes between the bricklayers and the plasterers have resulted in no diminution of building material distribution. While there were two more barge loads of brick in dealer's hands in process of unloading their cargoes at the week-end than on July 3 last, this condition was attributed to rain rather than to labor disturbances.

A Message to Those Who

Lack Ready Cash To Buy a Home

THE organization making this offer is a group of realty men of strong financial resources, interested in providing "honestly built" all-year homes for city dwellers who are tired of city life and earnestly desire to establish their own home in the same healthful, attractive, accessible residential section usually accessible only to those of large means.

One of Ten Types of Homes to Select From

On ¼ Acre

Boating Bathing Fishing

Because of extensive financing necessary to carry out this plan successfully, we will be able to accept with whom we can co-operate as a group, making possible the building and purchase of the 100 homes at the lowest possible cost and most advantageous terms. By co-operating as a unit these 100 families will get homes built of materials and a class of workmanship to be found only in homes of the best type, costing much more.

$275 ASSURES HOME OWNERSHIP

$5 WEEKLY

Every Improvement, including Water, Gas and Electricity

This Is the Most Amazing Offer to the Man of Moderate Means

A HALF MILLION FAMILIES, at a conservative estimate, solid, substantial families, have dreamed of some day being able to buy a home of their own in a spot where their children and they can live a normal, happy, healthy life away from the congestion and handicaps of the city, with its high rents and cramped apartments, and yet near enough to their day's work in the city.

NO REASON TO PAY RENT NOW. You, too, can become the owner of a fine home on a quarter or half acre plot in this popular, restricted, residential community, selected for its convenience and accessibility, where you will be surrounded by worthwhile neighbors, with good Schools, Stores and Churches, where the great outdoors welcomes you to sunshine and fresh air. We offer every opportunity you can ask for to come in on this project early. If you delay it will be due to your own neglect and you have only yourself to blame.

The land owned by this organization is free and clear of all mortgage indebtedness. It is located in one of the fastest growing and most beautiful sections on the South Shore of Long Island, 38 minutes from New York, well within the commuting zone, by fast electric express train service.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—The disturbance that was over Quebec Saturday night has advanced to the Canadian Maritime Provinces, with centre over New Brunswick. Pressure is relatively lower over Northern Manitoba, Northern Alberta and Arizona. Relatively high and rising pressure covers the upper lake region and Ontario and pressure is relatively high south of Bermuda, along the west Gulf Coast and on the middle Pacific Coast. During the last twenty-four hours scattered thunder showers have occurred in the western and lower lake region, the lower Mississippi Valley and along the middle and south Atlantic coasts. It has become slightly cooler in the Upper Mississippi Valley and portions of the lake region, while warmer weather is reported from the middle Rocky Mountain region. A maximum temperature of 114 degrees was reported from Yuma and Phoenix, Ariz.

The outlook is for thunder showers in the south Atlantic and portions of the east Gulf States Monday and Tuesday and for fair weather elsewhere in the States east of the Mississippi River. It will be cooler Monday in the lower lake region, the middle Atlantic States and the interior of New England.

Country-Wide Weather Conditions.

The Civil Service.

City.

The commission announces examinations, applications to close July 22, for these positions:

PATHOLOGIST—Duties are to perform pathological examinations and conduct research work. Candidates must possess a medical degree granted on the completion of a standard course of instruction in a medical school of recognized standing. There is one vacancy in Department of Public Welfare at $2,100 annually. Other vacancies occur from time to time.

ASSISTANT ENGINEER, GRADE D—Duties are supervision of subordinates in various lines of civil engineering depending upon the branch of the city service to which the appointee may be detailed. Candidates must have had at least five years' experience in civil engineering. For this grade it is essential that for two years the candidate should have been in responsible charge of a given engineering project in the office or field. Suitable credit will be given, in the experience rating, for graduation from a technical institution of recognized standing. Salary is $2,760 per annum and upward. Vacancies occur from time to time.

STRUCTURAL STEEL DRAFTSMAN, GRADE D—Duties involve the compiling of data, computations and design for structural steel and concrete buildings, retaining walls or similar public structures. They may include supervision of draftsmen of lower grade. Candidates must have at least five years of engineering practice, two years of which, at least, must have been fully engaged on reinforced concrete and steel buildings. Graduates of an engineering school of recognized standing will be credited with one year equivalent of the general engineering experience. There are several vacancies at $2,760 per annum in various departments.

INSPECTOR OF DREDGING, GRADE 3—Duties are to make measurements and soundings of slips, and depth of waters within the pierhead lines; supervise dredging operations, and report on the same. Candidates must have had at least three years of harbor work as dredger, helper, sounder, captain or foreman of dredging. There is a vacancy in the Department of Docks at $2,160 annually. Other vacancies occur from time to time. On account of the increased compensation, the examination for Inspector of Dredging, Grade 2, has been cancelled. Candidates who filed applications for this examination between April 7 and April 23, 1925, need not file new applications for Inspector of Dredging, Grade 3.

SEEKS AID FOR THE BLIND.

Association Appeals for Contributions to Vacation Fund.

Faced with the necessity of cutting down the number of blind guests at their Summer home at Cornwall-on-Hudson unless sufficient funds can be raised to carry on the work, the New York Association for the Blind appealed yesterday for contributions.

In a circular letter sent out by the association, the President, Dr. John H. Finley, said: "For the sake of these blind people to whom a country visit means much, we ask you to contribute to our Vacation Fund. Twenty dollars covers the expense for one blind guest and the necessary guiding."

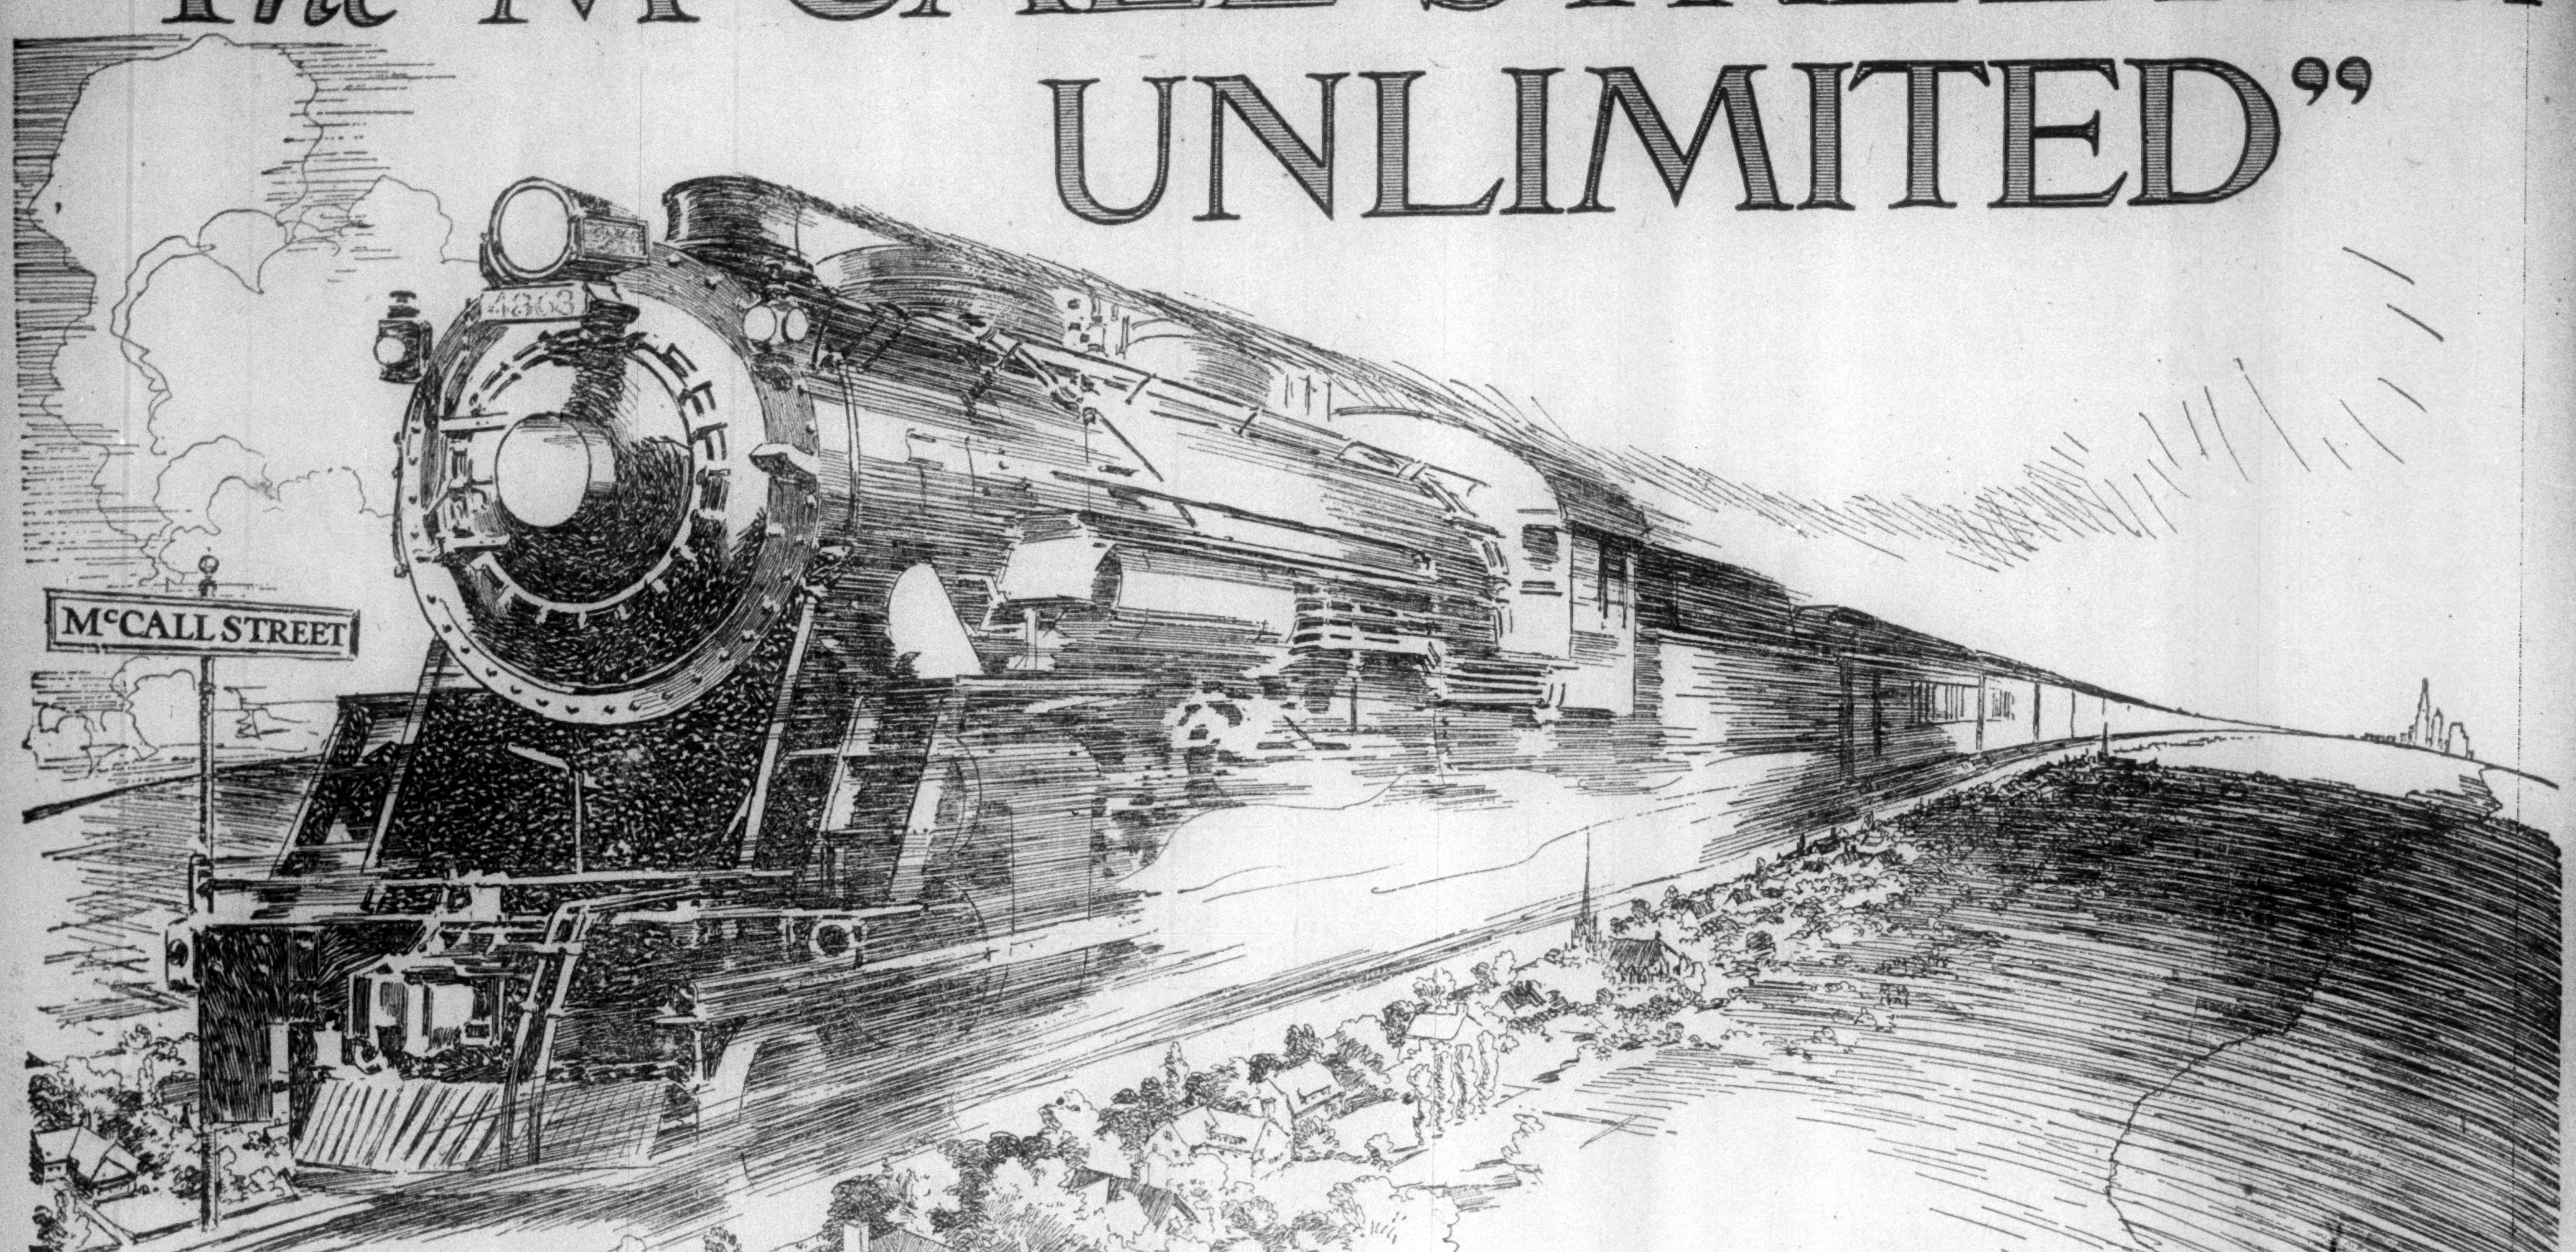
"The McCALL STREETER UNLIMITED"



If the 2,000,000 families in which McCall's Magazine is read all lived on a single street—a home every 25 feet—the houses would line both sides of a roadway from Boston to San Diego.

Carries over 2,100,000 passengers a month

THE Century or the Broadway Limited offers the business man the most direct rail route between New York and Chicago—

"The McCall Streeter" is an unlimited train making close connections with every city and town in America—and affording the advertiser direct access to over 2,100,000 prosperous families.

These 2,100,000 families buy McCall's because it is the kind of magazine they want to read. In the strength and variety of the appeal which McCall's makes to the emotions, the sympathies, and the aspirations of its readers, lies the deep-rooted strength of the magazine.

That is the reason for the phenomenal upward sweep of McCall's; for its eager, alert, voluntary circulation. There is no sales resistance to McCall's; people step up and buy it. Therefore there is no necessity for highly organized, forced-draft circulation methods. Over 50,000 newsdealers can testify that McCall's sells more copies than any other woman's magazine.

This is consumer acceptance—and consumer acceptance is what the advertiser seeks for his own product. Every McCall advertiser participates in this unprecedented public acceptance.

McCall's Magazine is today an outstanding advertising medium in the woman's field—outstanding in the visibility of its advertising pages; in the responsiveness of its readers; and in the prestige which it has secured on genuine editorial merit. The McCall Company, 236-250 West 37th Street, New York. Chicago, San Francisco, Boston, Atlanta, Toronto.

Average Net Paid Circulation for first six months of 1925—2,115,226

The August Issue Is Out Today

A big "Midsummer Fiction" number. A complete novelette, "The Gay Tyrant," by Theda Kenyon—a thrilling recital of love and adventure on the high seas. Interesting story of modern life by the famous novelist, Robert W. Chambers. Delightful novels by Ruby M. Ayres, Gene Stratton-Porter, Margaret Pedler and Harold Bell Wright. Departments by famous doctors, architects, domestic science experts, beauty specialists.

The New McCall Printed Pattern

Millions of women are joining the ever-increasing number of satisfied McCall Pattern users.

Because The Printed Cutting Line found only on McCall Printed Patterns is the one way of reproducing styles accurately. Cut on a printed line—not along a wobbly paper edge. The margin that protects the accuracy of the printed cutting line falls away as you cut through paper and material. Patented August 16, 1921.
